Where's Wando
We've hidden Wando somewhere in this issue of 365ink. Can you find him?

Bryce's inkubator

Notes from the Publisher... Fostering ideas, conversations and arguments.

I got a lot of feedback from my column last issue about Farm and Fleet coming to town. Most people liked it a lot. Some, as I figured, thought I was a liberal commie. Most people who didn't agree with me all gave the same argument which just told me they didn't really read the article very closely. Their responses were basically apples to oranges comparisons to my example, so that was frustrating. Eventually I just stopped replying. If you can't see the difference, tough nuggets. Get your own newspaper. Or you can buy mine. :)

Is it me or has it been a full couple of weeks of activity around Dubuqueland? We had WW2 trainer aircraft flying practices over town, and the Niña and Pinta sailed into port for a few days. The Dubuque County Fair was abuzz with activity, and we're clearly in the middle of festival season. Well, I've had a great string of days, anyway.

Last weekend I was invited to an amazing party at the farm of Christopher Kulovitz and Brian Wydra. I knew it would be a killer party, as Christopher would throw nothing less, but man, the farm is literally paradise punched out of Better Farms and Gardens. I suppose when you combine professional landscaping and gay men, you're going to get amazing results, but man... this place was incredible. It's like a place you'd see in a movie, like the Big Chill and you see it on screen and say, "That's a movie farm. Nobody's house every really looks like that." Apparently I was wrong. So thank you guys for the invite. We had a blast, and so did everyone else. Readers, you need to find some cultured gay friends with farms. I'm just saying.

And then this weekend starts early with Taste of Dubuque moving back to a weeknight and back to the grounds of the River Museum. Two great ideas. And they're having vendors offer some items as smaller samples so you can try more different things. Also a stellar idea. Kudos to the Museum crew for putting on the re-thinking hats. We're looking very forward to that, and I guess since I'm so amazingly famous and all, I get to be a food judge. I imagine that entails eating a lot of free samples. Readers, you need to get amazingly famous.

Then, geeze, Rock and Roll Rewind is Friday and Saturday. If you've never been... GO! I wasn't even part of that crowd even though I'm in a band and you can still feel the energy and camaraderie among the guys (and gals) on stage. It's a magical two nights of music and, of course, supports a great cause.

And somewhere in there, I'm slipping in a night of theater when I take my wife and mom to see Les Miserables at the Grand. I've heard great things and that's sure to fill up my weekend.

But then I just got a wild hair and decided last minute to buy a couple of nosebleed seats to the last Rush concert of the tour in Kansas City this Sunday night. What the hell? It was not hard to convince Matt Haas from Dubuque Heritage Winery to go along. He's a big a Rush nerd as I am. And since K.C. is drowning in BBQ, that pretty much sealed the deal. Road trip!

For a guy with no free time, I seem to be doing a fine job of enjoying my summer in between the lost days of enjoying my work. I wish the same for all of you. With the odd weather, is feels like summer is ending too soon. Don't lose out on the warm days we have left. Check out this issue of 365ink. Scour the event briefs and look at all those festival on pages 20-21. This is all for you folks. Get off the couch and enjoy it before it's once again 5° and you kill for a cold beer on a hot summer night.

And who knows, maybe Tom Hanks will still show up afterall! (It's a long story... but apparently he's very excited to try a slice of Happy Joe's Taco Pizza!)

MISSISSIPPI MOONBAR

Vietnam Veteran Book Signing
Born on the 5th of July:
Memories of Frontline Nurse Captain
Saturday, August 3rd, 1-2 p.m.
River Lights Bookstore

Reconstructive surgery as a child left Fred Phelps (No, not the Westoboro church idiot, but rather the hero) with a love of nursing, but unfit for military service. His nursing skills eventually caught the notice of a Vietnam-era Pentagon drive to enlist male nurses, then about 1% of the profession. By July 1967, Captain Phelps found himself at An Khe, 340 miles north of Saigon, assigned to a medical field hospital. The year-long diary he kept is the subject of this book. Phelps remained in the Army Nurse Corps for 22½ years with assignments at various military hospitals. Retired in 1989, he continued work as a staff nurse at small hospitals around his hometown in Iowa, where he lives with his wife, Ellen. Meet Fred and get a copy of his book, Born on the 5th of July: Memories of Frontline Nurse Captain at River Lights Bookstore at 1900 Main Street in downtown Dubuque on Saturday, August 3 from 1-2 p.m.

Coupon Crazy:
Mary Potter Kenyon
Sunday, August 4th, 2-3 p.m.
River Lights Bookstore

Mary currently writes a weekly couponing column for the Dubuque "Telegraph Herald," where she is touted as the "Tri-State Area's Coupon Queen." She holds couponing and writing workshops for NICC and Hawkeye, area community colleges, writing workshops at the River Lights bookstore in Dubuque and does public speaking for women's groups, libraries and writing conferences. In addition to her career as a couponer, Mary has worked as a freelance writer for 20 years and has had over 300 articles and essays about parenting, saving money, and homeschooling published including five "Chicken Soup" books. Get a copy of Mary's Book, "Coupon Crazy" signed during her visit to River Lights Bookstore on Sunday, August 4, from 2-3 p.m. There will also be a presentation at 2:30 p.m.

Volunteer Appreciation Day
Thursday, August 8, 4-7 p.m.
Washington Park, Dubuque

Have you lent a hand to the Dubuque Area Chamber of Commerce this year? Well, they want to say thank you! Barbeque and live music will be served. Admission is free. For more information, visit www.dubuquechamber.com.

Annie
August 9-11
Five Flags Theater

Rising Star Theater Company presents this classic musical. With equal measures of pluck and positivity, little orphan Annie charms everyone's hearts, despite a next-to-nothing start in 1930s New York City. The production actually features two complete casts with 206 performers sharing performances. Showtimes are Friday and Saturday, August 9-10 at 7 p.m. as well as Saturday and Sunday Matinee performances at 2 p.m. For tickets or more information, visit www.risingstartheatrecompany.com.

Motherhood: The Musical
August 9-25
Bell Tower Theatre

Having a baby is just the beginning. Motherhood is forever... Motherhood: the Musical takes you on a sidesplitting roller coaster ride through the universal stresses and everyday exhilarations of being a mom. It's about laughing and crying, craziness and calm, smiles and tears...and all before breakfast. This funny yet touching new musical is a must see for anyone who is, has or knows a mom. The production runs from August 9 - 26 and with performances Thursdays at 7:30 pm, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m., and Sundays at 3 p.m.. Take advantage of early bird special dates, August 9 & 10 when tickets are just $9.50 and a special added performance on Wednesday, August 21 at 7:30 p.m. Bell Tower Theater is located at 2728 Asbury Rd. in Dubuque. Tickets are $19 online at www.belltowertheater.net. Ski Bellevue Waterski Show

Mineral Points Gallery Nights
August 3, December 7

Now in its thirteenth year, Mineral Point galleries are open until 9 pm on the first Saturdays in April, June, August and December. You will always find a remarkable assortment of fine art and quality hand-made craft: ceramics, collage, furniture, glass, jewelry, painting, photography, printmaking, sculpture, fiber, and woodworking – much of it made right in town. Most of the galleries are located in the downtown business district filled with historic architecture, delicious dining venues, and engaging gallery owners. Walking from gallery to gallery on these evenings is one of the best ways to enjoy Mineral Point. A Map identifying the participating galleries and restaurants will be available at most galleries. Gary's Grafitti Nights
George and Dale's, East Dubuque
Thursday's, 6 p.m.

