Where's Wando
We've hidden Wando somewhere in this issue of 365ink. Can you find him?

Well, if you like wine, I guess this is your issue. If you like wine a little too much, perhaps you have issues of your own. But that's your problem.

The growing popularity of wine seems to have no limit. The selections to choose from at the grocery store are staggering enough, let alone wandering into Van's or Family Beer and getting lost in the aisles of wine. You need to have an advanced degree just to drink the stuff or at least a friend who's a lot smarter and more sophisticated than you are. I tend to just go with whatever everyone else is having.

I'm not exactly a wine snob. I don't know a whole lot about choosing a great wine, but I do know when I like it and when I don't. Like many novices, I generally tend toward sweeter wines, usually whites. But not too sweet. I can't do the cherry wines and such. They're just too much. I've been working my way into drier reds. I think what I like are drinks that are not room temperature, so that's going to make it hard to become a dry red wine snob. If only there was help?

Ah, but there is. In addition to the big wine lovers event on the cover of this issue of 365ink, there are numerous other opportunities to sample wines in the area throughout the year to help you zero in on your particular taste.

Last week I attended the Family Beer Fall Wine Tasting. In a couple of weeks, I believe I will be attending the Van's Fall Wine Tasting (Nov. 12 at Timmerman's, see the ad on page 12 or the story on page 17... see what I did there?). You know, just to be sure I was right about the wines I picked at Family Beer.

I wanted to write this Inkubator about these events because both Tim Althaus at Family Beer and Jeff Jansen and Van's really go out of their way to create wonderful tasting opportunities, loaded with amazing wines, knowledgeable people and, of course, some kind of killer food. And they do it at a ridiculously affordable price. So for $20-$30, you can sample your favorites from among about 80 different wines from a huge price range. Tim's crew even had a selection of locally produced spirits and other specialty libations for sampling and Van's will also feature local spirits and more too. You can't go out for dinner and enjoy what you'll get at these events for anywhere near that price.

And oh, the food! Fred Bonnet from Fried Green Tomatoes in Galena was on hand at Family Beer with a variety of tasty treats including nice medium rate tenderloin and a slate of appetizers that celebrated smoked salmon. And on the 12th, Jeff and the Van's staff have pre-planned a slam dunk by giving you open range on the famous Timmerman's Appetizer Buffet while you taste.

All of that and... get this... they give all the profits to charities every time. So while they get you in to try their wares, they really just want you to discover those wines that make you happy so you'll know what to buy next time.

And then, they do it all again at other times of the year, in case you forget what you liked over the winter, I guess? And there are others from retailers like Hy-Vee and, of course, Galena seems to have the market cornered on gigantic feasts of wine loveification (yes, I just invented that word). But with the Dubuque Food and Wine on the River Festival, Dubuque is muscling its way into the game very nicely.

I should note that although Family Beer's annual wine tasting has passed, they do still have their Fall Beer tasting coming up with an equal amount of beers (Ad on page 11, story on page 17... see what I did there?). And this time the charity who benefits is Marine Corps Toys For Tots which is, of course, near and dear to my heart.

So for the sake of the kids... ha! ha!... and the sanity of trying to traverse the wine and beer aisles of the future, do yourself a favor and take in these tastings. They're generally after work. They make a great date or even a social event with friends and co-workers. (Pick a designated driver because, well, 80 WINES!!!) You'll have a great time at a great price. You'll get smarter about your enjoyment of products and you'll do good things for great charities.

These guys are busting their butts to make the learning curve easy for you. Take advantage of it. Oh, and 365ink will be giving away tickets to BOTH of these upcoming tastings on Facebook in the next two weeks, so find us and LIKE us and sign-up to win. But come either way, because you going to win regardless!

Discover DaVinci & Michelangelo
Sunday, November 2, 2 p.m.
Five Flags Theater

Mark Rodgers, the creator and host of the multi-media event, is also the curator of the DaVinci Machines Exhibition currently on display at the Bradenton Auditorium. Rodgers originally developed the idea to compare and contrast the two geniuses while curating the DaVinci and Michelangelo Exhibition in Denver, CO. "I realized you can't talk about DaVinci without Michelangelo," explained Rodgers. "They were contemporaries and many people don't know that." The multi-media event has evolved over the last couple years starting as a tour of only DaVinci then over time Rodgers incorporated Michelangelo into his tours. According to Rodgers, the more tours and presentations he gave, the more information people wanted to know about DaVinci and Michelangelo. Tickets are $18 and $28 plus fees and a student ticket for $15 online at www.fiveflagscenter.com.

An Irish Christmas
Wednesday, November 12, 7 p.m.
University of Wisc. Platteville
Center for the Arts

An Irish Christmas brings just about everything to the table this year – joy, hope, laughter, friendship, celebration, of life through storytelling, music, song, and dance in a night that sparkles with life and a bit of 'magic!' Dancers dance through the generations over brooms, on half doors, around butter churns, into the world of mythology and out again. Songs spinning out of the mists and into the familiar Silent Night, Little Drummer Boy and Carol of the Bells, and superb music of the pipes, flutes, fiddles, button accordion and bodhráns are just the beginning of this great Irish night! You can be sure of a rip-roaring celebration of Christmas from the heart of glorious Ireland with a superb team of Irish traditional musicians, dancers from the Kerry Dance Troupe led by Kevin Horton (Riverdance), the Kerry Records voice squad, and Irish actor Sheelagh Cullen. We will journey through Christmas in Ireland and celebrate the great tradition of butter making, chase the wren on St. Stephen's day, draw down the half door for spectacular dance, enjoy superb music-making, singing of Christmas carols and great storytelling in an unforgettable Irish night. Irish folk theatre at its best! Tickets Range from $17 - $34. Call 608.342.1298 or visit tickets.uwplatt.edu.

Surrealism and Storytelling Exhibit Opening Reception

Saturday, October 25, 6 - 10 p.m.

Whispers & Shouts

Saturday, November 8, 7 - 11 p.m.

Dubuque Area Arts Collective, 902 Main St.

The DAAC invites you to the Surrealism and Storytelling art exhibit. This is the first DAAC-sponsored exhibit to feature national and international artists, in addition to local talent. Cities represented include Chicago, IL; Leipzig, Germany; Collingswood, NJ; Toronto, Canada; Nacogdoches, Texas; Dubuque, Iowa; and surrounding areas. Upcoming artists from Luther College, Austin State University, Purdue University, and Hempstead High School, among others, are also featured. This exhibit is composed of all forms of painting, drawing, sculpture, photography, digital, performance, and video works from both established and upcoming artists.

The Surrealism and Storytelling exhibit explores creativity outside the constraints of ego and consciousness, and utilizes dreamscapes and other aspects of the unconscious mind. Through storytelling, it takes viewers on a journey to a place they would otherwise not be able to experience. There are as many ways to tell a story as there are stories to tell. Accessing our subconscious can unlock greater personal and universal truths, and relate them in unique and stimulating ways.

Opening reception is Saturday, October 25, 6 pm to 10pm. Surrealist costumes encouraged.

Live performance art and music by Iowa City's I/OWAR and Dog Hairs, from Davenport, Iowa. Cultivating preposterous auditory collages simultaneously alongside delectable rhythmic prophecies, I/OWAR rearranges preconceptions regarding spontaneous musical mysticism. Dog Hairs blends together the sights and sounds that he has happened upon, captured intentionally, and created specifically, creating collages with antiquated analog technologies. The event will also feature "gore" theatrical makeup tutorials and demonstrations by makeup artist and Creative Director of Rogue Collections, Sami Sue.

The following month, on Saturday, November 8, from 7 PM to 11 PM, the exhibit will host Whispers & Shouts, an evening of storytelling and readings. This event will feature local emerging authors reading from their works, as well as community members taking to the podium to share autobiographical tales. Several guests from Dubuque and the surrounding community will share personal stories, ranging from the lighthearted to the serious. In addition to our guests, audience members will be invited to volunteer to tell their stories.

Carrie Newcomer
Friday, November 14, 7:30 p.m.
John and Alice Butler Hall,
Heritage Center, Univ. of DBQ

Heritage Center, the University of Dubuque's performing arts, worship, and campus center, will host folk singer/songwriter-guitarist Carrie Newcomer on Friday, November 14 at 7:30 p.m. Carrie marks her UD debut with piano accompaniment by Gary Walters, and a special guest appearance by the UD Gospel Choir. The performance is part of a week-long artist residency at UD for the performer, during which she will participate in worship services, hold public workshops, and work with student writers, actors, and musicians.

Carrie Newcomer has been described as "a soaring songstress" by Billboard, a "prairie mystic" by the Boston Globe, and Rolling Stone wrote that she "asks all the right questions." One of the definitive voices of the heartland and progressive spirituality, Newcomer has attracted a devoted following with her warm voice, exquisite melodies, and an irreverent yet spiritual view of the world. Newcomer's songs are based in the ordinary, and infused with images from the natural world.

Tickets for Carrie Newcomer's Friday evening performance are $15-$19 for adults and $9 for students and can be purchased online at www.dbq.edu/heritagecenter; in-person at Farber Box Office, open Monday through Friday from 12:00 noon to 5:30 p.m. at Heritage Center, University of Dubuque, 2255 Bennett Street; or by phone at 563.585.SHOW(7469).

As artist-in-residence at the University of Dubuque leading up to her performance, several activities will be open to the public, including:

Tuesday, November 11, 7 p.m.
 "Our Lives as Sacred Story: A Creative Exploration of the Heart and Spirit of Our Experience" Shalom Spirituality Center, 1001 Davis Street, Dubuque.

Wednesday, November 12, 7:30 p.m.
 Carrie Newcomer will make a special guest appearance as part of the UD Gospel Choir concert
Blades Chapel, University of Dubuque

Thursday, November 13, 7: p.m.
 Children of Abraham presents Carrie Newcomer's "Interfaith Conversations: Values of the Heart" where Carrie will share stories of her experiences and travels with a discussion moderated by UD Professor Alan Garfield.

Dubuque Food & Wine on the River
November 7-9
Port of Dubuque

By Mike Ironside

Once we get past that initial shock of the cool weather which signals the changing seasons, autumn certainly has its charms. While it might be any number of pumpkin spice-scented or flavored things for some, for many it's crisp fall days, beautiful autumn colors and a sudden urge to fire up the stove in the kitchen. Yes, autumn is a great time to eat, whether it's a big pot of soup on the stove, a chicken roasted to perfection in the oven, or dinner out on the town. For wine lovers, it's also a great time to try some hearty reds or find the wine that pairs perfectly with whatever is on the menu for the evening. So the timing really couldn't be any better for the celebration known as Dubuque Food & Wine on the River.

