Well, that was an interesting couple of weeks. As I abandoned Kristina to finish building the last issue of 365ink without me, so I could complete the emptying of our storage garage, I thought I was being smart to beat the clock and have that sucker cleaned out before the stroke of July 1. After finding homes for all the crap still in there, I was carrying the last piece not yet put away to its temporary final resting place in our basement when fate crept up and bit me in the arse. Actually, it broke my foot and sprained my ankle.

We have a sewer line clean out in the basement. It's a 4" pipe that sticks up from a hole in the floor. The whole thing is lower than floor level by a few inches, and the whole shooting' match is covered by a board... you know... for safety. Since it's directly in front of the last step at the base of the stairs, that's kind of important. However, a couple of months ago we had a sewer line backup (thank you mr. tree root) and the board got, well, a little soaked. Yeah, you don't want details. Needless to say, we threw it away. Since then, we've just been stepping around the hole when we go downstairs.

Here's how adept I am at ignoring fate when it's waving a flag in my face. Just two days before my not-so-graceful crash and burn, the bass player in my band, Tommy, stepped in the hole and twisted his ankle. I won't say anything tying his lack of grace with the fact that he's a bass player. I decided then I needed to get that thing covered. So two days later when I carried that big chair down the stairs, blocking my view ahead, and stepped into that same hole with monster truck force, I had no one to blame but myself.

As I lay on the floor unable to scream or cry because the pain was literally making me wish for a swift death, my wife Christy came to see what the noise was and found me, white as a ghost and writhing in pain. Eventually I was going to have to crawl up those stairs. Following an attempt to put it in ice water, and staving off a strong urge to lose my lunch from the lingering agony, Christy decided we were going the the Emergency Room. My heart was racing and I was sweating up a storm and it wasn't even warm out. I had to stand up again. Just kill me.

We had the great fortune of checking into the E.R. on the same night that those people got shot downtown. How rude. I was there first! Two staff members came in during the first 30 minutes and told us they'd get to me as soon as possible before a third person finally just gave it to me straight and said, "Yeah, you're gonna be here a while." My poor wife, who was exhausted after a marathon day at work before I even got hurt, was fighting sleep through out two-hour wait. Eventually they gave me drugs and got me to an x-ray and the doctor told me I suavely sprained my ankle really good, but for good measure I also deftly broke my foot. Sounds like job for huge ibuprofen and legal narcotics!

The next day I still had to host a huge bluegrass concert in the Millwork District. The parking ticket lady seriously was trying to give us a ticket because my friend dropped my off in the handicapped parking space. Luckily she actually had a permit in her glove box. But seriously, I was on crutches and in a leg brace. If we were not following the letter of the law, certainly we were within the spirit of why those damn spaces exist in the first place. How ridiculous! Anyway, the concert was awesome and we raised $2000 for Toys For Tots!

The day after that my wife was determined to take her visiting parents out to see the Golden Knights jump. It was July 3rd. With my new gimp boot on and straining on my crutches, I eventually figured out that it was a clever ruse to get me there because I was supposed to be given the honorary baton that the Knights pass in mid-jump. It's quite an honor and my slowness made us show up just a couple minutes before they landed, probably giving Perry Mason, who runs the event, an ulcer. But I got there and limped out to the landing zone to accept my gift. Thanks to Perry, the Radio Dubuque crew and the U.S. Army Golden Knights for the wonderful recognition.

I've had this boot for two weeks and have six to go. While it slowed me way down, it hasn't stopped me. I hosted a bluegrass concert, went to the fireworks, hosted a big smoked meat party at my house, visited the Field of Dreams and American Players Theatre, went to the 61 drive-in and organized a Toys For Tots fundraiser at the Sandy Hook (Another $900! Thanks Hookers!), and made another issue of the paper. I even took out the trash and recycling today. I got this, baby! And I already wore through the rubber tips on the end of my crutches in less than two weeks. I'm hoping beyond hope I can walk like a human, boot or not, by August 1st, so I'm not hobbling around Los Angeles. I have another Rush concert to stand through for three hours!

People all said the accident was a sign that I need to slow down and take it easy for a change. Whatever. But more importantly, there's a board over that hole now. ■

FIND WALDO IN DUBUQUE

DAILY: NOW THROUGH JULY 31
DOWNTOWN DUBUQUE

Where's Waldo? In Dubuque, of course! The famous children's book character in the striped shirt and black-rimmed specs is hiding in 25 different local businesses in downtown Dubuque this July. Those who spot him can win prizes—including buttons, book coupons and more. Anyone who wishes to participate can visit River Lights Bookstore, 1098 Main Street, to pick up a "Find Waldo Local in Dubuque!" passport with the names of all the participating sites, and get their passport stamped or signed for each Waldo they spot. The first 125 Waldo seekers to get their passports stamped or signed at 10 or more sites can bring their passports back to River Lights Bookstore to receive an "I found Waldo" pin. Collecting store stamps or signatures at 20 or more businesses will entitle diligent seekers to enter in a grand prize drawing on July 31, with the top prize being a 6-volume deluxe set of Waldo books.

In celebration of Waldo's longevity and popularity, his American publisher, Candlewick Press, is teaming up with the American Booksellers Association and 250 independent bookstores all across the country, including River Lights Bookstore here in Dubuque, Iowa, for some hide and seek fun as well as to encourage communities to patronize their local businesses. There is no charge to participate, and the hunt lasts for the entire month of July. For more information about hunting for Waldo in Dubuque, call River Lights at 563-556-4391. ■

MEET ME @ JAZZ!

DUBUQUE... AND ALL THAT JAZZ! FEATURING THE JIMMYS
FRIDAY, JULY 17 @ 6 PM

Dubuque Main Street's annual series of free summertime festivals held under the Town Clock have become the prime place for friends to meet. And meet they do, by the thousands. Friends, neighbors, relatives, and acquaintances will all have that opportunity Friday, July 17 at the second Dubuque ... and All That Jazz of the 2015 season with a performance by Madison-based blues band The Jimmys.

An award-winning seven-piece blues and R&B band, The Jimmys will be making their All That Jazz! debut. The Jimmys combine the talents of keyboard and Hammond organ wizard Jimmy Voegeli, longtime member of Westside Andy/Mel Ford Band, the drummer from The Georgia Satellites, the four-piece horn section from Clyde Stubblefield's Band, and the legendary blues guitarist Perry Weber on six-string and vocals.

As always, the Dubuque Jaycees will be serving up cold beverages with premium craft beers available at all three beverage stand locations and the capability to take credit/debit cards for beverage ticket purchases making it even easier for festivalgoers to enjoy the event.

In addition to the Jaycees, Dubuque Main Street works with local food vendors to give festivalgoers a variety of tasty food options at All That Jazz. This year's selection of food vendors includes Beauty & The Beef, Carlos O'Kelly's, Freddie's Popcorn, Manna Java World Café, The Chocolate Hog, The Morning Weenie, West Dubuque Tap, and new to the lineup: Candle Ready Cakes.

As appropriate as the "Meet Me @ Jazz" slogan is, it's not the only promotional tool Main Street uses for All That Jazz. Award winning graphic designer Michael Schmalz, Jr. of Refinery Design Company has been creating unique custom artwork for Jazz posters, limited edition prints and T-shirts for years.