Summer is the season for classic cars and the place to be on Thursday nights is Gary's Grafitti Nights at George and Dale's in Downtown East Dubuque, IL. We say George and Dale's but the truth is that this show takes up just about the whole Sinsinawa Ave. Strip, some side streets and a big parking lot to boot. It's a big show for a weekly event. Every Thursday Night, May 17th - Sept 13, classic cruise into East Dubuque for, now the 30th year of Grafitti Nights! The event is free to spectators and George and Dales outdoor garden is open serving great food including some killer homemade brats. For those who wish to participate, Registration is at 6 p.m. for cars and trucks from 1972 and before. For more information contact Gary at 563-557-9440.

by Heather O'Neil

July 19 – October 27

Members Preview Reception: Friday, August 9, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Dubuque Museum of Art

Marvel at the scale and get lost in the details of works by Tom Nakashima in the newest exhibition at Dubuque Museum of Art. Using printmaking, painting, collage, and drawing accompanied by sculpture and video, Tom Nakashima brings works of unprecedented scale to the museum of art, the largest being almost 10 feet high by 30 feet wide. The exhibition, titled Nature Morte, presents 10 of Nakashima's works inspired by treepiles. Learn more about Tom Nakashima and his artwork during his lecture at the museum on Sunday, August 11th at 1:30 PM. Admission is free for the lecture.

Twelve luminous portraits by emerging Dubuque artist, Heather O'Neil, are on view beginning July 19, 2013 in Dubuque Museum of Art's McNamer Gallery. O'Neil is a realist artist who specializes in pastel portraits. The clarity and deceptive simplicity of her portraits is refreshing. A self taught artist, O'Neil persevered through years of dedication to her training, developing a masterful technical ability coupled with an acute sense of composition and beauty.

A Members Preview Reception for both shows will be held Friday, August 9, 2013 from 5:30-7:30 PM. Anyone that is not a museum member but would like to attend the reception can sign-up for a membership at the door. The exhibition opens to the public on Saturday, August 10th at 1:00 PM.

University of Dubuque's Heritage Center

By Mike Ironside

With the University of Dubuque's recent announcement of Live at Heritage Center, a series of signature events at the school's new performing arts and campus center, and an upcoming Open House, the 365 crew took the opportunity to tour the facility and learn a bit more about the facility and the upcoming series from Heritage Center Executive Director, Tom Robbins.

"The Heritage Center is kind of a combination of buildings," explained Robbins at the beginning of our tour. "It's a student center and a performing arts center. You'll find as you walk throughout the building that it isn't evenly split down the middle, it's very intentionally integrated. The idea is that students who are walking through the building on their day-to-day activities, whether it's visiting the convenience store or café or going to get their mail or the ice cream parlor, that they will observe artistic activities as they are going throughout the building."

Robbins pointed out interior windows that provide a view from the hallway into the theaters' scene shop so passing students can observe sets being built. Likewise, students passing outside the building can see other arts activities being practiced inside the structure's huge exterior windows.

"If people are going from the north part of campus to the south part of campus, this is going to be kind of their connector, if you will. It's really the central hub of campus," noted Robbins. "So they pass by the choir classroom and hear the choir singing, or the art gallery downstairs, which is just adjacent to the café and see an art exhibit. Our band room up front is surrounded by floor to ceiling windows so people walking by will see a rehearsal in progress. Hopefully, that will pique their curiosity enough to want to come in and listen. UD sort of prides itself on attracting first-generation college students, some of which don't have a lot of exposure to the various forms of art, so we figure this is a chance to establish that appreciation before they go off into the 'real' world."

As Robbins noted, the approximately 80,000 square foot facility was designed to integrate the functions of day-to-day student life – with a Cybercafé and lounge, convenience store, ice cream parlor, and campus mail/copy/print center – with an expanding focus on the fine and performing arts. Interspersed between the main theater hall and smaller black box theater, are classrooms, practice rooms, including dedicated choral music and instrumental rehearsal rooms, a visual arts classroom and an art gallery.

The functional spaces serve the University's new fine and performing arts major, a recent addition to the curriculum, which along with the Heritage Center itself, underlines the school's renewed commitment to the arts.

"We have a fine and performing arts major, which is very broad-based but (students) can pick an emphasis. It can be an emphasis in music – choral or instrumental – or it could be theater, dance, we're working on a visual arts component as well," explained Robbins. "This building is kind of the reverse of what you would see with most institutions, where they were building to meet a need. We're building to create a need. The arts at UD at one time were a very integral part of the university and then the university went through a series of changes and the arts were eliminated. Starting in the early part of this century, they gradually started to rebuild the arts program. This building is kind of the end of the strategic plan. Now it's time for a new vision for the next ten, twenty, thirty years. But the arts obviously are becoming more core to the mission of the university at this point."

That renewed focus on the arts is reflected in the design for the Heritage Center, with its integrated campus life and arts components. While the larger spaces in the facility are designed to host public performances and exhibitions, Robbins envisions much of the smaller spaces as a hands-on "laboratory" for arts students to explore and learn their craft.

"I think a lot of it is kind of part of the university's mission is to develop the whole person," offers Robbins. "We have had a significant emphasis on athletics and on other areas of the University but the arts are vital to a liberal arts core curriculum. We want to bring it into balance. Again, if people can walk out of the university with at least an appreciation (for the arts), it will enhance the rest of their lives."

That commitment to enhancing the role of the arts in students' lives is matched by a broader goal of offering arts experiences to the entire community. "First and foremost our primary focus is how we can enhance campus life through the arts and then secondary to that is how we can do outreach into the community and how we can provide a quality of life enhancement for the community, as well," explained Robbins. "We will be starting a small series of events where we are bussing school children in for performances. We are going to take 'The Very Hungry Caterpillar,' 'Charlotte's Web' and actually the taiko group too – we're going to do school day performances where we're bussing kids in, along with the public performances."

Those public performance and exhibition spaces open the Heritage Center and indeed, the University of Dubuque campus to more interaction with the broader Dubuque community. Configurable to a variety of functions, the 200-250 seat Babka Black Box Theater can host theater events, from traditional to experimental, as well as dance and other performance. "Black box is a very flexible space," noted Robbins. "I think the architect came up with five different configurations on how to do seating in here."

While the entire structure, inside and out is something to behold, the gem of the Heritage Center has to be the main theater, John and Alice Butler Hall. With fixed seating for 953, the hall has some additional space that allows extra seats to be added to accommodate 1000. The theater has a configurable orchestra pit that can accommodate up to 50 musicians and function in the traditional recessed manner or be raised to the level of the stage. The hall itself can be "tuned" acoustically to a certain extent, using the orchestra shell on stage and giant curtains along the sidewalls.

"They originally had plans to fit 1200 seats in the room and somewhere along the line – I don't know if it was an architectural decision, I think it came from our campus folks that for us, comfort is key," explained Robbins of the theater seating. "People are coming to performances, we want to be bigger than the typical. There's good acoustics, there's great viewing; you don't have any obstructions. People have said it's very comfortable, it's very welcoming, it's very warm and inviting. It just has a lot of features that just draw you in and that's the idea. It's all about the experience. If they have one good experience, we know they'll be back."