Now in its second year, the festival will be held Friday and Saturday, November 7-8 at the Port of Dubuque, and Sunday, November 9 at Van's Liquor in East Dubuque. Presented by the Hotel Julien Dubuque, the event is a weekend-long showcase of gourmet food from Dubuque's finest restaurants and wine from co-organizers Van's Liquor Store and Stone Cliff Winery. Joining the festivities as celebrity judge, parade Grand Marshall, and honored guest will be actor, comedian and chef Paul Gilmartin, who is probably best known as host of TBS's "Dinner and a Movie." Proceeds from the weekend events will benefit Resources Unite.

While everything seems to be falling into place for this year's weekend of events, Dubuque Food & Wine on the River was far from a sure thing.

"Last year, going into it was a complete unknown," admits Bob Smith of Stone Cliff, who enlisted the participation of Jeff Jansen of Van's. "(We were) promoting something we'd seen in other cities. We'd looked at it in Austin, in Chicago, San Diego had some great food and wine menus and we were trying to bring that to Dubuque to do a couple things. One, is to drive overall tourism and hotel bookings and so forth for Dubuque, and at the same time, supporting charities. To that end, it was successful. The first year, you never know how it's going to turn out and we had a nice turnout – somewhere in the 600-person range. The hotel had some great bookings. And we gave some good exposure to the fine restaurants involved in it."

Van's Jeff Jansen agrees, "Last year was a phenomenal success. It came off with out a hitch. Typically, when there's an event, the first time there's always something that gets overlooked but yeah, we knocked it out of the park. We had tremendous feedback from everybody that was there and partnering with the Hotel Julien and those guys putting a package together – bringing in people from other communities, which is a goal for this event – we had people from Kansas City, Milwaukee, a lot from Waterloo, Cedar Rapids, and places like that, so it was great. (We got) positive comments from all those folks as well so we were very, very excited about how we pulled it off last year and how everything came about."

An added feature of the 2013 Food & Wine celebration was an appearance by actor Larry Thomas, best known as the "Soup Nazi" from the sitcom Seinfeld. "It was very fun working with the Soup Nazi," reports Jansen. "We teased for a minute about bringing him back but two years in a row ... I think maybe we'll bring him back for like our 5th anniversary or 10th anniversary or something like that but yeah, he was a blast. And it worked out perfectly. We were going to do the soup anyway and we were kind of scratching our heads what to do for a celeb and all of a sudden I came up with the idea and one thing led to another and boom, we got the Soup Nazi here. What kind of perfect combo is that?"

Like a good recipe, Smith and Jansen are using what worked before, with a few subtle tweaks. "We're playing off that success that we had and we're ahead of where we were last year," reports Smith. "We've got some good sponsors with us this year, which is nice also. I think that support will grow as people understand what we are doing. We have a good charity with Resources Unite and I think that their involvement is going to help promote it and the bottom line is that it's going to drive more charitable contribution."

Like last year, Dubuque Food & Wine will start with a special Reserve Wine Tasting on Friday night, November 7 at 6:30 p.m. in the Mississippi Moon Bar in the Diamond Jo Casino. A more upscale tasting experience in a relaxed atmosphere, the event will feature a selection of special reserve wines paired with gourmet small plates from the talented chefs from Caroline's Restaurant in the Hotel Julien, L. May Eatery, Pepper Sprout, and Wood-fire Grille at the Diamond Jo Casino. The night will be hosted by Paul Gilmartin, who will also do a little bit of food and wine related stand-up to set the mood, with live music by Kristina Castaneda and Shawn Healy.

Jansen explains that the wines offered at Friday's Reserve Tasting are not your everyday wines, ranging in retail price from around $25 or $30 up to $80 or more. "It's a chance to try some special bottles that are a little different," he said. "The average customer doesn't walk into the store and pick up a $50-60 bottle, it's more like a $10 bottle. For the value, it's a $65 ticket to get in but we're going to have 12 different food features from Dubuque's finest restaurants and we're going to have in excess of 40 wines ranging from $25-80. So really, a chance to try a lot of that stuff is a great opportunity."

Smith adds, "People should know that we have terrific food. We have the four top restaurants in the area. We have good quality food that they can sample, knowledgeable people serving it. And the wine - Van's Liquor Store has a wide array of high-quality wines. I think that's what they will experience."

200 Main Street • Dubuque, IA 52001

Saturday's festivities kick off at 11 a.m. (November 8) with a parade of wine lovers and revelers running from Stone Cliff at the Port of Dubuque, across the third street bridge, down Main Street and back again with Paul Gilmartin acting as the Grand Marshall. Those who would like to participate can join the procession at the beginning or jump on a trolley along the Main Street parade route.

Following the return of the parade to the Port of Dubuque at noon, the second of the weekend's Food & Wine celebrations gets underway at Stone Cliff Winery in the historic Star Brewery building. A bit more casual than the previous evening's event, Saturday's tasting will feature a range of wines more accessible to the everyday wine drinker with wines starting in the $10 a bottle range.

"We're going to have another 40 to 45 wines on Saturday and that's going to focus more on that everyday kind of stuff, maybe in that $10-25 price point," explained Jansen, "stuff that's a little more affordable for the average person. And a good mix – we try to run the gamut from sweet to dry, white to red and give people a full exposure."

The "Soup-Off" competition also returns with the four signature restaurants from Friday's event returning – Caroline's, L. May Eatery, Pepper Sprout, and Woodfire Grille – along with entries from Cremer's, East Mill Bakeshop, and Main Street Cheese Cakes. That's a lot of tasty soup! "L. May has been holding the coveted 'Golden Ladle' trophy that was awarded to them last year," noted Jansen. "So this year, they're going to have some competition to try to knock that off." Guests can try them all with the judging and winner of the Golden Ladle announced by Paul Gilmartin at 2 p.m.

Saturday's event will also feature craft beer from Millstream and Potosi Breweries and samples of spirits from Paradise Distillery and Blaum Brothers Distilling Co. Specialty foods samples will be available from Cremer's Meats, Dubuque Food Coop, East Mill Bakery, Galena's Main Street Cheesecakes, Roelli Cheese, and Stan's Coffee House.

The event will offer guests an opportunity to learn a bit more about some of the featured vendors with brief, informal breakout sessions from Cremer's, Blaum Brothers Distilling, Roelli Cheese, and Millstream Brewery, where representatives from each will explain a bit about their products and process and answer any questions guest might have. Resources Unite will also have a table for those interested in learning more about their community-building programs.

And just to be sure the afternoon does not become too educational, as well as to remind everyone that this gathering is indeed a celebration, the Lonely Goats will be playing their eclectic mix of party music throughout the afternoon.

Aside from a few extra vendors, the only big difference in Saturday's event from last year will be the addition of a large tent just outside Stone Cliff in the Alliant Amphitheater. With great attendance at last year's Saturday tasting, space inside Stone Cliff became a premium, making it a challenge at times for guests to circulate. Adding the tent outside in the amphitheater will effectively double the available space for vendors and guests and provide a more relaxed party space for the live music of the Lonely Goats. "The tent, we're calling 'the goat pen,'" joked Smith.

Jokes aside, Smith sees Dubuque Food & Wine 2014 as an incremental improvement on a successful inaugural event. "I think it's a refinement of last year," he said. "I don't think there are any major items that are new but it's a refinement, it's to smooth out any of the kinks we had in it. I think we'll have at least 25 percent more people and we'll be staffed for it. We found out what happened last year. I think we'll see a lot better activity down here, better organized, and we'll have a large tent set up outside and that's going to be nice."

Both Smith and Jansen emphasize that Dubuque Food & Wine is an opportunity to learn that should not be intimidating. "Some people hear 'wine tasting' and they think 'oh, it's out of my league, I can't do that,'" noted Jansen. You know, really that's kind of a thing of the past. It's a laid-back atmosphere. It's a fun atmosphere. So even if you don't know anything about wine or you've just made the transition from moscato to pinot noir and you're just start to dabble, this really would benefit you more than anybody else because it's going to give you exposure. If you have any slight interest in spirits, craft beer, craft wine and good food, this is it. This is a no-brainer."

In addition to the educational opportunities and underlining the "fun atmosphere" aspect of the event, Smith wants people to understand that this is a celebration. "People are there to party," he states. "When you take people that like to eat and like to drink, usually it's a pretty good crowd. Until closing time, then it can get a little ugly," he adds, laughing.

Dubuque Food & Wine on the River wraps up on Sunday, November 9 with an opportunity for guests to do some discount shopping to take home some of the best wines they tasted over the weekend. Van's Liquor Store in East Dubuque hosts, of course, with complimentary Mimosas or Bloody Marys, as well as complimentary pastries and scones from East Mill Bakeshop from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. "On Sunday, we give people an opportunity to purchase products sampled for the weekend," explained Jansen, "and we do some pretty good discounting so it's a great opportunity to stock up a little bit and purchase for the holidays because the prices are probably 15-20 percent off the normal retail, so it's a good chance to save some money, too."

Tickets for Dubuque Food & Wine on the River's Friday night are $65 each and Saturday is $45 with a weekend pass being offered for just $99 per person. They are available at all participating restaurants, Van's Liquor Store, Stone Cliff Winery and online through the event website, dbq-foodandwine.com.

The Hotel Julien is also putting on a killer deal for the weekend, which includes a room for two nights, dining at Caroline's, and weekend passes to the event for a stellar rate. When all is said and done, proceeds from the weekend benefit Resources Unite, a local nonprofit organization that connects individuals and corporations to volunteer opportunities. Food, wine, and building a better community – now that's a great pairing.

Paul Gilmartin

Dubuque Food & Wine on the River welcomes television personality Paul Gilmartin as guest host for the weekend event. Actor, comedian, writer, chef, and host of a successful podcast series, Gilmartin is probably best known as the host of TBS's "Dinner and a Movie," which he hosted along with a variety of female cohosts for more than 16 years, from 1995 until its finale in 2011.

Gilmartin has performed standup comedy, including a number of comedy festivals and his own half-hour special, Comedy Central Presents: Paul Gilmartin, has been a guest on shows like Politically Incorrect, The List on VH1, HBO Comedy Showcase, and the Late Late Show with Craig Ferguson, among others, and is a regular guest on the popular radio program, The Bob and Tom Show.

"We wanted someone with experience in food and wine and that's why we picked Paul, with his background on television, the Bob & Tom Show, he's a standup comedian," explained Bob Smith of organizing sponsor Stone Cliff Winery, "(but) we don't want this to be too serious; this is a party time. We aren't too serious. We're serious about having a good time. And he fit that profile."