So there you have it: Music, food, beverages, and a few thousand of your best friends under the Town Clock. Come on down. Meet me at Jazz. ■

THE GREAT CARDBOARD BOAT RACE

SUNDAY, JULY 26 @ 1-4 PM
DUBUQUE MARINA & YARDARM

Four Mounds is preparing for the annual Great Cardboard Boat Race, which takes place at the Dubuque Marina & Yardarm, 1201 Shiras Ave. Ext. The event consists of a fun-filled, free community day where contestants use their ingenuity (and cardboard, tape, glue and paint) to create and race their boats. This main attraction is supplemented by other fun family activities including a dunk tank, a raffle, and great food and drink. Raffle prizes include three chances to win a night stay at historic Four Mounds.

The event benefits Four Mounds Foundation and the Housing Education and Rehabilitation Training Program, or HEART. HEART Partners include Four Mounds Foundation, Dubuque Community Schools, Dupaco Community Credit Union, NICC, Four Oaks of Iowa and the City of Dubuque.

Participants work year-round rebuilding the Washington Neighborhood, one house at a time. Under the direction of Four Mounds, participants learn work and life skills through homebuilding, restoring historic houses in Dubuque's most vulnerable residential neighborhood. These young people have converted 38 units of derelict housing back into owner-occupied homes and are achieving a 90% graduation rate. Last year's race helped support the development of HEART Bridge, a new program component where students set career goals, earn money for their participation and save toward objectives to reach their goals. If they follow through on their plans, their funding is matched dollar for dollar by partner Dupaco R.W. Hoefler Foundation!

The event is free and open to the public and you need not race to enjoy the day. Individuals, families and companies are encouraged to enter the race with their own handmade boats. The only rules are to restrict building materials to cardboard, tape, glue and paint. A $10 entry fee for each boat goes toward the winner's pot, distributed to the winning participants. Register on-site between 11 AM-noon the day of the race.

Visit the Dubuque Marina & Yardarm Facebook page for more on the event. To learn more about Four Mounds and the HEART program, visit FourMounds.org.

JACKSON COUNTY FAIR

JULY 29–AUGUST 2

JACKSON COUNTY FAIRGROUNDS (MAQUOKETA, IA)

The Jackson County Fair returns with five days of summer fun, July 29 through August 2. The annual event hosted by the Jackson County Fairgrounds on the east edge of Maquoketa will feature the usual fair favorites of rides, food, contests and displays, plus nightly entertainment that includes a miniature rodeo, stock car races, a truck and tractor pull, a concert by Montgomery Gentry, and the ever-popular “Night of Destruction.”

The Jackson County Fair kicks off on Wednesday, July 29 at 6 PM with a parade up Maquoketa’s Main Street and out to the fairgrounds, where the fair’s opening night offers carnival rides and access to indoor exhibits by the 4H, vendors, and other exhibitors. Wednesday night’s featured entertainment will be the Tuff-N-Nuff Miniature Rodeo from 8:30 PM, considered the largest miniature rodeo show in the world. Imagine kids performing all the usual rodeo features—barrel racing, bareback, and even mini-bull riding.

The fair continues on Thursday, July 30 from 11 AM throughout the day with more family entertainment, exhibits, an elephant show, a kid’s pedal pull, and a special Thursday carnival ride discount. Thursday night’s special entertainment will be Stock Car Races, beginning at 6 PM. Area drivers will race the Jackson County Speedway quarter-mile track under the direction of new promoters Tim Current and Ryan Duhme of Darkside Promotions.

Friday’s fair program starts at 9 AM with a flower show and adds an antique tractor show to the usual exhibits and displays. Fairgoers can play “Name That Tune” and bingo Friday afternoon, while the evening’s entertainment will be the ECIPA Truck & Tractor Pull from 6 PM. The 4th year for the ECIPA sanctioned Truck & Tractor Pull, organizers promise an even bigger and better competition and two skids to keep the action moving. Rounding out the night, popular party rock band the Buzz Berries will entertain in the beer hall from 9 PM.

Saturday offers another full day of fair fun with many of the previously mentioned features including a second full day of the antique tractor show. Saturday evening’s entertainment, headlined by ACM and CMA award-winning country music duo Montgomery Gentry, gets started at 5 PM with the Bill Riley State Fair Talent Search talent show, from which finalists will advance to the Iowa State Fair competition. The Saturday night concert starts at 7:30 PM with Maquoketa’s own Jammer, opening for Montgomery Gentry, known for a string of number 1 hits like “Something to Be Proud Of,” “Lucky Man,” “Back When I Knew It All,” and “Roll With Me.” Route 38 will keep the party going at the beer hall after the concert.

The Jackson County Fair wraps up on Sunday with a Western Horse Show (8 AM) a classic car show, and the “Hug-a-Hog Contest,” which offers contestants in a variety of age groups the opportunity in a penned-in mud pit. Sunday evening’s entertainment, the “Night of Destruction,” begins at 6 PM. Part race, part demolition derby, the event includes a variety of vehicles—combines, school busses, trailers, boats (?) and even appliances (?!). Fair organizers note that the event is one of the most attended shows during the fair and promise “total destruction.”

Many of the Jackson County Fair’s contests and exhibits are still open for entry, including the competition for Jackson County Fair Queen. Contestants must be 16–21 years old and a resident of Jackson County. Both kids and adults can participate in the Hug-a-Hog Contest with age groups from 4–6 years old, 7–12, 13–17, and 18 and older. More information about entry into both contests, along with information about crafts, fine arts, quilts, photography, flowers, horses, kids’ pedal pull, garden tractor pull, the cars show, the Bill Riley Talent Show, and much more can be found at JacksonCountyIowaFair.com. ■

ROCK & ROLL REWIND

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7 @ 5 PM-12:30 AM

SATURDAY, AUGUST 8 @ 3 PM-12:30 AM

MISSISSIPPI MOON BAR INSIDE THE DIAMOND JO CASINO

The ever-popular Rock & Roll Rewind returns for its sixth big year at the Diamond Jo Casino's Mississippi Moon Bar on August 7 and 8. Started as an excuse for old friends and former bandmates to reunite for a night, the event has grown into a full weekend of reunions of Dubuque area bands from days gone by. Covering multiple decades of our local rock history, the night is a celebration of the long tradition of great musicians sprouting from the tri-state area. It's also a stellar reason to come out and dance to the music and the bands you've loved all your life. The Mississippi Moon Bar is not only the perfect setting for a great party but also an amazing stage for these artists to reunite, many of whom have not played together or even in public at all in years. But every year, these old pros prove that

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5

Lunch 'n Learn: Preserving Garden Harvest
12:15 PM @ Multicultural Family Center

Gardens around the Dubuque region will soon be producing their late-summer and fall harvests.

It's usually not possible to eat all the fruits and vegetables at harvest time, so the Dubuque County Master Gardeners and the Dubuque Herb Society will be discussing different options for preserving garden produce and utilizing herbs from the garden. Proper food preservation techniques will extend enjoyment of garden produce deep into the winter, and also prevent unnecessary spoilage or waste. Knowing how to preserve produce allows consumers to purchase fruits and vegetables in bulk at harvest time when they are less expensive and store them up for the off-season. Lunch n' Learn talks are presented free of charge at the Multicultural Family Center, 1157 Central Ave. on the first Wednesday of each month at 12:15 PM. For more information, contact Dubuque County Extension at 563-583-6496.

MOVIE BUZZ

At Comic Con, Tarantino told the crowd at his Hateful Eight panel that his new film will feature a score from the legendary composer behind the scores for A Fistful of Dollars, For a Few Dollars More, The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, Once Upon a Time in the West, and more. It will be 86-year-old Ennio Morricone's first Western score in four decades.