Adjacent to the airy, open atrium space of the south entry is a historical display, which illustrates the 160 years of the school's existence from the founding by Rev. Adrian Van Vliet to the completion of the Heritage Center. Video monitors display a time lapse video of the two-year construction of the center. The display was designed and built by Jeff Westrom of J.W. Morton and Associates of Cedar Rapids (you probably know his work from the Platinum and Roshek Buildings, as well as the Star Brewery) who was able to use the University's extensive archive of materials and artifacts in the display.

sure that they have the best possible experience. They cut a couple hundred seats out. So the idea wasn't 'Let's try to jam in as many as we can and try to sell as many tickets as we can.' Really, comfort was very important. The seats are a little wider than a typical theater seat. The aisles are a little

"There was a book written a few years ago called 'The Child of the Church,' and so the authors of that did a really good job of writing the story, first of all, but also finding the best photography," Westrom shared. "I came to the project, really, with an optimum situation, where unlike the Star or Roshek's – where we had to hunt for stuff all the time – this stuff was all readily available."

The display overlooks the Heritage Center's Bisignano Art Gallery. One of the gallery's two glass walls faces the hall adjacent to the Cybercafé, again offering students and guests an opportunity to experience art directly. The gallery currently hosts an exhibition of intaglio prints by noted Iowa City printmaker Mauricio Lasansky from his Great Thinker Series.

Designed by Straka Johnson Architects, the Heritage Center is not only a brilliant study in functionally integrative spaces but a beautiful expression of art in itself. An architectural motif of five horizontal lines representing a musical staff is featured in a variety of design elements throughout the structure. Another curving motif, suggestive of a treble clef or the body of violin or cello continues the music theme in the building's larger curvilinear shapes and smaller details. The building's main south-facing entrance on Bennett Street overlooks the university's Chalmers Field, with a drive-up awning reminiscent of the lid to a grand piano. A palette of earth tones gives the various spaces a warm, inviting feel and blends harmoniously with the brick and stone of the existing buildings on campus.

Robbins, a Hempstead graduate with a masters in arts administration, accepted the role of Heritage Center Executive Director in August 2012 after 12 years of managing another multipurpose art center with a 600-seat theater, art gallery, a school of the arts in Hartford, Wisconsin, near Milwaukee. He's clearly excited about the new Live at Heritage Center series of events, as well as the potential the facility holds.

"We've got nine touring events this year and I'm hoping to see that grow. I'm hoping to complement other things that are going on in the community," Robbins said. "The intent is not to bring in what the Moon Bar brings in or not to bring in even what the Grand Opera House is doing. We want to do programming that complements what they are doing, find a niche in the community and the niche is something that has curricular ties with what we're doing on campus but also has some broader appeal."

In addition to the Live at Heritage Center series of touring shows, the facility will host performances by the University of Dubuque's Fine And Performing Arts Department as well as performances both opening and closing its season by the Dubuque Symphony Orchestra. For more information about the Heritage Center and upcoming performances, visit www.dbq.edu/fineperformingarts. Find details on the 2013-2014 season on the next page!

Heritage Center Open House Wednesday, August 7

Curious to see the University of Dubuque's new Heritage Center in person? The University of Dubuque will host a public open house of the new performing arts, worship, and campus center on Wednesday, August 7, from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., featuring live entertainment, building tours, complimentary refreshments, door prizes, and an early opportunity to purchase individual event tickets. Those unable to attend the Wednesday, August 7 open house will not be able to purchase individual tickets via phone or in-person at the box office window until Friday, August 16. A variety of ticket giveaways will occur throughout the evening including a grand prize of a CenterStage subscription series ticket package valued at $203.00.

Entertainment offerings include UD Associate Professor of Music Dr. Charles Barland performing on the new 9-foot, Steinway concert grand piano, a jazz combo led by UD jazz instructor Bill Encke in the Cybercafé, and the Babka Theatre hosting a variety of short theater and dance pieces. Tour guides will be strategically located throughout the facility to provide insights and answer questions about particular areas of the facility.

Live at Heritage Center 2013-2014 Inaugural Performing Arts Series

The University of Dubuque recently announced the launch of its newest performing arts initiative, Live at Heritage Center. The new performing arts series features nine professional guest artist performances selected from today's international touring circuit. The season debuts with Doc Severinsen, of Tonight Show fame, on Saturday, September 21. The series includes two performances specifically tailored to family audiences with young children, and a bonus event, Christmas at Heritage Center – the University's newest annual holiday celebration. All 2013-2014 Live at Heritage Center performances occur in Heritage Center's signature venue, John and Alice Butler Hall, with a seating capacity of 1000 patrons.

According to Heritage Center Executive Director, Thomas Robbins, "Besides our celebrity season opener, this new series takes audiences on journeys to Ireland, Scotland, England, Africa, and Japan through the variety of artists we have booked. From musical nostalgia, to theatrical drama, to family fun, there is truly something for everyone."

Saturday, Sept 21, 7:30 p.m. Doc Severinsen & His Big Band: "Once More With Feeling!"

"Heeeeere's Johnny!" That lead-in, followed by a big band trumpet blast, was the landmark of late night TV for three decades. Trumpeter Doc Severinsen is perhaps the most iconic band leader as Johnny Carson's leader of the "Tonight Show Band." Named after his best-selling recording, this concert features Doc's 17-piece band and an amazing vocalist.

Friday, October 11, 7:30 p.m. Jim Witter's "The Piano Men" featuring the music of Billy Joel & Elton John

A special Homecoming event! The Piano Men is a musical celebration of the 1970s – year by year, hit by hit – from the songs of Billy Joel and Elton John performed by Dove Award and Canadian Juno Award nominee, Jim Witter and his band.

Sunday, November 3, 2:00 p.m. Ensemble Galilei: "First Person: Seeing America"

Hailed for its unique blend of Irish, Scottish, early and original music, Ensemble Galilei creates an inspired sound on stage and CD. First Person: Seeing America takes audiences on an innovative journey combining the spoken word, music, and projected iconic images from The Metropolitan Museum of Art featuring the Civil War, the Great Depression, and more. Two professional actors narrate the program.

Saturday, December 14, 7:00 p.m. Christmas at Heritage Center: "On This Day Earth Shall Ring"

Following in the spirit of 15 years of Christmas on the Quad, the University celebrates the birth of Christ through this dynamic concert production featuring choral, instrumental, and dance performances by UD's Fine and Performing Arts Department. Free Admission!

Monday, February 3, 7:30 p.m.
The King's Singers: The Great American Songbook
One of the world's most celebrated a cappella vocal ensembles, The 2009 Grammy Award-winning King's Singers are instantly recognizable for their spot-on intonation, impeccable vocal blend, flawless articulation, and a delightfully British wit, featuring the music of Harold Arlen, George Gershwin, Cole Porter, and Irving Berlin, and more.

Sunday, Feb 16, 2:00 p.m.
Mermaid Theatre of Nova Scotia presents
"The Very Hungry Caterpillar & Other Eric Carle Favorites"
After much demand, that little caterpillar is returning, along with an assortment of favorite puppet characters. The triple-bill includes the story of The Very Hungry Caterpillar's metamorphosis into a beautiful butterfly; Little Cloud's travels through the sky, and the Mixed-Up Chameleon's discovery of his own unique nature.

Tuesday, February 25, 7:30 p.m.
Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451 performed by Aquila Theater of New York
Ray Bradbury's riveting tale of society where literature and knowledge are on the edge of extinction. The story has been debated for decades – issues of censorship, the effects of technology on society and literature.

Wednesday, March 12, 7:30 p.m.
Soweto Gospel Choir
Experience the beautiful songs of joy, peace, and hope, from the Grammy Award-winning South African Gospel choir. The 26-voice Soweto Gospel Choir has achieved international fame by enchanting audiences with their glorious voices, energetic dancing, vibrant costumes, and an exuberant spirit that fills up the heart.