Gilmartin will serve as guest host at Dubuque Food & Wine's Friday, November 7 event at the Diamond Jo Casino's Mississippi Moon Bar, performing a short standup comedy set. On Saturday, November 8, he will serve as Grand Marshall for the Dubuque Food & Wine parade down Main Street and as a guest judge for the "Soup-Off" competition at Stone Cliff that afternoon.

10 Great Reasons to Become a Senior Volunteer

Many senior citizens wonder why they should volunteer, especially after working so hard for so many years. Here are a few reasons why each and every Dubuqueland senior should consider becoming a retired volunteer!

1. Volunteerism is essential to the United States and to Dubuque.

Presidents have been calling for increased volunteerism since the 1930s, and in 2009, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act did the same. The Act managed to mobilize more than 135,000 new volunteers in the past year alone, and these volunteers have helped 1.1 million people! Some of the most significant volunteerism includes providing skills training and counseling to more than 35,000 unemployed people, of which 5,400 found jobs using the skills they learned from volunteers.

2. The American work industry still needs seniors, now more than ever.

Our community still needs active seniors! All volunteers make a difference, but experienced and knowledgeable seniors can make an even bigger difference. Just imagine how many people could get jobs if more seniors volunteered to teach others what they have learned.

3. Senior volunteers help bridge the generation gap.

The cultural differences between seniors and young people are huge and include topics like technology, workplace behavior, and political differences. When seniors collaborate with young people, there is reciprocal learning for everyone involved and therefore a better understanding of one another.

5. Senior volunteers can choose to do meaningful work.

Sadly, most of us aren't truly vested in the work we do. We work because we have to, not because we love what we do. Volunteer opportunities are plentiful, so senior volunteers have the opportunity to choose work that they find important and exciting. In fact, the Corporation for National and Community Service reports that retired volunteers are more satisfied with their lives than people who continue to work for pay. Why? Because they have chosen to volunteer in ways that are meaningful to them.

6. Volunteering helps seniors maintain mental well-being and adds years to you life.

Seniors who volunteer in social programs not only maintain good brain function, but their brain function and cognitive ability may actually increase. Seniors who provide social support for others through volunteering have lower mortality rates than those who do not, indicating that volunteering can improve physical, mental, and emotional well-being for seniors.

7. Becoming a retired volunteer helps seniors maintain physical health.

A UCLA study suggests that productive activities may actually slow the aging process for seniors and volunteering seems to generate the best results. Interestingly enough, volunteering is the only productive activity proven to help prevent frailty among seniors.

8. Volunteering helps seniors stay involved in their communities.

Many seniors spend most of their time at home where they are comfortable. A recent article in the L.A. Times states that seniors currently spend between half and three-quarters of their time awake watching television. This social isolation helps explain why an estimated 6 to 6.5 million seniors aged 65 years and older suffer from depression. Senior volunteers spend less time at home and more time in their communities, which helps them increase their social and support networks. Plus, giving to others can help combat depression, because giving makes us feel vibrant, important, and satisfied.

9. Volunteering is rewarding.

Becoming a senior volunteer is a rewarding experience that reduces stress and increases happiness. Many health benefits associated with volunteering are a result of the sense of accomplishment a volunteer feels when helping others.

11. Senior volunteers can work around their own schedules.

Most organizations offer flexible schedules, so even busy, active seniors can become volunteers. It's not a job. Set your pace and keep it fun so it fits your lifestyle.

Local Volunteer Opportunities

The Dubuque Area is filled with opportunities to volunteer. While you may find it easiest to pursue prospective positions through personal contacts, such as your church or other organizations, we would like to highlight a few options for you to browse.

DUBUQUE SCHOOLS

Volunteering in the Dubuque Community School District is a rewarding and enriching way to serve students at all levels. A wide array of volunteer activities exist, from interacting with students to assisting with activity preparation or grading papers. Contact: Ann Reillihan at 563/552-3000 or arellihan@dbqschools.org

MISSISSIPPI RIVER MUSEUM

The National Mississippi River Museum & Aquarium and Dubuque County Historical properties offer volunteer options to fit your schedule. Benefits for volunteers include free or reduced museum admissions, gift shop and food/beverage discounts. No experience required; training is provided. Positions: greeters, docent/educators, special events helpers, archivists, and mailing assistants.

Visit www.mississippirivermuseum.com/employment_volunteer.cfm

DuRIDE

DuRide is a local non-profit service that provides a safe and personalized transportation option for seniors who are unable or do not want to drive any longer. Volunteers drive seniors to their destinations, and volunteer commitments work around the volunteer's schedule.

Contact: 563-451-4999 or visit www.duridedbq.com. See the ad on page 20!

HUMANE SOCIETY

Love animals? The Dubuque Regional Humane Society is always recruiting new volunteers. Areas of opportunity:

animal socialization, bathing & grooming, Dirty Paws Laundry Service, fostering, Green Team, humane education, off-site events, pet therapy, and special events & fundraisers.

Orientations are held at Kinsey's Campus, 4242 Chavenelle Road, on the first Saturday of each month at 9:30 a.m. and on the third Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

Contact the Community Outreach Director at 563-583-3314.

Make Your Own Memories

The freedom to live without the worries of everyday life. Freedom to pursue your passions. Stay. Go. Do as you please. We'll take care of the details to make sure that you're free to make new memories. And our assisted living and memory care services provide peace of mind should the need arise.

Call (563) 585-4900 today to learn more about senior living options at Oak Park Place, or to schedule a personal tour. This isn't a place to retire – it's a place to live. Welcome home.

LOCAL LIVE MUSIC

Better than Good Enough, Untamed, Group Therapy The Lift, Friday, Oct. 24, 10 PM

Three up and coming acts from the area. Better than Good Enough are a two piece who look to mine the same territory as The White Stripes or Black Keys, with bombastic drums and bluesy guitar riffs a plenty. Untamed, a slightly older group, are trying for a more alternative and classic rock mix that works well for people drinking at the bar blowing off steam. Group Therapy, the only debut of the night, is working on an 80's synth pop reverence complete with keytar featuring Bryce ad Kristina from 365ink. Beat that on a Friday!

Chicago Farmer, Cranes/Vultures

Eronel, Friday, Oct. 24, 8 PM
Chicago Farmer Cody is a folk-singer's folk-singer and a poet's poet. He was born and bred in Delavan IL, population 25, surrounded by the endless skies of the American Midwest. Before moving to Chicago in 2003, Cody tried his hand at sessions in Nashville and carefully hewed and tested his art in college town bars and honky-tonks around the Midwest. He now plays regularly in the city and it's not uncommon to see whole rooms full of strangers erupt and sing along to the choruses of his songs on their first listen. Cody's voice is powerful and gritty, emotionally piercing while subtly imbuing additional layers of meaning and poignancy in his lyrical delivery. Openers Cranes/Vultures is the local dynamic duo of Nate Jenkins and Brad Cavanagh, who crank out original indie-folk-rock tunes, leaning heavily on vocal harmonies and ecstatic loops. Come welcome these guys to our stage at 8PM the night of Friday, October 24. No cover.

Good Night Gold Dust, Geoff Dolce (Late Show) Eronel, Friday, Oct. 24, 10 PM

Since 2010, Mankato, Minnesota's Good Night Gold Dust —an atmospheric indie-folk quintet à la Arcade Fire, Feist, with some Clash growling at the edges— have self-produced three EPs that stretch sultry, wounded vocals across angular lead guitar and melodic piano flourishes. Solid rhythm behind that provide an organic richness to their ethereal collection of songs about loss and how we cope. With openers Geoff Dolce, the labels garage and indie rock come to mind upon first listen, but the underlying work is distinctly rooted in the folk tradition. The pairing of these sensibilities finds them falling in the realm of Neutral Milk Hotel meets Dinosaur Jr.

with a touch of Slash. Hang out for both shows at Eronel the night of Friday, October 24.

Spottiswoode and His Enemies, Tyler Bailey The Lift, Saturday, Oct 25, 9 PM

Referred to as a "genius" and a "downtown ringleader" by The New Yorker, Spottiswoode is the son of an American singer and an English clergyman. WNYC's John Schaefer describes him as, "One of New York's more colorful band leaders for more than a decade." For the past fifteen years, Spottiswoode & His Enemies have become a New York institution. Drawing comparisons to everyone from Leonard Cohen, Tom Waits and The National to Ray Davies and Nick Cave, the band has been profiled on NPR's Weekend Edition, World Cafe and Soundcheck and toured worldwide from SXSW to Lille, France to Lincoln Center. Paste Magazine describes the live show as, "Nothing short of transportive!"

Twist This! Comedy feat. Jay Washington The Cornerstone, Galena IL Tuesday, October 28, 6:30 p.m.

A professional wrestler turned stand-up comedian, Jay Washington's antics during wrestling promo's and in-ring interviews, made it almost natural for him to make the transition from the squared circle to the stage. He was hand picked to compete for Comedy Central's "UP NEXT" Talent Search. His quick wit, high energy, lovable personality, and size it makes him not only impressive but also very memorable. Jay Washington, has begun making a major name for himself as he has performed at, created and host monthly events, including "Laughing Insanity", at the world famous Laugh Factory in Chicago. Jay has traveled the country headlining and featuring on various stages at comedy clubs and venues. He currently serves as co-host of a daily Internet Radio show "Educated Insanity" heard Wednesdays on www.chicagolandsporradio.com.

Twist This happens on the last Tuesday of every month with 6:30 Improv, 7:30 Stand-Up and from 9-midnight Live DJ - Mister Whiskerz!

Halloween Party and Costume Contest with THE GRASSHOPPERS The Lift, 9pm (See page 33!)

Billy Dreamer, The Meatcurtains, Legal Fingers Eronel, Saturday, Nov. 1, 10 PM

Billy Dreamer is a weirdo rock act as bizarre as their namesake Kids In the Hall sketch. Image aside, though their general caffeine overload schtick provides plenty of it, the songs hold up under scrutiny of pop hooks, buried as they may be under lo-fi video game noise. They'll be playing with Meat Curtains, the gutter butter alternative to put on your hardcore gorilla biscuits. Opening will be local Quantum Leap enthusiasts Legal Fingers. If you wake up the morning of Saturday, November 1 with your Halloween costume still on, wear that thang.

Tony Roma's LIVE @ 5! Wednesday, Nov. 5, 5-9 PM
Tony Roma's in The Grand Harbor Hotel & Waterpark will launch LIVE @ 5 starting Wednesday,

TONY ROMA'S
LIVE @ 5
WEDNESDAYS

November 5th. This event will be every Wednesday from 5 - 9 PM and will feature multiple performers each week, including veterans and great new voices. Every week there will be a sign up to win great weekly prizes and grand prizes.