Warner Bros. now has a title to go along with their concept of doing Green Lantern over again and less unlikable this time. That title: Green Lantern Corps, implies that this might be more of a cosmic ensemble film akin to Guardians of the Galaxy.

Back in February, Lionsgate CEO Jon Feltheimer told analysts that his company was "thinking about prequel and sequel possibilities" for The Hunger Games franchise. At ComicCon, Josh Hutcherson has confirmed that something like that is indeed happening, spilling the beans on Conan last night as his co-stars looked on like he wasn't supposed to have said that.

Warner Bros. is going to let Ben Affleck write and direct his own Batman movie, co-writing the solo film with prolific comic book writer Geoff Johns, and it will "reflect the Batman character that emerges after Batman v Superman and Justice League," which itself will not land until the end of 2017.

The Hollywood Reporter brings news that Clone High creators Phil Lord and Chris Miller are returning to the realm of invented pasts for famous figures with a Star Wars prequel movie to focus on an early Solo. Just give the part to Chris Pratt already. Veteran Star Wars screenwriter Lawrence Kasdan and his son Jon are handling the script.

Disney is making a live-action comedy about Prince Charming, taking a comic look at the handsomely vanilla stock hero archetype seen in such classics as Snow White, Sleeping Beauty, and Cinderella. ■

RODGERS AND HAMMERSTEIN'S CINDERELLA

AUGUST 6–7 @ 1 PM
AUGUST 7–8 @ 7:30 PM
AUGUST 8–9 @ 2 PM
FIVE FLAGS THEATER

The final show of the Rising Star Theatre Company 2015 season, our annual youth production for performers eight through eighteen is the Broadway classic, Rodgers and Hammerstein's Cinderella. The timeless enchantment of a magical fairy tale is reborn with the Rodgers & Hammerstein hallmarks of originality, charm and elegance. Originally presented on television in 1957 starring Julie Andrews, Rodgers & Hammerstein's Cinderella was the most widely viewed program in the history of the medium. Its recreation in 1965 and 1997 transported new generations to the miraculous kingdom of dreams-come-true. As adapted for the stage, with great warmth and more than a touch of hilarity, the hearts of children and adults alike still soar when the slipper fits.

Over 230 area youth will comprise the cast and crew for this captivating tale. They are lead by Director, Megan Schumacher, and Music Director, Kelsey Duss. Don't miss the magic of six white mice becoming six white horses or a plain yellow pumpkin becoming a golden carriage. Nothing is impossible with a little bit of magic and of course a Fairy Godmother!

Tickets for Cinderella are $10 and can be purchased at the Five Flags Theater Box Office or by calling 800-745-3000. # Dubuque County 62ND ANNUAL Fair

JULY 28–AUGUST 2
DUBUQUE COUNTY FAIRGROUNDS

The Dubuque County Fair, described by organizers as “The Six Best Days of Summer” returns July 28 to August 2 with a full schedule, jam-packed with fun things to see and do for the whole family. This year’s fair is the 62nd for the annual event, held as always at the Dubuque County Fairgrounds just west of the city on Old Highway Road.

STORY BY MIKE IRONSIDE
PHOTOS BY BOB FELDERMAN

With six full days, we were wondering where to begin so we sat down with Dubuque County Fair general manager Jamie Blum to learn more about what’s new and exciting about this year’s fair.

“Oh gosh! There’re a lot of things,” Blum began. “To start with, the original Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are going to be here. All six days they’re going to be here seven hours. You can meet them, get an autograph, get your picture taken with them so that’s exciting. Kids old and young love the Turtles.”

Sponsored by Mindframe Theaters, the fully costumed Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles characters will be roaming the Fairgrounds, no doubt to the delight of fans, to interact with fairgoers, pose for photos and keep the area safe from all manner of underworld criminal types. In addition to the TMNT, the 2015 Fair offers some new features.

“We kind of switched up our schedule this year,” explains Blum. “Tuesday (July 28) is kids’ day. From 10 (AM) to 4 (PM) we have all kinds of free activities for the kids. We have a lot of local business that will set up booths and have activities for them. We have a Pedal Pull, a Frog Jump, free inflatables, and then after that, at 4:00 the carnival opens and they have one-ticket rides so it’s a great value for families. Then we have races on the track that night.”

Wednesday, July 29 will also offer a new and unique focus for the Fair. “Wednesday is the TH Media (sponsored) Heritage Day,” explains Blum. “So we’re going to kind of look back and do some things and kind of gear the day more toward our senior population—Draft Horse Pull, National Tractor Pull, and just some other fun activities on the grounds for the seniors.”

Though the Fairgrounds racetrack will host events four of the six days, Thursday, July 30 is dubbed Race Day. “Thursday night we’re doing Sprint Car Races, notes Blum. “I was told the last time we did those was some time in the ‘90s. (It’s) a pretty big attraction so we’re looking forward to that night, too. Normally, we do two nights of track events—again, just looking to kind of change things up. The sprint cars are very popular so we’re hoping that that will bring out a big crowd for us.”

With the arrival of the weekend, the track is taken over by the grandstand stage for the Fair’s headline concerts. “We have two great concerts,” notes Blum. “Friday night is the Summerland Tour, which will be really fun—four ‘90s rock bands—and Jason Derulo on Saturday night.”

Friday night’s Summerland Tour will feature four bands probably best known for their breakthrough to the mainstream in the ‘90s, including Everclear, Toadies, Fuel, and American Hi-Fi. An annual summer tour since 2012, Summerland has featured a variety of ‘90s bands and is organized by Everclear frontman Art Alexakis. Alexakis, in a press release said of this year’s line-up, “This is the kind of line up I’ve dreamed of when I started the Summerland Tour. With Toadies, Fuel, American Hi-Fi, and of course Everclear, this is guitar rock at its finest. I can’t wait to see how people react each night.”

Saturday night’s concert will be headlined by multi-platinum pop artist Jason Derulo with special guest Lizzo. After writing songs for artists like Lil Wayne and Diddy, Derulo launched his career as a solo artist in 2009, going to number 1 on Billboard’s Hot 100 with his debut single “Watcha Say.” Derulo has since released five albums, selling over 50 million single releases including hits like “In My Head,” “Wiggle,” “Talk Dirty,” and this spring’s “Want to Want Me” off his new Everything Is 4 album.

“Jason is a very popular artist right now in the pop charts,” notes Blum. “He has just had several new songs released—something different for the area and kind of what we were looking for. We have a lot of entertainment in this area and decided to go a different direction, number one, to get a different demographic to the Fair, people that might not normally come. You know, we’re always looking for new faces at the Fair.”

Traditionally splitting the weekend concerts between a “rock” night and a “country” night, some might be surprised to see the Fair is not offering a country music concert this year. “We’re not, and there was a lot of discussion that went into that,” explains Blum. “In just looking over the past years, it hasn’t really worked out as well as we’d hoped. I know people kind of expect that but when it’s not supported, we kind of have to take a look at it and say, ‘Well, maybe we just need to change it up and try something different.’”

The Fair board’s new approach to musical offerings extends to local bands as well, with expanded offerings at the always-popular beer garden. “That’s one of the things we really enjoy doing is giving our local folks a chance to show off a little bit every night in the beer garden,” shares Blum. “So every night we have great things going on and on Saturday and Sunday, starting earlier in the day and running all through the day we’ll have music. That’s something we really haven’t done in the past. Last year, we started mid-afternoon but we thought we have the competitions that start early in the morning, we might as well just get some entertainment back there and just make it a fun-filled day.”