Friday, March 28, 7:00 p.m.
Charlotte's Web by Theatreworks USA
Theatreworks' production of E.B. White's loving story of the friendship between a pig named Wilbur and a little gray spider named Charlotte. This treasured tale, featuring mad-cap and endearing farm animals, explores bravery, selfless love, and the true meaning of friendship.

Friday, April 4, 7:30 p.m.
San Jose Taiko, Japanese power drumming
San Jose Taiko (SJT) has been mesmerizing audiences with the powerful, spellbinding and propulsive sounds of the taiko drums for 40 years. Inspired by traditional Japanese drumming, SJT performers express the beauty and harmony of the human spirit through the voice of the taiko as they strive to create new dimensions in music.

The 7-event CenterStage Series package offers the best value including a host of subscriber benefits. Discounted CenterStage Series subscription orders forms are being accepted electronically now via fax, mail, and email, and via phone or in-person at the Farber Box Office beginning Monday, August 5. The Horde, Dredge

The Lift, Fri Aug 2, 9 PM / $5

Unleashed in 2008, "From Empire to Ashes" consisted of 6 epic, metal classics that took the listener on a journey into dark forbidden realms and all the way to the hallowed gates of Valhalla. Songs of bravery in battle, demonic warriors, clan warfare, and bewitchment that would inspire any true warrior on the fields of battle. Since 2008, Dredge have been hitting the Midwest hard with progressive metal, blood curdling screams, and pummeling rhythms. They recently inked arecord deal with the mighty Abyss Records for their 3rd release due late next year in 2013...

Frank Bang and the Secret Stash

The Lift, Saturday, August 3, 9pm / $5

Frank Bang describes his new album, Double Dare, as "driving music – something to get you from point A to point B." For this 11-song thrill ride of a disc, that's got a double meaning. Songs like the slamming title track and the spanking riff rocker, "Lose Control," certainly keep the pedal to the floor, but more contemplative numbers, like the slide guitar ballad, "Wonder Woman," and the celebration of life's simple joys, "This Is What It's All About," also bridge the points between life's connections – romance, family, joy. "The things you really need to get you from point A to point B," Bang observes, chuckling.

Bang's own journey has had many stops on his way to becoming a vibrant songwriter-guitarist and frontman, including a five-year apprenticeship as guitar foil for blues legend Buddy Guy. And they all fuel Double Dare, a set that finds Bang at the creative zenith of his composing and performing powers, riding a raw and original line with his band the Secret Stash straight through the rock, blues and country that he's absorbed as a musical traveler.

"There isn't one thing on this album that isn't true," Bang relates. "There are stories about my family, about my life and experiences, about things that have struck me as funny or interesting. Even the guitar sound goes right back to the buzz I got plugging an electric guitar in for the first time – getting that real pure tone and letting it rip." Frank Bang & The Secret Stash have opened for Johnny Winter, Dickey Betts, Umphrey's McGee, Dick Dale, Hank Williams Jr, Galactic, Little Feat, Back Door Slam to name a few.

Comedians Tom Garland, Trenton Orris & Shawn McGee

erone!, Friday, August 2, 9:30, $5

Cedar Rapids comedian Tom Garland will be hitting the erone! stage in a show here in his native Iowa. After shows in Las Vegas opening up for Steve-O and Tom Green, as well as shows at legendary comedy clubs across the country, Garland will be bringing his self-aware brand of comedy to Dubuque. From the cornfield to the stage and back again, Garland is expected to take it in stride and come out on top, crowds laughing the entire way. Opening up will be Trenton Orris and Dubuque native Shawn McGee. The 21+ comedy show will begin at 9:30, so get there early to grab a seat.

Sweet Chariot, Fetal Pig, Legal Fingers

erone!, Sat., August 3, 10PM, No Cover

In the awesome, drunken, usually-puking tradition of killer Iowa City bands doing

Single Cut PRS SE $429.99 w/gig bag	Epiphone Les Paul Classic $299.99	5 piece drum workshop kit, w/ stand & pedals, $2499	Epiphone SG $259 w/case	Epiphone Les Paul Goth - flat black, $339
Vox VT 50, $225	Gibson Les Paul Studio Deluxe w/hardshell case $999	Fender Strat $289	All NEW Mapex 500 series cymbal boom stands HALF PRICE!!!	NEW: 5 piece poplar shell Astro by Tave beginner drum set... $299.99
Gretsch 6520 $529 w/gig bag	Ampeg 212 Reverberocket "all Tubes" Amp - $225		Roland 80X Amp $229

The cool thing they do on a Dubuque stage comes a band featuring members who are ready to do it again, together, and even louder. Sweet Chariot is the money spot between a speed trap and a bear trap, doom the genre and Doom the video game. ZZ Top wouldn't need vocals or choruses either if they had riffs this big going into riffs even bigger. Opening will be Des Moines noise rockers Fetal Pig, bringing the Kennedys back to life and then killing them again. Also playing will be local shirtless schlock rock band Legal Fingers. This melting pot of rock riffs and high kicks begins at 10PM, is 21+ and is cover free.

Yabba Griffiths

Jumpers, Friday, August 9, 9 p.m.

Reggae fans, take note: Jumpers brings the real deal to Dubuque, hosting Jamaican reggae and SuCram Records recording artist Yabba Griffiths Friday, August 9. Considered to be one of "the hardest working men in reggae," Griffiths was inducted into the Reggae Walk of Fame in 2006. A multi-talented musician whose repertoire includes vocalist, songwriter, performer, arranger, band leader, guitarist and producer, Marcus Yabba Griffiths is always touring and recording, releasing works on Myjaki Records and his own Su-Cram Records label. As a studio musician guitar player, he has worked with many of the greatest musicians and singers of Jamaica.

The no cover Jumpers appearance is part of Griffiths' 2013 summer tour.

Jack Russell's Great White w/ Crystal Leather

Sandy Hook Tavern, Sat., August 10, 7 p.m.

The day starts with the 4th Annual Mighty Mississippi HOGG Chapter Hope Ride for M.D.A. before arriving at the Hook where there will be a live and silent auction, Harley giveaway, and then Great White featuring Jack Russell and Crystal Leather take the stage. You know Crystal Leather, Dubuque's favorite tribute to hard rock from the 80's. And you definitely know Great White. Fronted by original lead singer Jack Russell, his incarnation of the band will bring a hefty roster of blues-filled rock anthems from Great White's long career including hits like "Once Bitten, Twice Shy", "Big Goodbye" and "Rock Me", but also all of those cult favorites from "Call It Rock and Roll", "Save Your Love", "Mista Bone", "House of Broken Love" and more. $20 advance tickets can be purchased at Dubuque Harley Davidson. Moondog Music and The Sandy Hook Tavern, or $25 at the event.

Tijuana Hercules, The Mittens

Eronel, Sat., August 10, 10PM, No Cover

Tijuana Hercules are near the blues, but not at it. Knocking on the garage door instead of behind it. The songs are like the instruments they play: broken and strangled and part of battle whenever possible. There's a fiddle and a guitar and some nasty old drums, and the sound they make is from the biggest tin can you can find, all the empty space filled with cheap whiskey and cheaper beans. Also playing will be The Mittens, whose rock has been tempered with time and heartbreak and served up with twang. Another 10PM start time down at Eronel means it's a 21+ show and also free of charge.

Trophy Wives, Victory and Associates, Young Indian

The Lift, Wednesday August 14, 9 p.m.

Victory and Associates is indie rock that actually rocks, rock that actually rolls. This is to say that the music is familiar territory: loose tunes for tight nights. There are anthems and hooks and a depth to it all, not just the party, but the thought about the party. Along with them will be

Trophy Wives, who prove that riffs can just be riffs if you do them loud enough, long enough, and hard enough, and when stacked upon one another form a dark boogie that consumes everything around it. Opening will be local instrumental rock band Young Indian.