"We feel that this event coupled with our great food and drink specials and our partnership with Hub Monkey City Guides+ mobile app, will create a lot of excitement", says Sue Moran, Sales and Marketing Director.

The music will be hosted by Ralph Kluseman. He will bring to the stage the performers of the Tri-State area, both veterans and those who are the emerging new voices on the music scene.

Hub Monkey City Guides+ mobile app is the new Dubuque Community Mobile App and is available for download free on both the Google Play and Apple App Stores. Designed and built by Design Mill, Inc. of Dubuque, this mobile app provides users the latest deals, events, tickets, tours and business listings of Dubuque, Iowa and Galena, Illinois. Also sponsored by 365ink Magazine and 7G Distributing.

Dead Larry The Lift, Friday, Nov 7, 9 PM

Dead Larry, a delightful blend of high energy rock, dance and funk offers a look into the new generation of musicians and fans. Originally from Iowa City, IA the entire band relocated to Minneapolis, MN in Oct 2011. Dead Larry spreads a positive message to bring out a renewed feeling of passion and hope for anyone who listens. A group of 4 guys in their twenties, Dead Larry loves to party and encourages the crowd to get up and moving. With a vast range of influences it's hard to pin down the sound, but comparisons have been made to Modest Mouse, The Talking Heads, Led Zeppelin and Pink Floyd. Dead Larry encourages a community of friends and family (known as "The Family of Funky Friends") that continues to support and grow with Dead Larry throughout their adventures. Touring relentlessly across the country, Dead Larry is a force to be reckoned with."

Mike Munson, Jack Klatt Eronel, Friday, Nov. 7, 9 PM

Minnesota-based bluesman Mike Munson fills the stage with a fluid combination of skilled finger picking and masterful slide guitar influenced by the likes of John Lee Hooker and Mississippi John Hurt, with songs that tell raw stories of work, travel and loss. Traveling along down from Minnesota for the night is Jack Klatt, a self-taught musician and lyricist with eyes and ears wide open, always eager to soak up songs and stories to share with his boisterous finger-picking style and whiskey worn troubadour voice in countless barrooms, cafes, living rooms, theaters and street corners all over the world. Come catch these two treasures for free the night of Friday November 7 at 9PM.

The Midwestern Charm, Maxwell Hughes (ex-Lumineers) Eronel, Saturday, Nov. 8, 9 PM

Milwaukee, Wisconsin four-piece The Midwestern Charm are on the cusp of releasing their second full-length, "Growing Pains", but don't let the name fool you. This is a band that has already come into it's own with a layered, rhythmic, energetic pop/rock sound that they've expertly honed over the last 5 years. Starting the night off, though, will be former Lumineers guitarist Maxwell Hughes. The genuine article, a true to form prodigy and virtuoso, Maxwell is a highly accomplished songwriter and musician whose talent and charisma has captured audiences with his unique sound, irresistible beats, and entertaining presentation.

Fly Paper The Lift, Saturday, Nov. 15, 10 PM

With soulful vocals, fiercely elegant guitars, and a high energy rhythm section, Fly Paper never fail to amaze and inspire crowds throughout the country with their original songs. Micaela's voice is often compared to that of Fiona Apple and Norah Jones. Her guitar playing carries on the traditions of Jimi Hendrix, David Gilmore, and Jimmy Page. The four piece band fuses elements of rock, folk, and blues into an unforgettable musical experience. With catchy songs, command of their instruments, and a powerful stage presence, Fly Paper will be remembered long after the stage lights go out!

coming to theaters :

John Wick (October 24) (R)

With New York City as his bullet-riddled playground, an ex-hitman comes out of retirement to track down the gangsters that took everything from him.

Ouija (October 24) (R)

A group of friends confront their most terrifying fears when they awaken the dark powers of an ancient spirit board.

Laggies (October 24) (R)

Megan is overeducated, underemployed and in a quarterlife crisis. Megan is comfortable lagging a few steps behind while her friends celebrate their grown-up status. When her high-school sweetheart proposes, Megan panics and hides out in the home of her new friend, 16-year old Annika and her single dad.

Nightcrawler (October 31) (R)

Lou Bloom, desperate for work, discovers the world of L.A. crime journalism. Finding a group of freelance camera crews who film crashes, fires, murder and mayhem, Lou muscles into nightcrawling. In the breakneck, ceaseless search for footage, he becomes the star of his own story.

Saw (October 31) (R) (one-week release)

Celebrate the 10th anniversary of "Saw," a psychological thriller focusing on two men who wake up with a dead body between them. The killer, "Jigsaw," leaves them messages of how to make it out alive, but the only way is to do the unthinkable.

MOVIE BUZZ

Like so many nerds if they had the money, DreamWorks is offering Scarlett Johansson a ton of cash to play an anime character. The studio will pay her $10 million to star in the live-action remake of Ghost in the Shell as a cybernetically-enhanced leader of a special ops team.

Tom Hardy, Will Smith, and Margot Robbie are close to joining the Suicide Squad, the only super-powered team as likely to draw complaints as the Just Kill Yourself Corps. Suicide Squad, about the supervillains who avoid going to superjail by carrying out high-risk black ops tasks for the government, was just scheduled to come out in 2016.

Director Shawn Levy is in talks to make the Warner Bros. adaptation of the best-selling video game Minecraft after the studio's huge success in block-based construction movies earlier this year with their Lego Movie, but Minecraft is supposedly going to be live-action.

Christian Bale has figured out the latest way he'll radically change weights for a movie, bring his complicated relationship with high-end computers to the lead in Jobs, the film about three generations of Steve Jobs' product presentations. Now we honor the tech innovator by no longer having his most famous representation be Ashton Kutcher.

After years of trying to save the whales, In the Heart of the Sea is going to take us back to the good old days of screw whales. Chris Hemsworth, Cillian Murphy, and Benjamin Walker star as the crew of the whaling ship Essex. Killing a bunch of tortoises, burning down an entire island, getting sunk by a massive whale, and eventually eating one another—just boys being boys—would serve as the inspiration for Herman Melville's classic Moby-Dick.

Halloween is a fun time for kids and adults alike. Here is a whole grab bag of fun-sized events for the whole family, from now through the end of the month.

Great River Reapers Haunted Graveyard Food Drive
Now-October 31 @ 5-10 p.m. Sun-Thur, 1-11 p.m. Fri-Sat
2750 Burden Ave

The Haunt features a castle façade, 14 foot spider on the roof, animated figures, a homemade horse drawn hearse which is pulled in the Dubuque and Asbury Halloween Parades. They have several different displays including a Mausoleum, a Chop Shop, Mad Scientist lab, witches gathering, Sider Alley and a new surprise exhibit. Parents are encouraged to bring little ones during daylight, as it is scary at night with lighting and music, which begin at dusk. On Halloween expect to see several costumed haunters scaring the visitors! This is free and open to the public. For more information, visit Great River Reapers on Facebook.

Halloween/ Texas Chainsaw Massacre
Fridays & Saturdays:
Now-October 31 @ Midnight
Mindframe Theaters

Celebrate Halloween with the original "Halloween" and "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre" at Mindframe Theaters! Each movie will be show at midnight on Fridays and Saturdays through October. This is not a double feature as both films will play at midnight.

Fear Forest Haunted Trail Hayride
Fridays and Saturdays: October 10-November 1
Shenandoah Riding Center, Galena, IL

Join us for a suspenseful tractor-pulled hayride to our haunted trail with only the light of the moon to guide your way. Brave souls beware, for the creatures of the night lie in wait and they are just dying to meet you! Fear forest isn't like any other haunted house because it takes place in a REAL forest with all the creepy, natural ambiance to go with it. There aren't any walls to protect you from the horrors that lurk beyond the trees, are you brave enough... Fear Forest is located at the Shenandoah Riding Center in Galena, IL! We open Friday, October 10th and run every Friday and Saturday until November 1st. Tickets open at 6 p.m. and the haunted trail begins just after dark! It'll only cost you $15 bucks for the scare of your life! Find them on Facebook.

Vesperman Farms Corn Maze and Pumpkin Patch
Through the fall

8149 Stage Road, Lancaster, WI
 This season, the farm is open seven days a week through the fall (Monday - Friday, Noon - 6 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m. - 7 p.m. and Sundays, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.). You and the family, friends, co-workers, heck, everybody, can make your way to Vesperman Farms and lose yourself, quite literally, in the amazing corn maze. It's as simple as wandering into the tall corn and choosing which way you'll turn at each opportunity.

Will you make it through in mere minutes or will you be there all day? Never fear, they won't let you get lost for real. Plus fun stuff like the trebuchet, the rubber duck races, the farm animals, the tires, the air cannon, the snack shack with the caramel apples and the apple cider doughnuts. General admission to the farm is $6 for everyone 6 and up.

Dark Chambers Haunted Attraction
October 23-26, 30-31, November 1
Dark Chambers (Port of Dubuque)

Dark Chambers Haunted Attraction, the tri-states' most exciting haunted house experience returns for 2014 with an all new haunt! Test your nerves through more than 5,000 square feet of dark turns and terrifying sights will get your heart pounding. It's so big, it had to continue outside! This year's haunt is a big of everyone's favorites elements from the first three years combined into a greatest hits of scares, plus plenty of brand new rooms and tricks for your scareification. This year's remaining creepy dates are mainly weekends, October 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31 (Halloween night) and November 1. Light Fright runs from 6:00-7:00 p.m. with Full Scare following from 7:00-11:00 p.m. Dark Chambers Haunted Attraction is located just off Highway 151 in the Port of Dubuque at 121 E 4th St., just behind the Diamond Jo Casino. Admission is only $10 for the full scare or just $5 for the "Light Fright" (a less intense haunt experience, with more lights and fewer actors). Ages five and under are always free, and they will never close while there is a line. For more information, visit www.darkchambers.com.

Fever River Puppeteers presents: "Frankie's Story" October 25

Hazel Green Opera House
Ever wonder how Frankie came to live with Witch Hazel Green and call her Ma? Turns out, the big green guy has been wondering too. Join us at the Hazel Green Opera House for the big reveal! Shows will be at 11 a.m. on October 18 and 25 and 2 p.m. on October 16, 18-19, and 25. Tickets for all performances are $5 for adults and $4 for children 12 and younger. Doors open a half hour before each weekend performance. Performances are approximately 45 minutes. After each show, the puppeteers answer questions and bring out some of the marionettes so that the audience can learn more about the art of puppetry. For information, call 608-732-6404.

every 15 minutes. Crafts and snacks will also be available. Space is limited. To reserve a spot, call (563) 556-6745.