Local live music lovers can enjoy sets by the Becky McMahon, Brown Bottle Bandits, Back Roads, Half Fast, the Brews Brothers, Menace, Fifth Fret, Josie Wails, and Three on the Tree. (See the accompanying daily schedule for details.)

Sunday, August 2 the grandstand stage is removed for one more night of track events, including the Demolition Derby that noon and IMCA Stock Car Races, beginning at 6:30 PM.

The weekend also hosts some rather interesting contests. “We also have lots of fun competitions,” Blum explains. “We have our Barnyard Charge, which we’ve done several years. We have the Mud Volleyball Tournament, which is always huge. And brand new that we’re going to do this year on Sunday is the Human Foosball contest. Our friends at Spahn & Rose here in Dubuque donated all the materials to build two courts so that should be kind of fun.”

Saturday morning’s Barnyard Charge consists of two races, The Chicken Run, which is an all-ages approximately one-mile race featuring seven obstacles, and The Sloppy Pig, a three-mile race featuring 16 obstacles. (Sloppy Pig participants must be 16 or older.) Details, including registration, check-in and start times are available on the DBQFair.com website.

Of course, all week features a wide variety of entertainment and attractions, game shows, bingo, karaoke, a petting zoo, a “Silly Science” show, and even a mechanical bull. Kids always love the carnival rides, provided this year by North American Midway Entertainment. “That’s one of the things we’re pretty proud of,” notes Blum. “We have one of the top carnival midway companies in the United States.”

Being Kids’ Day, Tuesday is one-ticket ride night. The rest of the week, all-day ride bracelets can be purchased for $25. Saturday’s Family Day is sponsored by Theisen’s. Families can pick up special coupons available at Theisen’s that knock $5 off the ride bracelet that day.

As is the tradition, the Dubuque County Fairgrounds barns and Creative Arts Building will host a variety of livestock and other exhibits by 4H and FFA clubs throughout the week. “I love to watch the kids,” admits Blum. “They are just amazing with their projects and their animals.”

The livestock barns also provide an opportunity for kids who don’t get to work with animals to see them up close. “It really is interesting to see some of the kids that are seeing animals for the first time,” notes Blum. “We actually had a band here four or five years ago from California and none of the band members had seen livestock. They were in the barns like little kids. They were so excited. They probably scared the animals because they were an alternative rock group and had kind of a goth look going. But they had a great time.”

Finally, what’s a county fair without the food? Blum assures us there will be plenty to choose from. “Great food. Lot’s of fair food,” she states. “It’s going to be kind of exciting for us, Carnival Eats, a program on the Food Network is going to be here featuring three of our vendors. That will air, of course, after the Fair but it’s exciting that they picked the Dubuque County Fair, so they’ll be here.”

For those that especially love fair food but can’t necessarily spend the entire day there, organizers offer a new program, Fair Food Frenzy. Tuesday through Friday, people can come to the Fairgrounds starting at 11 AM, pay the $10 gate admission and receive a Food Frenzy Pass. They can eat there or take food to go. As long as they leave by 1 PM they can show the pass and a meal receipt and the $10 admission fee is reimbursed. “We’ve kind of kicked this idea around for a couple of years and decided to try it this year,” explains Blum. “We take their admission, they get a little card, they bring that card back along with their food receipt, they get their admission back. So they can come out and just either have lunch with us, take it back to the office, whatever they want to do.”

From Tuesday to Sunday and from kid’s fun to fantastic food, the Dubuque County Fair offers something for everyone. “There is,” agrees Blum, “and the great part about the Fair, it’s really family-friendly. Eleven and under is free. Families can come out and not have to spend a whole lot of money and just have a great day of entertainment. We have so many free entertainers on the grounds, you really don’t have to spend the extra dollars.”

It really might be the six best days of summer.

The Fairgrounds open at 8 AM daily during Fair week. General admission is $10 for adults with kids 11 and under free. Parking is free, with a free shuttle to the gates, except for the $10 preferred parking across from the Fairgrounds main gate. Tickets for Friday night’s Summerland Tour are $10 for GA Grandstand, $15 for Reserved Grandstand, and $20 for the Festival Area. Tickets for Saturday night’s Jason Derulo concert are $25 for GA Grandstand, $35 for Reserved Grandstand, and $45 for the Festival Area. Note that concert ticket prices do not include admission to the Fairgrounds. # EVERYTHING PHOTOGRAPHY: NEW LOCATION, NEW OPPORTUNITIES

In December of 2012, Sean MacDonald opened the store Everything Photography here in Dubuque. Over the past few years, the store has provided a place for individuals to develop their passion for photography, while giving others a resource for their business or hobby. Now in a new location on 1st and Main, Everything Photography is continuing to do just that and more.

“Visibility is one aspect,” states MacDonald on the reason for the move. “The second aspect—and this is probably the main reason we moved—is for the larger facility.”

The new store is certainly spacious and has a unique, contemporary atmosphere. All photography gear is perfectly displayed on the modern walls making it easy to shop around. Just up a few steps from the main retail floor is a small lounge area complete with numerous photography books to browse.

However, the new location does more than allow for a better retail experience. “One of the things we have been wanting to do for a long time, but haven’t had the facility, is to do studio rentals. Now we have a full studio in the back that photographers can rent out by the hour or by the day,” says MacDonald. “[People] can still do studio work without owning their own studios and all the expenses that come with that ... so the idea is to have a kind of community studio.”

The extra space also gives them room to grow their inventory, and as a result, their online store. Everything Photography has been actively engaged in ecommerce, but Sean would like to see it expand. “We’ve been doing ecommerce less than a year now, but that is something we want to continue into—not just having our store here but also having an online presence as well.” There is no doubt that the new facility will provide this for them, and it will be exciting to see this new, online business grow.

While there are a lot of changes to the look, size, and resources of the store, they will continue to provide workshops just as they had before. “We probably do about three or four different workshops per month,” states Sean. “We set it up so each one is kind of independent of each other because not a lot of people can dedicate every Wednesday night for six weeks in a row ... usually it’s a two-hour workshop, sometimes they are a little bit longer, and they are on a variety of topics.”

Workshops include everything from beginner level where you learn camera controls to intermediate and advanced levels, which teach how to capture lightening, waterfalls, landscapes, and more. The workshops are limited to 10 people to aid the learning process.

“We try really hard not to be arrogant about whatever knowledge we do have,” says MacDonald. “Everyone starts somewhere, and we want to just get people wherever they are at. We’ve done workshops on iPhone photography. We’ve done some on video. We’ve done some on just composition, all sorts of different things”

The flexibility in scheduling, the diverse range of topics, and low pricing of workshops makes them fairly accessible to the Dubuque community. For example, Core workshops are just $25. When compared to many other photography classes, this price cannot be beat.

“We would rather see more people come to more workshops instead of having fewer people at higher priced workshops. So we are trying to get as many people in and out of workshops as we can in order to get people learning, and then that is only going to come back and benefit the store, too,” explains Sean.

It’s been fun for Sean and the staff at Everything Photography to witness individuals’ growth in their passion for photography. For example, Sean recalled a story about a young lady who connected with their store through winning a simple Instagram contest they hosted. Now, this same woman has her own professional photography business. Being able to witness growth like this is what makes Everything Photography stand out from other major chain stores. As a local business, they are cultivating relationships that allow for great customer service and better customer satisfaction.