Rockin' on the River Musicfest featuring Switchback

with Doug & Lisa Frey

Cascade Amphitheater, Fri., Aug. 16, 6 p.m.

For over two decades, the musical partnership of Brian FitzGerald and Martin McCormack has been entertaining audiences around the world with their unique American roots music blended with celtic soul. On Friday, August 16th, they'll bring their live show to the Cascade, IA Amphitheater. Gates open at 5 p.m. and the concert starts at 6 p.m. Tickets are just $10 in advance at Lyons Service Center or call 563-852-3432. You can also get $13 tickets at the gate. Bring your own coolers and lawn chairs. Food vendors will be on site.

Beauty & The Beef

by Rich Belmont

If you are in Dubuque and you are looking for a new place to pick up a quick, inexpensive, delicious lunch you are in luck! That's because Dubuque's first food truck is probably just around the corner. Beauty & The Beef has been operating in and around the city since April and already has a following of 1,442 likes (and still counting) on Facebook. It's easy to see why. The sandwiches are all made from fresh ingredients, cooked to order and served hot.

Dan Kordell, Kathy Kordell and Teri Link

Beauty & The Beef is the brainchild of longtime friends Kathy Kordell, an attorney and Teri Link, a former Director of Junior Achievement. Neither one of them has previous food service experience but they both have 4 kids and are used to cooking for large groups. In fact, Teri has hosted a number of parties for more than 50 people at a time; she loves to cook and she is really good at it.

The two moms knew the people of Dubuque were ready to enjoy the culinary delights already provided by food trucks in many major US cities. They carefully planned their operation for months before opening and even designed their own food truck. Well, OK, it's really a 14 foot by 7 foot trailer. It was built by a Florida company specializing in food service vehicles to Kathy's and Teri's specifications. It is a full commercial kitchen equipped with freezer, refrigerator, flat top griddle, four burner stove with oven, two basket fryer, three compartment sink, hand washing sink, hot water heater and food storage cabinets. The trailer is a restaurant on wheels and must conform to the same health and safety standards adhered to by all restaurants. There is a requirement all food must be prepared in the trailer and it is subject to inspection by Dubuque Health Services at any time.

Beauty & The Beef

HOURS: Approximately 11:15 am to 1:15 pm

Usually 3 days per week

See Facebook page for days and locations.

RECOMMENDATIONS: The Bombshell, Chicago Beauty, The Pin Up, Hula Girl, The Southern Belle, The Other Woman

PRICES: Most Sandwiches: $6.50

PAY OPTIONS: Cash, Debit, All Credit Cards, No Checks

TAKE OUT: Only CATERING: Yes

Beauty & the Beef operates two to three days per week and is usually open from 11:15 am to 1:15 pm. On the days it is serving lunch a message is posted on Facebook between 10 and 10:30 am advising their location. This late notice is necessary because Kathy and Teri must drive to their desired spot and make sure parking is available before they "drop anchor" as they like to say. By the way, this metaphor is appropriate. When three people are working in the trailer it has a tendency to rock and sway like a boat!

Now I know what you are thinking. You are probably saying what a cushy job these people have, they only work two hours a day, two or three days a week! Well, wait a minute. Actually kitchen prep begins at 8 am and cleanup isn't finished until about 5 pm. Then, too, there are private parties for local companies and groups on other days. It's also in the plan to be operating all year. Of course, a winter schedule will be weather permitting.

On most days there are about six lunches to choose from. There are a number of standard items and sometimes other sandwiches are put on the menu board to keep it interesting. The signature item is The Bombshell (all the sandwiches have catchy food truck names) with tender slow cooked specially seasoned pot roast placed between layers of melted pepper jack cheese and grilled on rustic country bread (above).

The Southern Belle is good old fashioned comfort food – grilled cheese sandwich consisting of bacon layered between slices of cheddar cheese. The Hula Girl is shredded chicken on provolone cheese topped with a pineapple ring, slivers of green apple and touch of balsamic vinegar on rustic bread.

On a recent visit I enjoyed The Other Woman. This is a great vegetarian sandwich of seasoned ripe tomato slices enclosed in a double layer of melted mozzarella on rustic bread. I overheard someone order this with bacon. Now I'm thinking this takes a great grilled cheese and tomato sandwich and elevates it to a food fit for a king! So guess what I'm ordering next time!

The Pin Up is on the menu by popular demand. Tasty pulled pork, bacon and a little spicy Chorizo sausage are stuffed into 2 soft flour tortillas and topped with crisp coleslaw, salsa verde and crumbled Mexican cheese.

The menu is always subject to change. Supplies on a mobile food truck are limited. And sometimes new entrées or stand-by specials are available. For example they might have The Hot Chick shredded chicken with fresh Bruschetta served on romaine. Or maybe the Hey Baby Doll which is two slammers filled with tender slow-cooked pulled pork smothered in homemade BBQ sauce.

My favorite is called Chicago Beauty (above). Thinly sliced Italian beef is dipped in a flavorful au jus and placed on a bed of provolone cheese on a Chicago style roll.

There are also some tantalizing sides you can add to your order. These include French fries, fried pickle spears and these wonderful jack and bleu cheese sticks.

Gluten-free bread is also on hand if you need it.

Beauty & The Beef is available to cater private parties, birthdays, company picnics, family reunions and weddings. If you are planning one of these or similar events you should know several options are possible. For example, you can specify menu items and have your guests pick up their food whenever they want. Or you can use a ticket system to better control costs. Your guests simply present tickets for items they desire. Or you can specify dinner entrees to be served at a designated time. No matter how you plan your party your caterer brings not only the food to your location but the whole kitchen as well.

Be sure to look for Beauty & The Beef at these upcoming events:

River Museum Plaza, Port of Dubuque

Summerfest Dubuque – Aug 9
Town Clock Plaza

Summer's Last Blast – Aug 23 & 24

You will no doubt see me at the Beauty & The Beef trailer at all these happenings. After all, I'm a traveling foodie and their motto is "Hot Delicious Food on Wheels"!

I Am Love Campaign

September 2-8

Various Locations

Better Together Dubuque, Sustainable Dubuque, and 108 Productions announced details of the premiere launch of the I AM Love Campaign's National Tour at Five Flags Theater and Mindframe Theaters Sept 2-8, 2013.

The week-long Campaign events include performances of 108 Productions' internationally acclaimed production of Terrence McNally's CORPUS CHRISTI, screenings of their new documentary CORPUS CHRISTI: PLAYING WITH REDEMPTION, Dubuque Diversity Dialogue open-forum with local leaders, and the I AM Love Awards.

Through a combination screening of the film, performances of the play, and educational outreach, The I AM Love Campaign's Vision is to facilitate a conversation on acceptance and tolerance of all creeds, ages, races, orientations, and genders by allowing a deeper connection to self-love, knowing from this place of awareness real change will manifest.

More info can be found online at www.corpuschristi-themovie.com and watch for much more on this campaign launch in the next issue of 365ink.

Schedule of Events:

September 2-8: CORPUS CHRISTI w/ REDEMPTION screenings at MindFrame

Thursday, Sept 5- 7 p.m.: VIP/Sponsor Reception Gala at Eronel on Main St., I AM Love Awards at 8 p.m.