DOG-O-WEEN Contest Sunday, October 26 @ 1 p.m. Theisen's

The DOG-O-WEEN Contest is hosted by Theisen's of Dubuque to raise funds for the Dubuque Humane Society and is done in conjunction with the Humane Society. There will be a $7 entry fee per dog and all money collected will be donated to the Dubuque Humane Society. Plus, to offset that entry fee, Theisen's is giving each participant a $7 Theisen's Gift Card! Registration begins at 11 a.m. that day at Theisen's of Dubuque. A panel of judges will evaluate each dog's costume. Prizes will be awarded for two categories: dog only and combo (dog and person(s)). For official contest rules, please visit the Dubuque Theisen's Store or go to dbqhumane.org.

Trick-or-Treat at the Museum & Aquarium Sunday, October 26 @ 4-7 p.m. National Mississippi River Museum & Aquarium

The Dubuque County Historical Society celebrates its 26th annual Trick-or-Treat event at the Museum & Aquarium on Sunday, October 26 from 4 to 7 p.m. Guests are invited to walk the decks of the William M. Black steamboat and explore the boatyard and wetland areas, while meeting various characters giving treats out along the way. The Trick-or-Treat event provides a safe, non-scary and family-fun experience for children 12-years-old and younger. All children must be accompanied by an adult. The event costs $4.00 per person ages 3 and older; regular Museum & Aquarium admission charges do not apply at this event since it takes place outdoors in the boatyard plaza. The Historical Society permits costumes, but for safety reasons, no masks. Remember, no strollers are allowed on the William M. Black boat.

YMCA Halloween Parade Monday, October 27 @ 6:30 p.m. Main Street, Downtown Dubuque

Ghosts and goblins of all ages will converge once again for perhaps the most popular parade of the year in Dubuque. Line up begins promptly at 5:30 p.m. at Jackson Park and the parade begins at 6:30 p.m., following the usual parade route, ending at Washington Park. Scores of groups come out in full costumed madness for a super-fun hour in the streets of Dubuque. Prizes will be awarded to organizational floats, business floats and walking groups.

Codfish Hollowen Part Two:
Har Mar Superstar, The Pizza Underground,
Candy Boys
Codfish Hollow Barn, 7:30 p.m.

The Codfish Hollow Barn near Maquoketa hosts a special Codfish “Hollowen” Part Two: Featuring Har Mar Superstar, The Pizza Underground (with Macaulay Culkin) and Candy Boys. Famous for his over-the-top sexy R&B songs and his sweaty live performances that often feature him stripping down to his underwear, Har Mar Superstar will undoubtedly bring the funk to the Codfish Hollowen party. Not the only “superstar” on the bill, Macaulay Culkin will also appear with his band, The Pizza Underground, who perform covers of Velvet Underground songs with titles and lyrics changed to be about pizza. They are joined by Brooklyn “boy band” duo Candy Boys. Tickets are $20 in advance and $25 at the gate. As always at Codfish Hollow, it is an all-ages show. No alcohol is served, but coolers are welcome. Food and non-alcoholic beverages will be available for purchase. Pizza from Bombfire Pizza and candy will also be available. The Codfish Hollow Art Gallery will be open, featuring artwork by various local artists. Vendors from the tri-state area will be on hand selling various arts, crafts and jewelry. Free parking with hay rack rides to and from the barn as well as free camping in the cow pasture. As this is a Halloween show, costumes are encouraged! Doors are at 7 p.m. on Friday, October 31. codfish-halloween-part-two-tickets-12644162029.

Laura & The Longhaired Goats
Mississippi Moon Bar, 8 p.m.

Live music for the Friday festivities will be provided by Laura & The Longhaired Goats, a rare combination of the bands Laura & The Longhairs, featuring well-known vocalist Laura McDonald (Crystal Leather, Blue & Evol), and The Lonely Goats, fresh off performances at festivals like All That Jazz, Chili Cook-Off, and Galena Oktoberfest. Together, the combined groups can cover a wide range of music, perfect for the kind of epic Halloween party for which the Moon Bar is known. Costumes are definitely encouraged, though note that masks or face paint are not allowed to be worn in the casino and the official costume contest is the next night, on Saturday.

Boo Bash with BackRoads
Mystique Casino, 8 p.m.

Mystique Casino hosts the Boo Bash in the Cabaret room featuring live music by BackRoads. They sing current hit country and rock. There is no cover charge and costumes are encouraged but note that no masks, face paint, or large-brimmed hats will be allowed in the casino as guests must be identifiable.

Broken Strings Spirits, 8 p.m.

There’s always a party at the lounge in the Days Inn on Dodge Street and what could be more appropriate on Halloween than to party at a place called “Spirits?” Broken Strings, featuring the talents of Jon Sendt from Taste Like Chicken and Elizabeth Pape from Zero 2 Sixty will be performing a range of hits to make the party.

Easy Street

Easy Street claims to have the “biggest, best, and most decked out Halloween Party on Main Street again this year on Halloween Night.” And with some of the best costume contest prizes and drink specials, they just might be right. For starters, Best Costume and Sexiest Costume each take home $200 in cash! Even better, the Best Couple Costume wins a three-day, two-night trip for two to Las Vegas with $500 in “Vegas money.” But really, everyone’s a winner with drink specials starting at 8 p.m. with $2 Oktoberfest, $2 Giant PBR Mugs, and $2 Shot List Shots. There’s no cover so no reason not to go!

Jordan Danielsen
Grape Escape, 8 p.m.

Miss Kitty’s Grape Escape celebrates Halloween night with a Zombie Dance Party featuring live music by Jordan Danielsen. Be sure to dress in costume – the more gruesome, the better! There will be fun spooky drink specials and give aways!

Nathan Miller & Unstoppable Co.
Flatted Fifth Blues & BBQ, Potter's Mill, 8 p.m.

Flatted Fifth Blues & BBQ at Potter's Mill in Bellevue invites everyone to join them for their first ever Halloween Party featuring the music of Minneapolis blues lap slide guitarist Nathan Miller & Unstoppable Co. along with some as of yet, undefined "slide" specials (Pulled pork sliders? Mudslides?). Guess we'll have to go to find out!

Fever River String Band
McCarthy's Bar, Benton, 8:30 p.m.

The Fever River String Band, who are spooky good at bluegrass and old-timey tunes make Halloween a party at McCarthy's Bar in Benton, Wisconsin.

Halloween Party and Costume Contest with The Grasshoppers
The Lift, 9 p.m.

Join us for a journey to the center of the mind this Halloween as we welcome The Grasshoppers back to The Lift after a long absence. The band has vowed to do two sets: one comprised of Pink Floyd hits and deep tracks, the other a full set of Grateful Dead tunes. There will most certainly be other psych nuggets thrown into the mix. The Lift will also be hosting the annual costume contest with The Grasshoppers help. First prize is $300!

DJ Jevity, Mister Whiskerz
Eronel, 9 p.m.

The spooky stone cavern below Crust known as Eronel hosts two parties over the Halloween weekend: A Friday night Halloween Party and a Saturday night Halloween/Day of the Dead Party (see below for more info on that one). Friday night's Halloween Party will feature DJ Jevity and Mister Whiskerz spinning tunes for the all night dance party as well as serving as MCs for the costume contest, which will probably feature prizes toward covering your bar tab. Dress to win, but bring your friends.

Brown Bottle Bandits
Dirty Ernie's, 9 p.m.

Dirty Ernie's in downtown Farley hosts the Brown Bottle Bandits on Halloween night for a party worthy of the Heart of the Cornbelt.

Hot Mess
Jumpers Sports Bar & Grill, 9 p.m.

Jumpers repeats the Halloween fun on the actual night of the holiday with the live music of Hot Mess getting the party started. Costumes are, of course, encouraged and as far as party starters go, $3 aluminum pints of Coors Light and Bud Light will definitely help in that direction.

Moonshine Sorrow
Northside Bar, 9 p.m.

Dubuque's North End neighborhood bar, Northside, hosts a great annual Halloween Party and this year promises to be even better with outlaw country outfit Moonshine Sorrow providing the drinking music. Northside will conduct a costume contest with prizes awarded in the categories of "Scariest," "Sexiest," and "Most Unique." Guests indulging in Northside drink specials might have trouble distinguishing between the categories.

Hoodoo Halloween Party
Aaron Williams & The Hoodoo
Sandy Hook Tavern, 10 p.m.

As the actual Halloween holiday falls on a Friday night, the Sandy Hook Tavern in Southwest Wisconsin is set to celebrate in a big way. Madison blues trio Aaron Williams & The Hoodoo are sure to get the Halloween dance party going and the Sandy Hook costume contest is sure to inspire some great costumes with a total of $500 in cash being awarded. Prizes and contest categories include $100 for Original/Group, $100 for Sexiest, and $200 for Best Costume. Note that those competing in the contest must register by midnight and not a minute later for the 1 a.m. contest judging. That means no showing up just in time for the contest. But why would you do that when there is such a great party going on? There is a $5 cover charge ($20 for a group in costume) but all door proceeds go to supporting Roadcrew, that great program in SW Wisconsin that will give your drunk ass a ride home.

Saturday, November 1

Saturday, November 1

Derty Rice
Los Aztecas, Asbury, 6 p.m.

Zydeco party band Derty Rice gets more in touch with their Latin side (Spanish Rice?) for a Halloween / Dia de Los Muertos (Day of the Dead) party on the patio at Los Aztecas in Asbury. Afraid it might be cold? Don't be – Los Aztecas has installed windows in their covered, heated, and now sealed patio area. Plus, everyone who wears a costume will get a free drink! Just make sure you can dance in it.

Club 84 Monster's Ball
Mississippi Moon Bar, Diamond Jo Casino, 8 p.m.

Club 84 at the Mississippi Moon Bar in the Diamond Jo Casino presents the Monster's Ball on Saturday, November 1st, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. With so much going on on Friday, this seems like not only the only game in town on Saturday night for adults on Halloween, it's also likely the biggest single halloween party of the weekend. And with almost no competition, it's should be a full party. Once again the Moon Bar will be giving out stellar prizes for costumes including Best 70's & 80's, Sexiest, Best Group and Best Theme. Plus howling good drink specials all night, with Happy Hour from 10p-12a! And you know that Club 84 knows how to bring the boogie monster out in you!

Billy Dreamer, The Meatcurtains, Legal Fingers
Eronel, 9 p.m.

Eronel's second big weekend party celebrates Halloween and Day of the Dead with a rock show featuring Billy Dreamer, The Meatcurtains and Legal Fingers. For those still in the spirit of wearing costumes, by all means get dressed up as there will be prizes for those who do it best and spooky drink specials to bring out the demons, monsters, witches, and zombies in the rest of you.