Sean also makes it clear that shopping local doesn’t always come at expense. “I think there is a lot of times a misconception that shopping local is always going to be more expensive. At least in our industry, there are a lot of products that we offer, our cameras and lenses and our main core stuff, that are going to be the exact same price as Amazon, Wal-Mart, Best Buy, everywhere.” Not to mention, the firsthand knowledge Everything Photography staff possess. If you’re curious or have questions about gear, they will certainly be able to answer it for you.

While Sean recalls the move as “exciting, but also a little intimidating”, it is clear they have done nothing short of a fantastic job adjusting to their now spacious facility. As more people learn about these new opportunities, the store will only continue to grow. With that being said, make sure to stop in and check out the new location! Who knows? You may realize photography is your newfound passion.

RILEY ANN SCHULTZ

THURSDAY, JULY 16 @ 10 PM
THE LIFT

SUNDAY, JULY 26 @ 7 PM
GRAPE ESCAPE (GALENA, IL)

Riley Ann Schultz is making a journey of self discovery. A founding member of local folk group The Matriarchs, the singer/songwriter intends to go from being a full time teacher to a full time musician. Her journey is being recorded in a documentary film entitled, Riley Ann: Write My Own Story and the upcoming CD release, Endless Beginnings. The trailer for the film can be seen at RileyAnnSound.com.

The CD will include nine songs which run the gamut of genres including classic rock, soul and Appalachian folk. It is in the form of a classic song cycle which "will tell the complete story of a journey like chapters in a book." In a departure from her work with the Matriarchs, the tracks start out with a modern feel and then go retrograde in music history to a folk sound. A video for the track, "Supernova," which was filmed in Dubuque can be found on her website as well.

Schultz, who hails from Monroe, WI has taught high school English at Scales Mound, IL for the past 5 years and before that, a year at Senior High in Dubuque. After that first year she had been checking out the job and music scene in cities such as Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Denver and Asheville, NC. At the end of July, she will be making a leap-of-faith move to the Boulder, CO to pursue her musical career full time. "Colorado just feels right," she said, "I like the culture and mentality and the large number of musicians. I'm looking forward to meeting many of the local songwriters there."

She recently worked a one week stint at the Telluride (Colorado) Bluegrass Festival which she describes as "great experience," which will influence her future music. Next year, in addition to writing a new adult fiction novel, she plans to release a second CD which will feature songs that didn't make it to the first CD and some she has yet to write.

Schultz will be sharing her new music at The Lift in Dubuque on July 16 starting at 10 PM along with Jamaica Queens and Delta Saints and then will release her new CD at the Grape Escape in Galena, IL on July 26 starting at 7 PM. The CD release party will also feature musical performances by Abbey Edmonds and Cranes/Vultures along with live artist Jan Ketza. ■

THURSDAY, JULY 16

Jamaican Queens, Delta Saints, Riley Ann
9 PM @ The Lift

Cover: $5

Jamaican Queens is a 3-piece pop act from Detroit - emotionally insecure musicians combining classic pop hooks with some of the more abrasive elements of grime and industrial music. Sounds like Phil Spector churned out self deprecating rave hits from his prison cell. What these boys lack in their ability to deal with basic day-to-day life, they make up for in their obsessive-compulsive commitment to making home recorded pop music. Their forthcoming LP, Downers, begins where their initial release Wormfood left off, with more emotional density.

On The Delta Saints' new album, Bones, their first for Loud & Proud Records, the Nashville-based band have stripped their roots/blues sound down to its essence, having rearranged the elements into something uniquely their own. Steeped in rock 'n' roll's building blocks - country, R&B, soul and gospel - The Delta Saints' second full-length effort explores influences like Jack White, The Black Keys, My Morning Jacket, Band of Horses and Led Zeppelin. Producer/engineer/mixer and Third Man Records alum, Eddie Spear [Jack White, Arctic Monkeys, Neil Young] provided a ghostly, psychedelic atmosphere at Nashville's Sputnik Sound studios, yielding a sound unlike anything they have created before.

Before she leaves us for the mountains of Colorado, Riley Ann will perform a solo concert at The Lift. The singer songwriters and former Matriarch takes her multi-instrumentalist ability and couples it with looping pedals and effects to create a beautiful and haunting sound.

9 PM @ The Lift

The late Memphis producer Jim Dickinson once called Jimbo Mathus "the singing voice of Huck Finn." Outside the South, Mathus is likely known as the ringleader of the hyper-ragtime outfit Squirrel Nut Zippers. In his native Mississippi and throughout the South, however, Mathus is the prolific songwriter of born-in-the-bone Southern music, the torchbearer for Deep South mythology and culture. Think Delta highways, bowling-pin Budweisers and "innerplanetary honky-tonk" for the masses. Jimbo Mathus remains a rising-star powerhouse that feeds the soul. His latest band, The Tri-State Coalition, features solid talent cut from the same Delta cloth. Mathus describes Tri-State's sound as "...a true Southern amalgam of blues, white country, soul and rock-n-roll. As Dickinson would say, 'If you don't like this, there is seriously something wrong with you.'"

SUNDAY, AUGUST 2

Nathaniel Rateliff & The Night Sweats, Madisen Ward & The Mama Bear, and MORE TBA

6 PM @ Codfish Hollow Barnstormers

Tickets: $25 adv/$35 day of show

Nathaniel Rateliff & the Night Sweats practically explodes with deep, primal and ecstatic soulfulness. This stunning work isn't just soul stirring, it's also soul baring, and the combination is absolutely devastating to behold. At certain moments Rateliff seems to be channeling soul greats like Otis Redding and Sam & Dave. But as this gifted multi-instrumentalist honors the legacy of the legendary Memphis label, he's also setting out into audacious new territory.

This is an all ages show. Food and alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages will be available for purchase. Free parking with hay rack rides to and from the barn as well as free camping. Doors are at 4 PM, music starts at 6 PM. For more information, visit CodfishHollowBarnstormers.com.

HY-VEE MARKET CAFÉ

BY RICH BELMONT

My first job was stocking shelves in a grocery store. That was in 1962. Those were the days before supermarkets so the grocery store was simply a place you went to buy groceries. Over the next few years the grocery also became the butcher shop and the fish market. It was a big deal when soon after that the grocery store was also the liquor store. Then it also became a drycleaners and a bank. Not too long ago the grocery store also became the place to go for ready-to-eat meals. Soon after that successful grocery chains like Hy-Vee Supermarkets had full scale food courts!

Now Hy-Vee has taken the concept of a food store to a whole new level. Now we have the Hy-Vee Market Café. It is a full service bar and restaurant serving made to order meals with a variety of tastes to satisfy every member of the family.

The Hy-Vee Market Café on Dodge Street in Dubuque opened on November 20, 2013. It's inside the Hy-Vee Supermarket next to the food court. Once you go inside, though, you will not know you are still inside a grocery store. You have a full bar with a bartender ready to serve you the beverage of your choice. You are greeted by a friendly and eager to please wait staff. You are handed an interesting menu with several unusual food pairing choices and are surrounded by large screen TVs tuned to different channels.

The Market Café is supervised by a full staff of restaurant professionals. The Restaurant Manager is Anne Chelf; her Assistant Manager is Anna Adams (left). The Kitchen Manager is Andy Hoffman and the Chef is Tyler Bosveld.