Friday, Sept 6, 8 p.m.: CORPUS CHRISTI play performance, Five Flags Theater

Sunday, Sept 8, 1 p.m.: CORPUS CHRISTI play performance, Five Flags Theater, 3:30 p.m. followed by open forum.

coming to theaters :

The Smurfs 2 (PG) Now Playing
The Smurfs are back in 3-D and yadda, yadda, yadda.

2 Guns (August 1)
Two crooked undercover officers unknowingly lead investigations on the other in this crime thriller Mark Wahlberg, Denzel Washington, and Bill Paxton star.

Percy Jackson: Sea of Monsters (Aug 7) (PG)
Based on the book series, the story continues with the young demigod's epic journey to fulfill his destiny.

We're the Millers (August 7) (R)
Jason Sudeikis is a small-time pot dealer deep in debt who enlists a stripper (Jennifer Aniston), a pot head and a streetwise teen as a fake family to smuggle the mother load across the border.

Planes (August 9) (PG)
From above the world of "Cars" comes "Disney's Planes," an action-packed 3D animated comedy adventure featuring Dusty a plane with dreams of competing as a high-flying air racer. Sounds familiar.

Elysium (August 9) (Not yet rated)
In the year 2154, two classes of people exist: the very wealthy, who live on a pristine man-made space station called Elysium, and the rest, who live on an overpopulated, ruined planet. The only man with the chance to bring equality to these worlds is Max (Matt Damon), an ordinary guy in desperate need to get to Elysium to save his wife. (Jodie Foster also stars).

MOVIE BUZZ

Paul Schrader, cast Lindsay Lohan and porn star James Deen for the upcoming "The Canyons", has cast Nicolas Cage in his next thriller The Dying Of The Light. The film centers on a CIA agent who, on his final mission before gettin' too old for this sh*t, ends up already being too old for this sh*t.

Disney and Harvey Weinstein are mending fences and will team up again to produce an adaptation of Eoin Colfer's Artemis Fowl children's series about a uber-smart kid sort of bent on talking over the world.

Scott Alexander and Larry Karaszewski, writers of such real-life oddball stories as Ed Wood, The People vs. Larry Flynt, and Man on the Moon, have been hired to now transcribe the history of John McAfee, the wild-eyed anti-virus pioneer still wanted in Belize for questioning in a murder.

Christopher Walken is attached to Clint Eastwood's Jersey Boys adaptation. We assume it's musical? So maybe we'll get a solo dance scene from Walken who actually is an avid song and dance man.

The Beverly Hills Cop series pilot didn't get picked up by CBS, so, Eddie Murphy will reportedly do it himself, agreeing to reprise the role of Axel Foley in a fourth Beverly Hills Cop film. It's not apparent if the film will follow a previous re-start attempt's discarded pilot's premise, with Axel promoted to chief of police over his cop son, but you can probably at least count on a more convincing CGI Bronson Pinchot.

Lance Armstrong's story is now coming to screens in three separate films with Jay Roach, J.J. Abrams and now Stephen Frears reportedly working up their own versions of the big fat liar's life. Frears' version has cast Ben Foster in the lead role.

Newcomer Michael B. Jordan will play Apollo Creed's son in, wait for it... Creed! Stallone agreed to produce and co-star in the film, playing a reitre Rocky, out of boxing altogether, but talked into training to boy.

The Skin of Our Teeth

by pam kress-dunn

There's nothing better than a real summer tomato, raised outside your doorstep or on a local farm. When you see those round red globes on tables at the farmers' market, you know summer is really here. But every time I slice one up for dinner, I get homesick for my mom's kitchen. It wasn't so much what she did with the tomatoes she grew – we mainly had them sliced, then sprinkled with salt and pepper, or, when that got boring, with sugar. It was the fact that she served them peeled that made them utter perfection.

I know a lot of nutrition-mad foodies say you have to eat the skin of any fruit or vegetable to get all the vitamins and enzymes and Super Magic Crystals inside the produce in question. It makes me feel like the little boy in "The Emperor's New Clothes" any time I point out, to a dining companion, that the skin of the most glorious tomatoes is tough. I find myself cutting the slices into bite-size pieces to avoid having to grind away at the skin with what's left of the sharp edges of my teeth. This is especially problematic when serving a BLT. Excuse me, please, while I attempt to bite into this slice of tomato, leaving only a BL behind.

The easy way to skin a tomato is by scoring an X into the bottom and then immersing it briefly into boiling water. Once retrieved and cooled under cold water, the skin slips right off. Easy, but who wants to boil water when it's 85 degrees in the kitchen even with the AC blasting?

We didn't have air conditioning when I was growing up, and even if Mom knew about this cheater-peeling tip, she would have scorned it. All she needed was her paring knife. Some people in my family may be tired of hearing this, but my mom was a genius with a knife. With that little straightedge, she could take the skin off anything in a trice – tomato, potato, turnip, tangerine. Well, no, not a tangerine; those are self-peeling fruits, bless their little hearts.

Everything else, though, she could strip down just like that.

Me, I have to resort to one of those apple corer-peelers if I want an apple pie. It's a great little device, and I find it hard to stop peeling once I've got it set up, but if Mom were here, she'd laugh. Then, I suppose, she would sigh to see her daughter, all thumbs in the kitchen, using peelers and mandolines or, God forbid, an electric food processor just to skin a carrot. Sorry, Mom. I guess it wasn't in the genes.

I think, sometimes, it was just as much in the knife as in her genome. Mom had a giant butcher knife she used for other tasks, like cutting up a whole chicken in about the time it takes me to eat a drumstick. That knife was so cool, it had its own little bed to rest in, crafted out of wood by my dad. Any time it became dull, she would holler, "Harold! The knife needs sharpening!" and he would run it down to his basement workshop, where he honed it with some kind of power tool until it could slice a nickel in half. I never tested this; I just knew it must be true.

Julia Child knew the value of a good knife. Not only did it make her a great chef and the author of an amazing cookbook which even I can cook from (just try my cherry clafouti sometime), it was the basis for one of her deepest friendships. The whole saga is laid out in the 2010 book "As Always, Julia," a delicious collection of letters between

Child and Avis DeVoto, whose husband, Bernard, wrote books and, most importantly, columns for newspapers and magazines that Julia read when her own husband's career landed them in Paris. Upon reading Mr. DeVoto's diatribe in Harper's about the infuriating American knife – beautiful, rust-proof, and also edge-proof (that is, unsharp-enable) – she took pity upon the man and sent him not only an admiring and sympathetic letter, but also a small French knife. Avis was her husband's letter handler, and thus began a world-class friendship, and a flurry of entertaining correspondence.

Julia, too, had been unable to sharpen her American knives, telling DeVoto, "I am therefore wondering if the average American housewife really wants a sharp knife in the kitchen, as many of my compatriots accuse me resentfully: 'But your knives are so sharp! They're dangerous!'"

Au contraire. Any chef knows it's a dull knife that's apt to debone the cook's finger, as she saws away ineffectually. A dull knife won't even cut into a tomato, let alone remove its skin. My mom did not consider herself much of a cook (although she was), but even she knew the importance of a honed edge.

Last weekend we made a trip to Madison, stopping at my favorite fruit/wine/cheese/what-have-you store for a first bag of what the store likes to call "chin-drippin' peaches." I sliced one up for lunch today, and while the flesh within was superlative in both flavor and texture, I wished my mom were around to cut off the unyielding skin.

She used to do that for us, before dropping slices onto vanilla ice cream for dessert. If we missed a bit of fiber, so what? There is something to be said for food that can be savored, not fought with. All it takes is a good knife, and a certain kind of skill. My mom an ordinary cook? Hardly. I wish you could have seen her peel a peach.