Menace
Knicker's Bar & Grill

In what is becoming a Halloween tradition on Central Avenue, hard rock ringleaders Menace host the fifth annual Menace Halloween Bash at Knicker's Bar & Grill from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. While we have no "official" word of a costume party or contest, photos from past Menace Halloween parties would indicate that wearing of costumes is encouraged. However, if you're thinking about a "biker" costume, chances are you are not going to win.

Flatted Fifth Blues & BBQ

by Rich Belmont

Musicians will tell you the Tritone known as the Devil's Interval is called the Flatted Fifth. It is a discordant or dissonant sound that is quite unexpected when listening to otherwise harmonious music.

Flatted Fifth is an appropriate name for the new restaurant opened August 1, 2014 in the Potter's Mill, Bellevue, IA. When you hear the Devil's Interval it is so different and unexpected and yet so enticing. Just like the discovery of great BBQ, Southern food, Blues and Jazz music inside a 171 year old gristmill in Eastern Iowa.

Potter's Mill, which is on the National Register of Historic Places, was established in 1843 by Elbridge Gerry Potter making it the oldest flour mill in Iowa. It began operating in 1845, was powered by an overshot waterwheel installed in what became known as Big Mill Creek, and began selling flour under the Jasper brand name. The mill was operated over the years by several different owners. It ceased producing flour in 1969.

It is currently owned by Dr. Daryll and Carolyn Eggers who purchased it at auction in 1980 and completely restored it.

Flatted Fifth is owned by Mark & Rachel Herman. Mark was a management consultant and church business administrator before becoming General Manager at Flatted Fifth. His wife, Rachel, MS, RN, CNP was and still is an instructor and Clinical Placement Coordinator at Winona State University, Rochester, MN campus. Rachel books the music venues for the restaurant and is usually the Hostess on Friday and Saturday nights.

Mark and Rachel are living their dream: capturing the soul of a Mississippi River City by providing the BBQ and Blues of Memphis and the Southern cuisine and Jazz of New Orleans. They maintain a full bar with 7 brews on tap and over 34 beers in bottles. The second floor is used for banquets and wedding receptions and the third and fourth floors are a 4 room bed and breakfast. It's a great place to stay if you don't want to drive anywhere after listening to some wonderful music. Or perhaps you just want to hang out in the historic City of Bellevue, home of Bellevue State Park and Lock and Dam No.12 on the Mississippi River.

Flatted Fifth is all about Blues and Jazz on week-ends. However, the focus every day is on great tasting smoked BBQ and New Orleans style Southern cooking. (By the way, Louisiana natives call their most famous city Noo AWL-lunz and frequently refer to it as NOLA for New Orleans, Louisiana.)

I cannot say enough good things about Flatted Fifth's NOLA cuisine. It is excellent and is the accomplishment of a truly talented and creative chef. Executive Chef Andrew Weis is a 2006 graduate of Le Cordon Bleu College of Culinary Arts in Mendota Heights, MN. He was a chef at Eagle Ridge Resort, Bittersweet on the Bluff and Woodfire Grill in the Diamond Jo Casino before becoming Executive Chef at Hotel Julien Dubuque. When he accepted the position of Executive Chef at Flatted Fifth he came full circle having started his cooking career in the very same kitchen as a Potter's Mill prep cook in 2002.

Chef Drew has received many accolades for creating extraordinary tastes. Recently he received both the Professional Panel and People's Choice Culinary Awards at the Iowa Restaurant Association's Dine Iowa Grand Tasting Gala.

When you dine at Flatted Fifth you are missing out if you don't start your meal with one of Chef Drew's appetizers. Try the Fried Pickles: quick process pickles otherwise known as 8 hour pickles are used. Basically they are cucumbers, coated in a thin batter and fried just long enough so they don't dry out. The Fried Green Tomatoes are awesome! Slices of green tomatoes are hand breaded, fried and topped with Comeback Sauce and chilled crab meat salad.

Both the pickles and the green tomatoes are served with an impressive homemade Comeback Sauce. You say you have never heard of Mississippi Comeback Sauce? It's a cross between a rémoulade (ray-moo-lahd) and Thousand Island dressing made with mayo, sweet chili sauce, ketchup, mustard, vegetable oil and Worcestershire.

The Smoked Salmon is also exceptional. Jail Island Atlantic Salmon are farm raised in their natural environment in the Bay of Fundy between the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia on Canada's east coast.

My favorite appetizer is the Pork Belly Cracklings. These are cubes cut from uncured pork belly. The pork is simmered to render out most of the fat and then is deep fried in very hot oil. These cubes are not to be confused with bacon rinds which are also called cracklings but are fried pig skins that puff up during cooking. Fun Fact: Pork Belly is uncured, Pancetta is cured and Bacon is cured and smoked. Prosciutto is a cured ham and is not at all like bacon.

The Smoked Meats are all tremendous. Pork Shoulder, Saint Louis Style hand trimmed Rib Racks, Angus Brisket and Marinated Half-Chickens are all hand rubbed with Chef Drew's special dry rub made from his own blend of seasonings.

The smoke is derived from food grade hickory wood pellets. They do not contain fillers or binders that might contaminate the food. The pellets are automatically fed into the smoker as needed which is helpful in allowing the meats to cook at controlled temperatures. In the hands of a skilled chef the meat remains tender and juicy and the use of a wet mop or sop is not required.

I have also found the BBQ sauces are not needed either because all the meats are so good without them. However, the three sauces are homemade and they are all terrific. They are:

- Vinegar - Ketchup and vinegar based... tasty on pulled pork.
- Red BBQ - Tomato with a little sweet and just a touch of heat.
- Mustard - Smooth golden mustard with a little black pepper and lightly sweetened with brown sugar.

The smoked dinners come with cornbread muffins. They are drizzled with honey and are quite tasty. In case you are wondering about the colors in the muffins they are bits of red bell pepper and parsley giving them a festive appearance.

The side dishes include Baked Beans, Potato Salad, and Red Beans & Rice. The French Fries are unusual because they are sprinkled with a smoked seasoning. I recommend the Corn Maque Choux (mock-shoe). This dish contains corn, green bell pepper, tomatoes and onions braised in a pot with chicken stock.

The Southern Specialties are all New Orleans Style comfort food and are outstanding. The Shrimp and Cheesy Grits contain a number of sautéed shrimp in a light sauce on top of roasted vegetables and White Cheddar Cheese Grits. The Chicken Pot Pie contains smoked chicken in a filling of onions, celery, carrots, peas and corn. On a recent visit Julie, one of my taste testers, said she really enjoyed the New Orleans Bouillabaisse (boo-yah-behss): a stew of tomato broth and onions, tomato, white wine, olive oil, garlic and saffron and fresh scallops, shrimp, little neck clams and whitefish.

Other taste testers raved about the Jambalaya, Red Beans & Rice containing smoked rope pork sausage and andouille (an-DOO-ee) sausage and Blackened Catfish fillet topped with crab meat and lightly drizzled with Béarnaise sauce.

Then there are two chicken dinners I highly recommend: Chicken Étouffée (ay-TOO-fay). A breast in a creamy roux of butter and flour and chopped celery, onions and green bell peppers (the holy trinity) served over a bed of rice. And Chicken Tchoupitoulis (chop-a-two-liss). This one has 2 blacked chicken breasts served over diced potatoes, smoked ham, onions and peppers and topped with Béarnaise sauce.

After enjoying a sumptuous meal you just have to finish it off with a scrumptious dessert. During our tasting session we enjoyed Cherry Cobbler, Bourbon Bread Pudding and an Ice Cream Sandwich (actually this last one was a bowl of very rich ice cream and two chocolate chip cookies)!

The current entertainment schedule includes:

- Oct 25 – the Tornadoes Blues Band, Iowa City*
- Oct 31 – Nathan Miller & Unstoppable Co., Minneapolis*
- Nov 15 – Ellis Kell & Tony Hoepfner, Davenport*
- Nov 29 – Skinny Money, Dubuque*

On week-end evenings I encourage you to visit Flatted Fifth and come for the food and stay for the music!

SUSTAINABILITY PRINCIPLE:

CLARKE STUDENTS & STAFF LEAD THE SUSTAINABILITY WAY

BY CLARKE UNIVERSITY EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF MARKETING AND COMMUNICATION, KEN BROWN

Sustainability has always been a priority at Clarke University, and the composting program started by Clarke University Dining Services is the latest example.

The program, in which visitors to the Dining Hall discard their refuse in one of three bins – recycling, compost and garbage – has helped Clarke keep a lot of food out of area landfills.

“We are filling two more city bins than we used to,” said Miles Breed, Clarke’s director of Dining Services. “We are now up to five 65-gallon bins for compost, emptied twice a week.”

Keeping food out of the landfill might not seem like a big deal, but according to the EPA, 20 percent of all solid waste is food scraps.

“The program really helps raise awareness on how much food we’re wasting,” said Breed.

The fact that the city of Dubuque now allows meat scraps to be composted as well has helped the effort. Full Circle Organics opened in 2012 in Epworth, Iowa. They are a commercial composting facility that can take meat scraps. According to Cori Burbach, Sustainable Community coordinator for the city of Dubuque, the city currently has a contract with Full Circle to dispose of the food scraps picked up curbside. In addition, Clarke also uses compostable napkins, paper cups and silverware.

“All our to-go stuff is also compostable,” said Steve Neese, Clarke’s executive chef. “And napkins are compostable, as are our ice cream cups. We’re composting everything we possibly can. And not having to separate the meat scraps has been important.”

In 2008, Clarke eliminated trays in the dining hall, saving the water it would take to clean them, and encouraging people to take less food. Composting is the next step in the effort to further the sustainability of dining services.

“These are two very important parts of our Resource Management sustainability principle,” Burbach said. “We try to teach folks to reduce their consumption first so there isn’t waste to manage in the first place, and eliminating trays has been shown to do that as students take smaller portions. To now be composting is a fantastic next step, finding a beneficial use for a product that was previously wasted. Congrats to Clarke!”

“We’ve come a long way,” Neese said. “We’re very happy, very excited. A very small portion of our waste is going to the landfill.”

Other sustainability programs at Clarke:

- Oct. 16 was World Food Day. The lunch menu in the cafeteria consisted of 100% locally sourced food, and there was a “mini farmers’ market” for students to interact with different vendors. The Rescue Mission had information about its huge community garden, and the Food Co-op provided information about its student-rate membership program.
- Clarke’s student sustainability group, CLEAN (Clarke Leading Environmental Action Now) has been exploring a number of activities, including a student canoeing trip at the Mines of Spain, and partnering with the BVMs who work with the group TerraCycle, which recycles non-traditional recyclable consumer products (the BVMs focus specifically on recycling oral care products like old toothbrushes, used toothpaste tubes, etc.).