For five years Anne (above left) owned and operated a catering service in Dubuque called Essenhaus (German for "eating house"). She was a Food and Beverage Manager at the Diamond Jo Casino and moved over to Hy-Vee as Assistant Kitchen Manager while the Market Café was under construction. Chef Tyler Bosveld (above right) holds a degree in Culinary Arts from Southwest Wisconsin Technical College in Fennimore, WI. He was previously Assistant Chef at the Dubuque Golf and Country Club.

The primary purpose of the Market Café is to serve made from scratch meals seven days a week. However, customers can choose to select any of the various food offerings in the food court and bring them into the café. Once inside the café the wait staff will serve beverages and take payment for your meal. You can choose anything from the following stations:

- Salad Bar—either all you can eat or one trip only
- Italian Meal—Italian specialties or pizza
- Asian Meal—the entrée you prefer
- Asian Buffet—your choice of all of the Asian meals on the buffet
- Kitchen Meal—the lunch or dinner to your liking
- Grand Buffet—All you can eat selections of everything in the food court

By the way, if you are not taking your food court items into the café you can pay for your to-go orders at any cash register in the supermarket.

I have discovered the Market Café is a great place to go for breakfast which is available from 6 AM to 11 PM. All the morning items are really good and reasonably priced. For instance The Double Play is two huge pancakes, two eggs, two bacon strips, and two sausage links or patties all for only $6.99; and my typical breakfast here known as Sunrise Favorite Number 3 includes 2 eggs, 2 bacon strips or sausage, hash browns and toast for only $5.99. If you are in a hurry you might want to grab one of the four breakfast sandwiches like the XL: a quarter-pound sausage patty with cheese on a toasted bagel ($3.59) or the Muffin Melt: egg, cheese, ham, bacon or sausage on grilled English muffin ($2.99).

The regular menu is the same in all Hy-Vee Market Cafés. It is clearly designed to entice you with new and unusual tastes. A couple of examples; the Bacon, Jalapeno and Maple Wontons are crispy wontons with a unique sweet and spicy flavor garnished with Wasabi mayo. If you like spicy then you will want to try the Asian Trio: batter-cooked Firecracker Shrimp in a sweet and spicy sauce, plus three Crab Rangoons and two Egg Rolls served with two Asian inspired sauces.

The burgers are 8 ounces of ground chuck flavored with a zesty flavor house-made seasoning and cooked on a charbroiler. One burger has peanut butter and another is topped with an egg, Canadian bacon and smoked gouda cheese. The Mac-N-Cheese burger is probably the most popular: it is topped with white cheddar macaroni and cheese, bacon, Colby jack cheese and toasted Panko bread crumbs served open faced on fresh baked sourdough bread.

↑ Jumbo Breaded Tenderloin and Chicken Sandwich

Other lunch favorites include a Pulled Pork Sandwich with hickory house-smoked pork topped with BBQ sauce, and the grilled or crispy Chicken Sandwich. In my opinion, the best sandwich is the Jumbo Breaded Tenderloin. Chef Tyler cuts whole pork loins into filets, tenderizes them, coats them with a mixture of Panko bread crumbs and parmesan cheese and then fries them.

The dinner entrées are all very good. The Grilled Salmon white meat filets are lightly seasoned and grilled over an open flame and served over a wild rice blend. The Top Sirloin and Ribeye steaks are Hy-Vee's trademarked Choice Reserve grilled to your temperature. The Baked Cavatappi contains Graziano Sausage and is covered with a 3 cheese blend of mozzarella, provolone and cheddar. Incidentally, cavatappi is usually described as a tubular corkscrew noodle. The Italian words Cava Tappi literally mean "tap extractor" or what we call a corkscrew.

↑ Market Café Bar

↑ Hawaiian Burger

↑ The Double Play

↑ Thai Peanut Chicken Sandwich

↑ Chicken Fingers

The sausage is made from fresh pork ground with a masterful blend of Italian seasonings. It comes from Graziano Brothers in Des Moines. Frank and Louis Graziano immigrated to this country from the Calabria region of Italy in 1903. They opened their grocery business in 1912. Their company has supplied Hy-Vee stores for many years.

↑ Chicken and Rice Soup

In addition to the standard menu items each Hy-Vee Market Café has monthly specials exclusive to only one Café. The July Features at the Dodge Street Café are examples of Chef Tyler's creativity and culinary expertise.

His delicious soup of the month is Chicken and Rice.

The plain sounding name does not begin to describe it. The soup contains wild rice, zucchini, yellow squash, corn, red bell peppers, chicken stock, Millstream Amber beer, sage and other seasonings.

One July appetizer is called Cowboy Poutine. This tasty dish originated in Quebec and is very popular throughout Canada. It is typically made with French fries and cheese curds and is topped with brown gravy. Chef Tyler's version is French fries smothered in cheddar cheese, green chillies, BBQ sauce and topped with crumbled bacon.

Another July appetizer is made-from-scratch beer battered sweet Vidalia Onions deep fried and served with smoky Cowboy Sauce. This sauce is house made BBQ sauce mixed with Sriracha and mayonnaise. The July special is the 'Merica Burger. Chef Tyler has covered a burger patty with 2 slices of American cheese, pulled pork, a seared hot dog and bacon.

His special dessert of the month is called Not Your Grandma's Apple Pie. The streusel topped pie is made with crushed cashews, oats, brown sugar, cane sugar, butter and nutmeg. It is served with Chef Tyler's special bourbon and caramel sauce. By the way, you might notice the crumbly topping of flour, butter and sugar baked on top of the pie looks like it was scattered or sprinkled on. This is literally the meaning of the German word: streusel.

The other desserts are all delectable, too. The Crème Brûlée vanilla infused custard with caramelized turbinado (partially refined light brown cane) sugar; the Bread Pudding surrounded by cinnamon infused bourbon cream; the Cheesecake Rangoons consisting of graham cracker dusted wontons filled with luscious cheesecake topped with raspberry syrup and whipped cream.

So the next time you are having a hectic day visit the Hy-Vee Market Café. Order some wine or cocktails, or perhaps one of the four beers on tap or one of the 18 craft beers. Or take advantage of the beer specials: $1.50 bottles of Busch Light, Bud Light or Coors Light. Watch some TV and enjoy a well-crafted meal.

If your day is so hectic you don't have time to sit in the café you can order everything on the menu including all breakfast items to-go. Or if you are really pressed for time and need your food even faster use Curbside Pick-up Service. Here is how it works:

1. Go online to Hy-Vee.com
2. Pay for your order with PayPal
3. The order goes directly to the kitchen
4. Pull up to the curb and wait. You will be seen on camera and your order will be brought right out to you.

BUILD A BETTER JAR SALAD

BY HY-VEE NUTRITIONISTS MEGAN HORSTMAN (ASBURY), AMY CORDINGLEY (LOCUST), AND TRICIA RAU (DODGE)

We all would like to be eating better, but how do we translate that to our brown bag lunch? Why not try a salad in a jar? Jar salads are quick and easy to make, and can be made ahead of time and stored in the refrigerator. You only need to remember a few simple steps and the rest is up to you and your imagination.

When building your jar salad, start with your favorite dressing on the bottom of a jar or container. This keeps your delicate greens from getting too soggy. Your next layer may include a protein like chicken or nuts, or more hardy vegetables or fruit such as celery, apples or pears. The third layer may include cheese, dried cherries or seeds.

The fourth layer will include fruit such as berries, mandarin oranges or grapes. The final layer is salad greens. Leafy greens provide vitamins A, C and K. Vitamins A and C may play a role in skin health and immune function; vitamin K may be beneficial to bone health. Leafy greens like spinach, kale and Swiss chard may contain eye-healthy antioxidants. Baby kale is tender with a pleasant taste and gives any salad a nutritious boost with extra vitamins, minerals, fiber and antioxidants.