365 Wellness

by Dr. Lance M. Mahoney
 Doctor of Chiropractor

Cost Analysis:
 Medical Care Versus Chiropractic Care

With many variables that may take a role, a visit to the medical doctor's office can range from $60 to $300+. Even with insurance coverage, payments for medical office visits can still take a toll on your budget. A check up here, a flu bug there, some chicken pocks, a strange cough, you name it, those visits add up. Depending on the diagnosis, not only are you paying for the visit itself, but you also may leave with a prescription in which more money comes out of you and your family's budget due to your next purchase at the pharmacy.

Often people decide to go to the medical doctor due to pain. They then pay for a visit, only to leave with a prescription, which will only provide immediate relief from the pain, a.k.a instant gratification. The issue here is that the cause of the pain is never addressed, causing the individual to have such pain. This then could lead an individual to either get a refill on the prescription or perhaps visit that medical doctor again due to the chronic pain. For some, sadly this results in a possible addiction to prescription pain relief medicine.

An initial visit to the chiropractor can cost anywhere from $30 to $300, depending on the services provided. Many chiropractors offer discounts for their services such as reduced charges on x-rays, initial exams, spinal analysis, etc. A chiropractor's goal is to not only get you out of pain, but also to find the cause of the pain and be proactive in its prevention.

Please understand that chiropractic and its treatment for pain relief is only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to the benefits of chiropractic care.

The nerves in your body communicate messages from your brain to every single cell in your body. Also, organs in your body use nerves to communicate messages back to your brain. If bones in your spine are misaligned, interruption in those nerves occur, thus creating a lower percentage of communication from the brain to a organ or tissue cell.

Individuals often decide to visit a chiropractor because of the benefits they have heard of its treatment of symptoms. For instance, many will pay a visit to the chiropractor because they have heard of its treatment for sinus infections. This begs the question: Why visit a chiropractor for that? What does my spine have to do with my sinuses? My back doesn't hurt, why should I visit a chiropractor for that? The nerves in your neck communicate messages from the brain to your sinuses. To ensure efficient communication, a chiropractor can adjust subluxations (misalignments in the spine) which could be the cause of the sinus pain. This, like the chronic pain, may take time to go into affect, but the long term treatment can address the cause.

When doing your healthcare costs analysis, know that there are not only choices for how to manage your health, but also more affordable options. Choosing the chiropractic option versus the medical doctor visit can save money, prevent disease, effectively treat and prevent pain and much more.

Healthier Food-On-A-Stick with nutritionists
Megan Horstman & Amber Jaeger

The weather is hot and sticky and the smell of fried food is wafting through the air, which could only mean one thing... State Fair time! Food is a main attraction at many state fairs and food on-a-stick has become increasingly popular not only at State fairs but also on food trucks. Food on-a-stick is often deep-fried and has a reputation for being unhealthy. Traditionally popular items like deep-fried Twinkies, corn dogs, bacon on-a-stick and even deep-fried butter are often the first foods that come to mind when food-on-a-stick is mentioned. However, there are increasingly healthier options for food on-a-stick so even the most health-conscious won't miss out on this fun trend.

After visiting the State Fair or if you are unable to attend this year, you may feel inspired to make food-on-stick at home. There are many delicious, healthy recipes that skip the deep fryer. You can begin your day-on-a-stick by making breakfast-on-a-stick. Start by toasting a frozen waffle, cutting it into slices and skewering it along with strawberries and any other pieces of your favorite fruit. Fruit-on-a-stick is a great way to get a healthy snack into your day and a fun way for children to enjoy fruit. Adding a yogurt dipping sauce makes fruit-on-a-stick even more enjoyable.

Ditch the boring, traditional sandwich at lunchtime for a more exciting deconstructed sandwich-on-a-stick. Skewer deli turkey or chicken along with pieces of whole wheat bread, cheddar cheese cubes and grapes. There is also the "Elvis" version of a sandwich-on-a-stick; a peanut butter sandwich is cubed and threaded along with slices of banana. This could even be grilled to toast the bread and to melt the peanut butter and warm the banana. Even salad can be put on-a-stick by simply making iceberg lettuce chunks and adding diagonally cut carrot slices, cherry tomatoes and cucumber with the lettuce to a skewer - and dipping it into your favorite salad dressing. The possibilities are endless and sure to get your creativity flowing!

Oven-Fried Chicken-On-A-Stick
All you need:

- 1 tablespoon kosher salt
- 2 teaspoons paprika, divided
- 1 teaspoon onion powder, divided
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder, divided
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 1.5 lbs. boneless, skinless chicken breast
- 2 cups coarse dry whole wheat breadcrumbs
- 2 tablespoons canola oil
- 2 large egg whites
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- Freshly ground pepper, to taste

All you do:

- Combine kosher salt, 1 teaspoon paprika and ½ teaspoon onion powder and ½ teaspoon garlic powder in a large bowl. Add buttermilk and whisk until the salt is completely dissolved and the spices are dispersed in the liquid.
- Cut chicken lengthwise into about 1-inch-wide strips. Add to the marinade and combine for 30 minutes but no longer, so that the chicken does not get too salty.
- Combine breadcrumbs, the remaining 1 teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon onion powder and ½ teaspoon garlic powder in a large shallow dish. Add 2 tablespoons oil and toss well to coat.
- Whisk egg whites and mustard in a second large shallow dish and season both the breadcrumb and egg mixtures with pepper.
- Preheat oven to 350°F. Line a rimmed baking sheet with foil and thread chicken onto six 12-inch bamboo skewers, dividing evenly. Dip the chicken into the egg mixture, coating both sides. Place in the breadcrumb mixture one at a time, sprinkle with crumbs to cover and press so the coating sticks to both sides. Gently shake off any excess crumbs and place skewers on the prepared rack.
- Bake the chicken, turning halfway through, until golden brown and the juices run clear, about 25 minutes.
- Enjoy with your favorite dipping sauce!

Paradise Lost

By Bob Gelms

You can say a lot of things about Dan Brown's new novel Inferno and in a minute I will. One thing is perfectly clear. It hits the ground running like some kind of purposeful cheetah with only one thing in mind and that's to get to the end the quickest way possible. Along the way, if you can keep up, you are in for a wild ride.

It bears remembering that nothing is as it seems and no one is who they say they are. People are motivated by other than what they are telling you and even a benign institution like the World Health Organization (WHO) can take on sinister qualities.

You need to read Inferno with a modicum of care if you want to keep things straight.

Inferno is not unlike Dan Brown's other books. The main character, Robert Langdon, is presented with small mystery after small mysteries and he solves them one by one building a pyramid of information that leads him to a conclusion. It is only when standing on top of that pyramid that he and we can see the big picture and that happens, coincidentally enough, at the end of the book.

I am going to leave out any major plot summery because some things we are told in the beginning of the book are reversed later on to serve the final plot pieces. I will tell you this. The ending is one of the best endings I've read in a long time. It ends exactly how it should end. It ends exactly the way the whole book has been pointing toward. It is a very satisfying ending whether or not you like Dante or Milton or Dan Brown.

Dan Brown and Inferno have taken it on the chin relating to scathing critical reviews that point to the fact that Mr. Brown isn't much of a literary writer. Within reason I would have to agree. It's just that I don't care. I'm not looking for Dante's Inferno or John Milton's Paradise

Lost. I am looking for a wiz-bang thriller that hits the ground running catapulting itself forward at breakneck speed. Leaving me little room to take a breath and conjuring up these little puzzles that seem almost intellectual in nature and makes me feel a little like a scholar even though I didn't solve any of them.