- At our CONNECT orientation program this year, an entire afternoon was devoted to sustainability activities on campus. Students divided into small groups and worked on various projects: building rain barrels, upcycling old clothing for other purposes, hanging tree sweaters, building bird houses, and repainting recycling bins to make them more eye-catching around campus.
- Clarke’s garden continues to be tended by student interns, who work with the ISU Extension office’s master gardeners to plant/harvest seasonal crops. There are other things Clarke is doing every day to be stewards of the environment, from energy-efficient infrastructure such as low-flow toilets and showers in dorm buildings to LED lighting options replacing old outdated light fixtures all over campus. All these little things add up to help our environment! ■

FOOD SCRAPS PROGRAM

More food reaches landfills and incinerators than any other single material! In 2012, 36 million tons of food waste was generated in the U.S. Try this strategy to keep your food scraps out of the landfill, and learn more about the City of Dubuque’s curbside food scrap recycling program (cityofdubuque.org/foodscraps) today!

Fall Entertaining...

Are you ready for fall entertaining? Every Halloween I am quickly reminded of how important it is to be fall ready. Living on Grandview, I get lots of trickier treaters along with their parents visiting my front doorstep. Teamed with the fact that I love entertaining for Thanksgiving, fall is a great time to spruce up the house and get ready for all of those guests.

If you are like me, I spend more time "pinning" projects on Pinterest vs. actually completing them. Here are a couple of easy projects that will make sure your home is company ready as soon as those little ghosts and goblins appear.

Pinterest Project #1:

Carve your home's address into a pumpkin, real or fake! (Below)

Pinterest Project #2:

Make a pumpkin topiary.

Pinterest Project #3:

Don't have an ice bucket? No dip container? Carve one out of a pumpkin!

Pinterest Project #4:

3 words: Caramel Apple Bar! Unexpected guest? These simple ingredients make for an engaging snack.

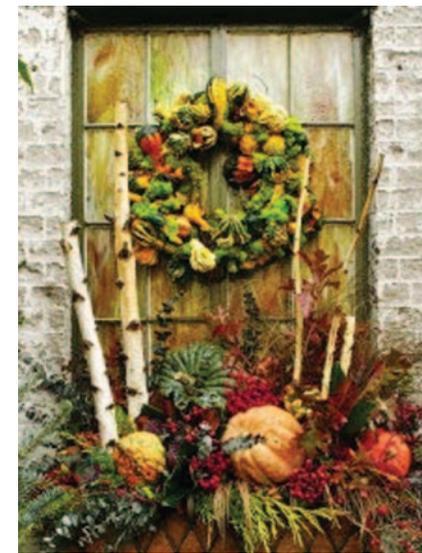

Pinterest Project #5: Formal Thanksgiving Dinner? This easy tablescapes will make you look at the top of your game using easily found objects.

Pop Up A Halloween Treat

with nutritionists
Megan Horstman (Asbury)
Amy Cordingley (Locust)
and Brian Scheil (Dodge)

Creating a healthy Halloween holiday may seem challenging at times, especially since kids often have multiple celebrations: at school, with friends and in the community trick-or-treating. However, celebrating Halloween doesn't have to be about giving up all the treats, just bringing them into balance.

Teach your kids that "treats" can fit into a healthful meal after all the other food groups have been consumed. Eat candy as part of a well-balanced meal instead of as a snack between meals.

Have your children eat a good meal before they trick-or-treat. Serve your child a nutritious meal or snack before going trick-or-treating so he/she won't dig into the bag of candy before he/she gets home.

Divide candy into weekly and daily portions - when it's all gone, they need to wait until the next day or week. Let your kids pick out a few of their favorite candy pieces to have each day.

A good rule of thumb to remember: parents are in charge of what kids eat and when they will eat the candy.

Candy can be frozen to help with portion control. Halloween is a fun night for kids, so enjoy small portions of candy.

Popcorn is a great low-calorie snack option at only 31 calories per cup for air-popped and 43 calories for butter-flavored microwave popcorn. This poppable whole grain contains a good source of fiber, which is great for overall gut health and helps control appetite.

Try this popcorn ball recipe for a Halloween treat. You can find many Halloween recipe ideas at HYPERLINK "http://www.hy-vee.com" www.hy-vee.com.

Ooey-Gooey Popcorn Balls

Serves 10 (1 ball per serving)

All you need:

1 (2.7 oz) bag Orville Redenbacher's® SmartPOP!® 94% Fat Free Butter Microwave Popcorn, 1/4 cup butter, 4 cups miniature marshmallows, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

All you do:

1. Prepare popcorn according to package directions. Transfer popped kernels to large heatproof bowl being careful to remove all unpopped kernels; set aside.
2. Place butter in medium microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on HIGH 30 seconds or until melted. Add marshmallows; microwave 90 seconds more (marshmallows will appear puffed). Add vanilla and stir well with heatproof spatula.
3. Pour marshmallow mixture over popcorn; stir to coat. Form popcorn mixture into 2-1/2-inch balls, rolling firmly by hand.

Cook's Tips

Feeling festive?

Orange food coloring may be added to the melted marshmallows for a Halloween look. Then press a small piece of black licorice or a candy corn into the top of each popcorn ball to mimic a stem on a pumpkin.

Or, add 1/2 cup Hy-Vee® dry roasted peanuts to reserved popcorn. Omit vanilla and replace with 1/2 cup Peter Pan® Creamy Peanut Butter. Continue with recipe as directed.

Worry

by Matt Booth

The modern world provides many opportunities for worry. Long lines at the store, rush hour traffic, Ebola, ISIS, and global warming are all examples of things that can cause worry a daily basis. It's not unusual to feel stressed out and overwhelmed. You can worry about your family, your job, your health, your friends and your community. Worry is a lasting preoccupation with past or future events. There isn't one situation that is made better by worry. Worry has only one result - it makes matters worse. If you constantly worry, you'll never be able to focus on solutions.

Worrying is feeling uneasy or being overly concerned about a situation or problem. With excessive worrying, your mind and body go into overdrive as you constantly focus on "what might happen." A friend of mine once said, "If I worry enough, it will prevent bad things from happening." She always had this feeling of impending doom and would see anything and anyone as a potential threat.

Thinking through problems and challenges is a healthy response to life pressures and helps you find solutions. Often, instead of logically thinking through problems, you get caught up with unresolved concerns and begin to worry. If not managed, worry quickly becomes an obstacle and you obsess over situations you can only partly control or are powerless to change. Worry will disrupt your life, hamper your ability to focus, and keep you from falling asleep at night.

No one is without problems; they are part of living. Worry is a bad habit. The good news is, like any habit, it can be broken. Recognizing when you begin to worry is the beginning. Most people are unaware when they have started to worry. By being conscious of starting to worry, you can switch it off before it has the opportunity to affect your emotions and thoughts. You can reduce or eliminate worry by distracting your mind. Try thinking about something positive, going for a walk, splashing cold water on your face, calling a friend, or listening to your favorite music.

Stanley Allyn said, "There is no use worrying about things over which you have no control, and if you have control, you can do something about it instead of worrying." Don't get stressed out or overwhelmed. Worry solves nothing and only makes matters worse. If the cause of your worry is something you can change, then channel that worry into solutions.

I Got the Blues in Chicago?

By Bob Gelms

In this issue I have the unmitigated pleasure of telling you what a splendid time I had reading Maxwell Street Blues by Marc Krulewitch. He is a Chicago writer with the windy city wound up in his DNA. I grew up on the South Side of Chicago and I had great fun placing the events in the book on the streets and in the neighborhoods where they happened. Chicago, as you may know, is the home of the blues and the epicenter is a little strip along Maxwell St. near Halsted where, for an eternity, a flea market and outdoor food vendors vied for the attention of hungry shoppers. Providing the musical backdrop to all this were bands of musicians setting up in the street, in the alley, and in your face and they were playing the hottest most authentic blues music anywhere on the planet. It was a mecca for musicians from around the world and a few from the South Side of the city trying to broaden their horizons. This is the backdrop for a large chunk of the book.

Jules Landau is a private eye, newly minted and somewhat untested in investigating murders. The murder in question is one Charlie "Snooks" Snook, a friend of Jules' family. Especially Jules' 80-year old father, Bernie Landau. Bernie, as the book opens, has just done a 16-year stretch in some unnamed charm school (read prison) most probably in Joliet. He shows up at Jules' place with a wad of money and the info that Snooks took two bullets in the head and was dumped on a pile of construction debris at Maxwell and Halsted Streets. Bernie wants Jules to find out who killed him and then do the right thing. Maxwell Street Blues is the story of how Jules goes about doing that.

Jules decided to forego the family business, mid-level gangstering, and go a little straight -- just a little, not too much. Life was pretty good for Jules as a private eye, with all the business he could handle from husbands and wives behaving badly. But Snooks was his first murder so he enlisted the help of another family friend, Sid Frownstein, an old school private eye who had recently retired to a lakefront condo and a hobby of restoring antique cars.

Along the way Jules meets a wild assortment of characters that all have something or other to do with a big deal, obscenely expensive construction project happening at the corner of guess where -- yup, Maxwell and Halsted Streets. There's something fishy in the air and it's not coming from Diversey Harbor. Jules uncovers plenty of red herrings that lead to nowhere but there is one thread piloting its way through the whole story....BIG MONEY.

In Chicago, big money construction contracts attract all kinds of people looking to dip their beaks in the public money pit. There are gangsters, cops, University Presidents, tattoo artists, politicians, an annoying newspaper reporter and Charlie Snook, although Snooks' involvement keeps changing throughout the book. You see, Charlie Snook was an accountant with a genius for laundering money. He knew everybody and everybody knew him. Mr. Snook, obviously, knew too much for his own good.

So Jules sets out to solve the crime with very little experience in the ways of murder and big city corruption. Pertinent advice from family friend Sid, and an attitude with a mouth to match results in Jules' face being rearranged a bit with a well placed fist and a lead pipe, not to mention a few broken ribs.

Maxwell Street Blues is a hit (no not that kind of hit) and you may as well get in on the ground floor because it is the first book in a planned series of books featuring Jules Landau. By the way, you don't have to be from Chicago to enjoy Maxwell Street Blues, it's just that if you are you will recognize a lot of the city that forms the intricate environment for the story. I had a superb time reading it and I'm absolutely sure you will to. Today if you go to Maxwell and Halsted you might hear the sound of a slide guitar and a ghostly voice wailing, "I got the Maxwell Street Blues."