To save additional time, try using a bag salad for your top layer.

Your work week just got a little easier. No last-minute decisions about what to make for lunch, no vending machine lunch fare and no trip to the nearest drive-through restaurant. Your jar salad is quick, easy and affordable. ■

PRACTICE FALLING

BY MATT BOOTH

Learning to ride a bike is a classic rite of passage and a skill that, once acquired, is never forgotten. It's a big deal, especially when you're 5 years old. Our son, Carter, learned how to ride his bike a couple of weeks ago and hasn't looked back.

We set a goal that this was the summer he was going to learn to ride. So one afternoon, we grabbed a few tools and took off the training wheels. He was very nervous, scared, and afraid of falling. I tried to teach Carter how to ride a bike the same way I remember learning. I would hold on to his seat and run next to him as we went down the driveway. I would be barely holding the seat and helping him keep his balance. We practiced and practiced and I could even let go of his seat a little bit and he could do it!

Then we rode into a problem. Carter kept looking back to make sure I was holding on. When he wasn't looking back, he was saying, "Don't let go or I'll fall." While I had good intentions, holding onto Carter's seat hindered his natural ability to balance. Over the next couple of days, we would practice for 15 minutes or so at a time until one of us got frustrated and quit. Fear and self-doubt began to creep into his head, "It will really hurt if I fall." He began concentrating more on me holding onto his seat and not falling than he was on riding.

At breakfast on the third day, I asked, "Carter, do you want to do today?"

He enthusiastically said, "I'm going to learn to ride my bike!"

"Why can't you ride your bike yet?"

"Well, Dad, I guess it's because I'm afraid of falling. If I fall off of my bike, I'm going to get hurt. If you let go of my seat, I'll fall, and it will really hurt."

In my father's voice, I said, "Carter, today you are not going to learn to ride your bike." As he looked at me strangely as I continued. "Today you are going to learn to fall off of your bike!"

We went out to the garage, and I calmly strapped knee and elbow pads to his shaky body. He put on his helmet and it was time. Scared and not understanding why the heck he was about to practice the one thing he was most afraid of, it was clear that his fear of falling was holding him back from the freedom of riding.

We walked his bike to a flat spot on our driveway, and he began to mumble something like, "I'm going to fall, and it is going to hurt." I got down on one knee and looked him in the eyes and said, "Here's the deal, buddy. If you're going to ride your bike, you're going to fall. Even the best riders fall. I've been riding since I was about 5 years old, and I still fall!"

He got set, I gave him a push across the driveway into to grass where he promptly fell. He turned to me with a smile as big as the banana seat on the old bike I learned on and said, "Dad, that wasn't so bad." So, he practiced. Falling. Over and over. He fell about a dozen times and each time he was peddling a little further into the soft grass. He knew I wasn't holding onto his seat or running beside him, and he didn't care. As a matter of fact, he no longer wanted any help. His growing confidence pushed out the fear and self-doubt.

A common sense approach to a positive attitude

"Dad, I've practiced enough, I'm ready." And before I could even grab my phone to record the moment, he turned his bike down the driveway and off he went. Did he fall? Yes, of course he did. A day doesn't go by without more road rash and bruises. Sometimes he can hardly wait to show them to me. He's only been riding a couple of weeks, and yesterday asked me about building a ramp.

Carter and his bike reminded me of a valuable lesson I've easily forgotten. That fear of falling holds me back as well. Too often, I'm focused on the fall. Too often, I've let that fear stop me from going big, and I end up going home. Sure, I can rationalize and make up every excuse possible, but when it comes right down to it, I want to ride with the safety of someone holding onto my seat. It is easy for me to tell a 5-year-old or an audience that falling is just part of the deal. It is not so easy to tell myself and even harder to live it.

Accomplishments don't happen without falling. The bigger the dream, the more you fall. Do not let that fear of falling keep you from reaching your potential. If you're going to try something new, if you're going to try something big, you're going to fall. That's just the deal. Watching Carter ride his bike makes my chest swell. He's learning and reminding me that the reward is worth the fall. ■

DEXTER IS DEAD

DEXTER MORGAN, R.I.P.

BY BOB GELMS

Recently I got to happily spend a few days with one of my favorite fictional characters, Dexter Morgan. He is sometimes thought of as America's favorite serial killer. He only kills people who deserve it, people who have fallen through the criminal justice cracks. In a bizarre, twisted turn of conventional literary practice, Dexter is a hero.

Dexter has spent eight years on television and this latest book by Jeff Lindsey represents the eighth outing in book form. Dexter Is Dead is the last, the end, a fait accompli. I don't know how to hide the ending of a book with that title so I won't. As Edward G. Robinson once said on the silver screen, "Is this the end of Rico?" Well, no, but it is the end of Dexter. And as befitting the end of what has become something of an American icon, everything is turned upside down.

At the end of this last book, besotted in blood, Dexter is taken into custody and thrown in jail, accused of a heinous crime he didn't even get a chance to commit. Detective Anderson has it out for our boy. Anderson has manufactured evidence that points unambiguously to deadly Dexter. It sure looks like dear Dexter will be spending the rest of his life in prison if not, in fact, receiving the injection to oblivion from the state.

Just when all hope is lost, darling Dexter is bailed out of jail and the best criminal lawyer in Miami has been hired to represent him. Who could have done such a thing; who could afford such a thing? It is someone we have forgotten about, the other serial killer in the family, Dexter's brother Brian.

In a typical Brian move, he has stolen a LOT of money from a dangerous drug dealer and desperately needs Dexter's help but has neglected to tell Dex the whole story, resulting in Dexter being out on bail when he would have been safer in prison. Both their lives are in definite danger and attempts are made to kill them. The drug dealer kidnaps Dexter's kids and Deb, Dexter's sister, is also put in harm's way. Brian takes this all in as if it's some kind of lark. When everything works out in the end it gives new meaning to the phrase, "If you are going to go down, go down in flames." The ending is spectacular and everything is brought to some kind of major conclusion. Let's say that Dexter is not coming back for a book nine.

Mr. Lindsey's humor and satire are in full bloom, which brings to mind a couple of final points I'd like to make. The TV version of the Dexter Morgan character was brilliantly acted but actually was only a shadow of the Dexter Morgan character in the books. Dexter is funny in the novels. He is sarcastic, satirical, dreadfully dark and self-deprecating. His comments about the moral dilemma in which he usually finds himself could be included in a tome on how to act in a civilized world. Twisted...I know. Entertaining...undeniably so.

The books and the TV show were running the story forward simultaneously but not at all in synch. This was bothersome to me because I much preferred the novels. I thought the stories on the TV Dexter were a little on the lightweight side. I'll give an exception and a big thumbs-up to the year that John Lithgow was on the show. That year was superb and those stories regularly crept me out.

In the end there is a striking satirical element to darling Dexter in the books. He is a most American character. For what is more American, I ask you, than getting a morality lesson from a serial killer. He is resourceful and self-reliant in a way that makes me think he read Ralph Waldo Emerson's essay that identifies self-reliance as a major American character trait.