I have never been to Italy although I have read Dante. I am not familiar with any of the buildings in the book beyond reading about them. I don't know many if any of the artwork that appears in the novel. I wasn't able to solve many if any of the puzzles presented to Langdon. One nice think about that, the solutions to the puzzles were very satisfying and easy to understand. I could readily see how they moved the plot forward. Mr. Brown made darn sure I was not left out.

As expected Inferno has sold massive numbers of copies, is on all the best sellers lists, and Tom Hanks is set to reprise his role as Robert Langdon in the movie version to come out at the end of this year or early next year.

I only have one thing to complain about. Inferno is too much of a good thing. There is too much subterfuge; too many clues; too many reversals; too many characters; too many bad guys; and, too many times Langdon is allowed to escape the clutches of the evil guys. If Mr. Brown had cut about 15% of these things I think he would have had a perfect thriller, something he is perfectly capable of writing. More is not always better. Even though a James Joyce he is not I liked Inferno and had a good time reading it and I think you will too.

You have an opportunity now to read the book before the movie comes out. My advice is to do just that since I can almost guarantee that the movie will be easier to understand after reading the book. As we are talking about the Inferno which is part of Dante's Divine Comedy it would do you well to arm yourself with as many weapons as possible so you will get the joke. The movie will never be as good as the book.

Elevator Buttons by matt booth

On my way to an appointment, I pushed the up arrow and was waiting for the elevator to reach ground floor. A guy came and pushed the already lit up elevator button; followed by a woman who pushed the already lit up button. Another guy approached the elevator and did the exact same thing! This guy didn't just push it once either, he kept on pushing the button as if the elevator speed increases the more he pushed the button. This madness didn't stop when we got on the elevator. After selecting his desired floor, this guy frantically continued to push the same button over and over with extreme vigor as though it would hasten his arrival.

On my way down the elevator, I had the pleasure of riding with the "close door" button dude. You know the person that continually pushes the "close door" button. I don't even know if this button works or if it is a placebo button. The doors really don't seem to close any faster when button is pushed over and over. The "close door" button sure gave this guy the illusion of control.

While reflecting on these button pushing dudes, I realized that I often approach my life in a similar fashion. I prefer to do something (even when it is wrong) rather than waiting or accepting situations the way they are. Patience is not necessarily one of my virtues. When I have a question, I want an answer – now. When I encounter a problem, I want to solve it – now. Waiting for others or accepting situations almost feels like submission or surrender. When I want something to change, I move, force, struggle, and rush around pushing already lit up buttons.

We have goals and often expect things to happen faster than they really should. There will always be transitions and new levels in our personal and professional lives. We've all been standing in the lobby, wanting to get into the elevator, and aspiring to reach new heights. No matter how much we want something to happen, we don't always have control over how long it will take. Life doesn't always go the direction we want and we are not always delivered to the correct destination. And yes, even occasionally, we get stuck between floors. But the buttons we push give us a feeling of control. They provide the illusion that we are really making things happen and always have the ability to influence the outcomes.

Even when you feel like your diet, exercise, relationships, finances, career, or growth just aren't happening fast enough or are out of control, sometimes all you can do is push the button it and wait.

TRIXIE KITSCH

BAD ADVICE FOR THE STUPID

Dear Trixie:

I think my boyfriend is cheating on me. He takes late night calls and tries to hide his phone at night when we go to sleep. He never used to be secretive and distant. I haven't asked him because I think if he admits he's interested in other women it might kill me. I don't think I can live without him. The pain of the thought is almost too much to bear. My work is suffering at my job and I have lost a bunch of weight. Is there something I can do to stop this pain? Help!

- Polly Esther

Dear Polly:

Extract of oleander is a highly toxic poison which cannot be detected in most alcoholic beverages. Sick guys with permanent neurological damage have little interest in cheating and the same goes for guys who are dead. Good luck dear.

Dear Trixie:

I am new at this dating thing. I was married for 23 years and had one boyfriend before that. I don't even know how to judge which men are idiotic or dangerous. Is there a surefire way to pick a decent guy?

- Lorena B. Dear

Dear Lorena B.:

All men will give out clues to who they really are. Some are subtle and some are not so subtle. The rule I use to cut through the mire of useless crap in the dating world is simple. Don't date anyone coming out of prison, anyone who cannot conjugate a verb properly and never date a guy who has a cute name for his penis.

Dear Trixie:

MY boyfriend is a rock fan, but it's not what you think. I don't mean Mick Jagger and the Stones, I mean he likes to climb rocks. Our dates consist of cliff climbing with ropes and pulleys. When we get home he is always too tired to make love. I have tried everything— including lingerie and a new firm mattress but even that doesn't help. What is going on here?

- Disappointed and Dissillusioned

Dear Disappointed

It sounds like you are truly between a rock and a hard place. Dump him and don't look back. Dear Trixie: I am in trouble with the law and I need an attorney. What happened was I had a head-on collision with another car. I was sloshed and driving on the wrong side of the road. The other guy was sober. Since it's really not my fault I am planning to defend myself. Do you think this is a good idea? --Bartle S. Jaynes Dear Bartle: You should argue that the accident happened as the result of the sober driver. Had he been drunk he too would have been on the wrong side of the road and would have completely avoided the accident. You might win if you use conviction.

Aries 3/21-4/19
 Make practical use of the thoughts you've recently had about restructuring your broken Etch A Sketch collection. Stretch your boundaries and consider purple as a solution to most things.

Taurus 4/20-5/20
 Connect with your heart and move forward with your congestive problems. While normally thought of as soft, tender, and vulnerable, your heart is actually a time bomb wrapped in a kale-proof grease shield. Give up.

Gemini 5/21-6/21
 You might come across strong opposition today from some stuff you made up and acted upon hastily sometime in the near past.

Cancer 6/22-7/22
 Sean Archer has been chasing Castor Troy to avenge his son's death by the hands of the psychotic terrorist for six years. Now that he killed Castor, Sean must find a biological bomb by assuming the identity of Castor Troy by taking his face and being brought in prison. But Troy, who awakes from his coma, takes Archer's face in order to take revenge on him. Now, Troy turns Archer's life upside down by assuming his identity. Will Archer break free from his prison and get his face back, or will Troy have the last laugh? Your lucky number is 33.

Leo 7/23-8/22
 It would be in your best interest to evaluate your emotions from a perspective almost as detached as your wardrobe. Keep good friends nearby to console you upon your discovery that The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air is, unfortunately, not a reality show.

Virgo 8/23-9/22
 Pop Rocks and Coke won't actually explode if you mix them, but you are super gross for doing it.

Libra 9/23-10/22
 You will be amazed what develops if you leave your bedroom. Gossip may run rampant, but you don't need to be a part of it unless someone is a mostly distant, minor annoyance to you every once in awhile.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21
 You might be conflicted as to which way is the right way to skip breakfast and lunch in lieu of crying. If you have a back-up iPhone case that is identical to your regular iPhone case you should sell both of them and everything else you own.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21
 Give no regard to old habits that might make you interact with nature. Keep your head clear of clutter and Oakley sunglasses.

Capricorn 12/22-1/19
 Your advice for others, while usually flawless, does not apply to much of anything except how many jellybeans can fit into different sized mason jars. You are popular at fairs and that's about it.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18
 Your memoir, A Hashtag at the End of the World, is not very good. Sorry.

Pisces 2/19-3/20
 Imagine yourself on top of a mountain, overlooking a vast expanse of land and sea, the entire world within view and the feral, ethereal world sneaking ever so lightly into your body and soul as you sit in a sweaty chair and delete VH1 shows from your DVR.