Night People

by pam kress-dunn

One thing I love about Facebook is keeping current with news about Davenport, my hometown. No matter how often I visit, it remains jam-packed with a profound nostalgia that only grows stronger as time goes by.

Take the Draught House, a place on the Mississippi that used to be where the Dock restaurant also used to be. My friend Kathy and I spent far too many Saturday nights there, dancing to music, flirting with boys. The music was live, so we flirted with the band members, too. Never mind that they were ten, maybe fifteen, years older than us. Never mind that we were barely teenagers when we started going there, and far too young to partake in a "draught" of anything stronger than ginger ale. Her sister usually drove us there, until we got licenses and our own clunker hand-me-downs.

In the 60s, two bands played regularly at Davenport's Draught House and Col Ballroom. The Night People were four cute guys, Beatles look-alikes mostly playing covers of British heartthrob songs. The Loved Ones were more sophisticated, playing blues and featuring a talented chick singer.

You can probably guess which band I pledged my love to. The Night People spoke to me, with their long hair and endless covers of songs by the Beatles and the Byrds. I had a full-blown crush on Mike Stroehle, the guy at the keyboard. Had I met him, I know (I hope!) he would have gently sent me home to my mother, but I could dream. When he sang the band's version of "Billy Boy," I thought he was singing straight to me.

Back then, our Saturday nights began with a trip across the river to a hole-in-the-wall Mexican restaurant for the best tacos ever. I had a completely unjustified bias against the Illinois side of the Quad Cities, but I knew the way to the Acapulco. Then we'd zip back to Davenport and make our grand entrance to the club. We never called it a club, but I suppose that's what it was.

There were boys there, of course, but back then – do they do this now? – girls just got up and danced with each other to the fast songs. If a boy came along for a slow song, we could hang onto them and make small circles on the floor, and if not, we'd sit that one out.

I met at least one boyfriend there. His name was Monty, and I have no idea where he lived or which school he went to. I have a couple of pictures indicating he was at least a head taller than me, but then, who wasn't?

When I went off to college, I left The Night People behind, never giving them much thought until a few weeks ago, when a story appeared on my Facebook news feed. I'm a fan of a Quad Cities news station, as well as a page called Retro Q-C, so I'm always getting yanked back in time. But this headline really astonished me. "The Night People: Fifty Years Later and Still Going Strong." Not only were they alive, they were still playing? I was floored.

According to the article, the band started playing together in the early 60s, and did their first gig at the Draught House in 1965, when it opened. Any of you students of ancient history might know something about a bit of flooding that year. That's when Dubuque decided to build a flood wall, and Davenport, well, Davenport decided not to.

As band member Rob Dahms recalled, "The flood of 1965 was the worst we ever had. There were rats and mice, tables and chairs, everything was floating around there. When the water finally receded, there was a main ballroom, a great big ballroom, and a big stage." They got college students to clean the place up, and a nightclub was born.

My cousin Cheryl posted on Facebook that she and her husband would be attending a Night People anniversary concert last weekend. My comment? "Jealous!" She never saw them when she was young; as she put it, "My parents wouldn't let this young, innocent Catholic girl go, geez!"

I'm older than her, but not by much, and I have no idea why my parents let me get away with all the things I did. Maybe they had a limited memory of their own youth. Maybe they just wanted me out of the house. Maybe they figured that since I kept getting As in school, my weekend activities didn't matter.

A band member addressed this, noting, "An article came out in the newspaper saying the Draught House was a den of iniquity."

My big crush, Mike, added, "All the kids snuck down there. They wouldn't tell their parents. It turned out to be a mecca for all of the schools in the area." To meet, not to mention dance, with kids from different schools was the best kind of diplomacy. There was more to these nights than just fun and music.

It's not like there were many other options back then. We could "ride the ones," driving east on 3rd Street and then west on 4th Street until we got dizzy, hoping to find cute boys we could smile at but easily get away from. Drive-in movie theaters abounded, but for a girl, they just weren't as safe.

I have an idea about why my parents let me go out dancing. Hanging on my living room wall is a terrific piece of memorabilia. Inside the frame is a black-and-white photo of my parents, Mom wearing a flower, both of them grinning. The fancy script below proclaims "Club Flamingo, 1359 West Madison Street, Chicago." Back before they were parents, it turns out, they were night people, too.

BACK IN MY DAY...
Questionably Lucid Advice
by ERMA GERD

Dear Erma,

I can't decide what to be for Halloween, a sexy pirate or a sexy school girl. Can you help a girl out?

- Love, Lacy on Loras

Dear Lucy,

Just the other day I cooked a nice, hot meal for my grandkids. My granddaughter shows up in this outfit that barely covered her Woodrow Wilson. I immediately dumped my homemade, hot gravy on her and made Miss Huss-a-lots put on a frock. She hasn't spoken to me since but her burns are healing nicely and her bandages cover up her naughty bits. My suggestion to you is dress warm and show some bare ankle. Men love a sexy bare ankle.

Dear Erma,

All my friends are getting divorced or have been unfaithful to their significant others. Whats happened to our society and how did you and Mr Gerd keep the flame alive for this long?

Sincerely, Ashley in Asbury

Dear Ashley,

Its been a long, hard road with my husband Ralph. There are days that I can't stand the sound of that man breathing. Other days I get lost in his crooked smile. I know behind the tobacco stained teeth and cloud of halitosis is the man I fell in love with. It takes work. People today are too busy on the Twatter and FaceSpace to take the time to sit down face to face and have a conversation. In the old days you sat down and worked it out. Well that and your folks put the fear of God in you.

Dear Erma,

I have a wonderful, loving extended family. We're proud of our Irish heritage, and we enjoy celebrating holidays since we don't see each other often enough. The only trouble is, whenever we get together, all we do is eat, drink and talk. This goes on to the point that we're all doing shots, including my grandma, an 84 year old who is also a great grandmother. On top of this, I worry that my cousins are smoking cigarettes and doing illegal drugs and that my aunts are joining in. I'm hosting the family Halloween Party and Pumpkin Carving Contest this year, and I'm wondering: Are other families like this? When is it acceptable to do such lascivious things at a family event?

- Irish in Iowa

Dear Irish,

Given your familial roots, I suggest that you take your family as they are, imbibing and inhaling. You shouldn't judge your family for letting loose and having fun, even though your grandmother probably looks like the wreck of the hespers when she drinks. I like to live by the age old wisdom: if you can't beat 'em (and in this case, you won't), join 'em!

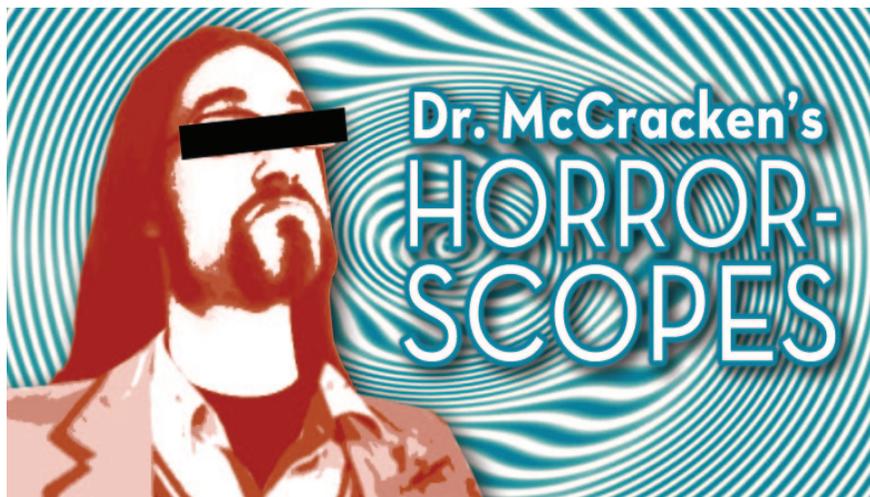

Dear Erma,

My husband just bought a gun to protect our family, but I don't believe that he has to go to such extreme and possibly violent ends. Besides, I am not comfortable using a gun and he is not always at home with me and the children. Wouldn't an alarm system be more economical?

- Gun-shy in Galena

Dear Gun-shy,

An alarm system may be more effective, but a gun is much more cost-effective. Then again, unless you plan to give up gardening club and girls'-night-out for target shooting and self-defense, well, it's your choice. Then again, if you only have one gun, you'd have to follow your husband around everywhere he goes for "protection" - and beside the sad life that would be, it would also smell badly.

Aries 3/21-4/19
If you're feeling depressed by the change in weather, try dressing up as the ghost of a time when you weren't the sort of person who buys gravy online.

Taurus 4/20-5/20
Perhaps you've found success in past Halloweens by dressing up in funny costumes, so continue the trend this year by going as yourself with a job that doesn't make you want to fall face first onto a pile of upright forks.

Gemini 5/21-6/21
To combat an essence of dread over not having a costume ready, simplify everything and just dress up as someone who always means to return their library books on time but always just ends up eating another pizza off their coffee table that's actually just an empty Rubbermaid container they found behind the library when they were busy not returning their books.

Cancer 6/22-7/22
Get scoliosis, a saw, and some tourniquets and dress up as your lucky number, 33.

Leo 7/23-8/22
You've been looking for a good scare lately, and thankfully this time of year means there are tons of options that involve haunted houses and America being the sort of place where the middle class is being squeezed into the already-saturated lower class.

Virgo 8/23-9/22
That craving you've been having for apple cider and pumpkin pie means that diabetes is just around the corner.

Libra 9/23-10/22
The next time you go shopping for costumes, consider how you really feel about degrading yourself for one night of a free bar tab and compare it to how much you can drink while being choked by your own halter top.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21
Don't let stress get to you, even if you've spent the last several Halloweens trying to think of a way to pretend that the pillow you ordered in the shape of an obese woman is part of a costume.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21
You don't understand anyone's costume anymore because the only thing you use the radio for is to win tickets to antique shows and the only thing you use the internet for is looking up pictures of what might happen if your foot rashes touch each other.

Capricorn 12/22-1/19
If you're considering giving away unwrapped Snickers bars to your trick-or-treaters this year, consider saving yourself time by turning your light off, throwing them all in the garbage, and calling yourself a gross old jerk.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18
You've been talking about your costume for this year since last Thanksgiving and it doesn't matter because you're just going to go as whatever makes your boobs not look huge.

Pisces 2/19-3/20
There's no pumpkin carving app, so just have a can of pumpkin pie filling for dinner and pass out alone again.