It was a great run and now it's done. I mourn dearly departed Dexter but I won't forget him and, I would like to add, he doesn't survive to become a lumber jack in the Pacific Northwest. Thank God. ■

WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN YOUR KIDS ARE EXPECTING

BY PAM KRESS-DUNN

When I was expecting my daughter, and then my son, the information I received came from two sources—a well-thumbed Dr. Spock's Baby and Child Care, and whatever my Lamaze teacher told me about delivering my child naturally yet (LOL) painlessly. Mom didn't offer much advice, and I did my best to ignore the heavy-handed warnings my mother-in-law dispensed. My kids were born, and are now fully functioning adults.

The first edition of What To Expect When You're Expecting didn't come out until 1984, several years after my final child arrived. It's still a bestseller, which I find heartening in this era of Internet myths and distortions. As the Baby Boomers age, a cottage industry of books and blogs by and for new grandparents has sprung up like dandelions in a May lawn, but I'm steering clear of them. Despite the fact that my son and his lovely wife are expecting their babies any day now, I think I can figure this out for myself. Here's what I've been telling myself, as I contemplate impending grandmotherhood:

This is their baby, not yours. True, you are becoming a grandparent, but that is not the same. Just as you can't take the pain out of labor for the new mom, neither should you dictate how she and the new dad should name, feed, dress, travel with, or educate this new little human.

However: You may hold, burp, shop for, coo at, spoil, and hand back the baby when it won't stop fussing. You may also tell anyone you want just how perfect this child is, within reason.

It's best not to worry. Knowing this is about as simple as delivering a load of cargo to the International Space Station, you can at least try to keep your concerns to yourself. As happy and excited as the parents-to-be may appear, you can be sure they are doing all the worrying necessary to ferry this child safely into the world. Besides, there is, if you're lucky, another grandma-to-be who is already doing more than her share of worrying, so believe me, if worry does any good at all, that baby is covered.

To backtrack just a bit: When they tell you they're expecting, you will be 1) shocked, 2) over the moon, 3) already starting your new blog, or some comedic combination of all three. When my son put me on speakerphone so they could both hear me, I thought, "What?" Holy cow. I did not see that one coming. I was upstairs, so after a riotous conversation, I hung up and went down to tell my husband. Only I couldn't speak. Instead, I burst into tears and put my head against his chest. Finally I got out, "You know? What they told me?" He said he had pretty much figured it out.

So yeah, tears. Expect a lot of them. As Dan said, smiling, when they announced their engagement at Christmas 2013, "We sure made a lot of grown people cry today." I cried then, I cried all the way through the rehearsal, the wedding, the gift opening, and the last hugs goodbye before they took off for their honeymoon. Did I cry some more when they called from the doctor's office to say they'd just found out there were two girls on the way? Oh, please.

Speaking of telling others about your impending grandchild, I got that call while I was working, at Mercy Medical Center's library. The only other person there at that moment was a physician, one of my own passel of healthcare providers. Such a nice guy. He let me tell him way more than any non-obstetrician should have to hear about twins coming. But he's young; he's raising kids of his own. He got it.

This joy will transfer into your life in interesting ways. For the baby shower, my daughter and I gave them books. Many books. We're librarians, after all.

You will shower them with not only material goods, but outrageous promises.

In my case, I vowed to give them every single winner of the Caldecott Medal. This is a prize given to the previous year's "most distinguished picture book for children" by the Association for Library Service to Children, a division of the American Library Association. (Librarians rock!) I made this promise before looking into how many books have received this medal. I gulped when I learned the total, for books published since 1937, is now, well, it's 78. But a promise is a promise, and these kids are never going to lack for reading material.

You may find that doing the math can be sobering. It's one thing to think about how cool it will be when they're old enough to read those books—not to mention the 88 Newberry winners, for older readers. I can't keep my eyes off twins I encounter who look to be 5, or 12, or 20. But then I realize how old I'll be when they graduate high school. Maybe I'll be there; maybe I won't. But I plan to treasure every moment I can have with them.

Finally, when your grandchildren are born, you will find it difficult not to picture that young man, that young woman, who is your child but also someone else's husband or wife, as he or she was as a newborn, or entering kindergarten. How can it be that the towheaded boy clutching his favorite Care Bear is now a father himself?

If you worry about being a good enough grandparent, it's best to return to the wisdom of Dr. Spock. Remember the first sentence of that classic book: "You know more than you think you do." I think we all do. ■

Questionably Lucid Advice

ERMA,

There is a man, we shall call him Fran. Fran is nice, has a good job, funny, perverted, and really really really is persistent. Not in an annoying way, but as in I kind of enjoy having him want to take me out all the time kind of a way. It has been a few months and I have seen him twice, we talk almost everyday and on a scale of one to ten, he is average looks but something about him in oddly attractive. My grandma keeps telling me that I need an older man. I am not sure if I am emotionally available, if that makes since, but I would not mind "getting" to know him. What are your thoughts?

—Thanks, Mable

HI MABLE,

Ah the emotionally unavailable woman, do you feel as though you would be leading this poor fella on? If you are up front and honest, then sure, a few dates here and there is fine, but I would avoid any sort of prolonged activity or anything too personal.. I know several couples who courted, mostly the man annoying the woman and eventually the nice guy finished last. They always do; even when you think there is no "last"- sigh! What it is to be young and fertile and unavailable and evil. Bravo.

—Erma

DEAR ERMA,

I am attracted to my male gynecologist and I purposefully will "prep" myself before my visits to him. I am not looking for advice; I just had to share this with someone.

Please do not tell anyone,

—Mary Mary Quite Contrary How Does

HELLO MARY!

Finally some truth in this world! I find it rather humoring you have decided to torture this poor fellow. I cannot tell you the amount of times I have heard complaint after complaint with gynecologists running late, OH MY, what a nice way to pay him back. I never understood why a man would want to be in that "business" but as sure as death and paying taxes humans will procreate. I have an idea, treat yourself to a bikini wax yet refuse to shave your armpits. It will probably be the most attractive thing he sees all day... I AM talking about your armpits. Silly girl.

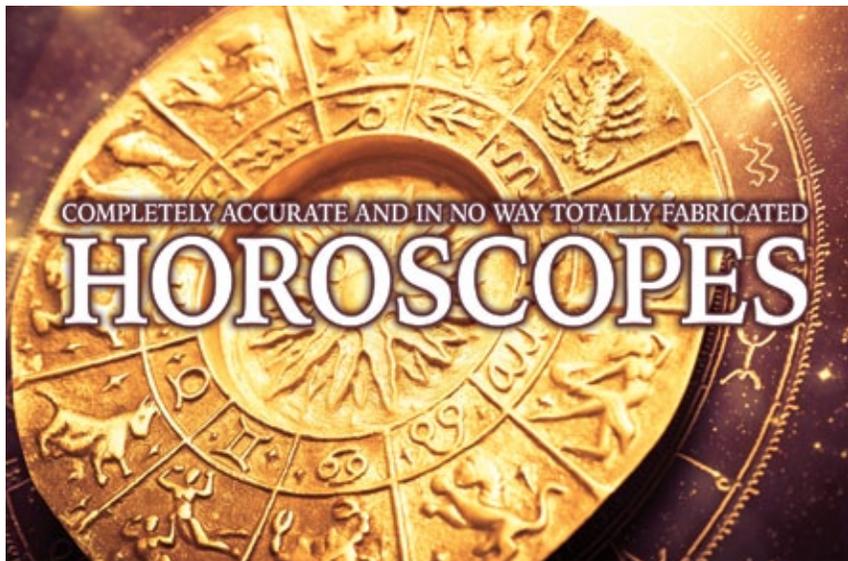

Only pink promises with me,
