WHERE'S WANDO?

WE'VE HIDDEN WANDO SOMEWHERE IN THIS ISSUE OF 365INK. CAN YOU FIND HIM?

I'm writing from the 25th floor of the Hilton something or other in Alexandria, VA after a long weekend in D.C. with my lovely wife for our 10th anniversary.

Technically, I came to town to speak again at the National Marine Corps Reserve Toys For Tots Conference in Leesburg, VA, which is a big honor as they've never had a coordinator speak two year in a row before, so that's pretty cool. I guess I'm doing it right. Also technically, no one is allowed to accompany coordinators to the conference nor are we allowed to stay longer than the conference, but since I was not required to be there and it was after all my 10th anniversary, they were super cool and let me skirt the rules. Even better, because I was a special guest of the Foundation and not there as a coordinator, my trip did not cost a dollar from my local camping fund. So, sweet!

I had to speak at 10 a.m. on Friday morning for 30 minutes, and that was my only responsibility. We arrived on Thursday night and are staying until Monday morning. Because we have been to D.C. together twice before, we have done much of the mall and the usual downtown tourism stuff, so this time, we were looking to do something different: history and food. That's our jam. We did pretty good, I think.

We stayed in a very boring Best Western since I could not stay on campus at the national Conference Center, but proximity to my Friday morning goal was the key on night one, so no big deal. However, on Thursday night we had dinner in downtown Leesburg, VA at an amazing place called the Lightfoot Restaurant in a historic old bank building. It was the meal of the trip. Wow! There's nothing like absolutely nailing it with big dinner dreams. We did. As amazing as my scallops and lobster bisque with seriously a whole lobster tail in it were, Christy's steak was just like love melting in your mouth. Hopefully, I could wake up the next morning in time to speak coherently. I did.

Ten minutes after my speech, I was on my way to pick up Christy at the hotel and we were off... to Gettysburg. In hindsight, this was the mother of all good ideas. Gettysburg was a treasure. Go. Just go. The history and the stories were incredible. We took a guided tour of the battlefield the first afternoon giving us a great understanding of the what happened there, how it happened, why it happened and what it meant. So the next day when we visited the massive Gettysburg National Military Park and Visitors Center complex, we had a great base of understanding to work from. The place is huge and it took hours to get through it all. Then we took the car and went back to the battlefield where we had the best tour the previous day and visited a couple spots we wanted to see closer up and that were of particular interest to us. For me, it was where Jeff Daniels and C. Thomas Howell defeated the Rebs at Little Round Top. Kidding, but the movie was filmed in the real places it happened, so looking forward to revisiting that. Literally hundreds, maybe thousands of ornate markers EVERYWHERE commemorating the service of every company in the battle, the leaders, the states, and more. And the way they were arranged in lines marking the locations of each group of men on the field those days. It's something that stays with you. In the last decade, the state has bought back all of the properties on the battlefield that had modern structures on them, from gas stations to signs to power lines, and now, aside from minimalist roadways and monuments, the field looks more like it did on July 1, 1863 than it has in over 100 years. The battle literally happened right through town, so to be able to carve out these fields is impressive. There's actually a McDonalds about a ¼ mile from Picket's Charge, but you can't see it from the battle site. Well played, Gettysburg.

We stayed at a beautiful historic school building pre-dating the war called the Federal Point Inn that added to the special historic feel of the day. Dinner at a distillery called Mason Dixon was underwhelming, but I think we just ordered poorly. Our bad.

Saturday night we headed for Alexandria to this monster Hilton as it was near our airport but also close to our Sunday destination, Mount Vernon. Starting with a stellar plate of chicken and waffles at the restaurant on the Mount Vernon Campus was a good choice. This was not tourist food, which was next door at the food court., This was an old-school, sit-down, tasty meal. Then on to visit George Washington's home. He claimed it was the finest positioned home in America, and he may be right. It's simply majestic. And it is basically just like it was in 1799 when he died. As rich and famous as he was, it was still some pretty rustic living. The grounds and gardens are still beautiful and still worked like a real plantation with animals, vegetables and more. I didn't even think about the fact that he and Martha are buried on the property, so that was profound to stand and look at their crypt, which is open to see inside of and view their individual vaults. Honestly, the vista from the river-side porch of the house reminded me of looking at the Mississippi from the grounds of Four Mounds in Dubuque. Except George is such a big deal that the entire viewable swath of land across the river from his house is a National Park, existing for the sole purpose of protecting the pristine view from his home. After the museums and films on the property, we were tired after a full day.

Dinner tonight at a new place called The Bastille had high hopes as it had great comments on Yelp, but man, what a disappointment. If the chef recommends the duck medium rare then he should cook it that way. Tough steak. Boo! Our dinner the night before was at the Hilton, as a fall back because we were just tired. That meal, at the hotel's restaurant Finn & Porter, had low expectations and soared well about them. I have great sushi and crab cakes (I can mix and match, this is my story). So go figure. Thanks a lot, Yelp!

And I did it all my with extremely sore sciatica butt and survived. So now, back to Dubuque and to finish this issue of the paper by Wednesday. No problem. After seeing how these people lived, and died, I have very little to complain about. ■

THE BRICKLAYERS OF OZ

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

7:30 PM @ UNIVERSITY OF DUBUQUE HERITAGE CENTER
JOHN AND ALICE BUTLER HALL (2255 BENNETT ST)

University of Dubuque Heritage Center continues its sixth annual Live at Heritage Center Performing Arts Series with acclaimed professional dance company Chicago Dance Crash (CDC). Founded in 2002, CDC has morphed into the Midwest's premiere fusion style hip-hop/contemporary dance ensemble with 14 dancers.

As the flagship production of CDC's 15th anniversary season, The Bricklayers of Oz returns to CDC's roots of big pop culture with an original prequel to L. Frank Baum's The Wizard of Oz. The origin story of the yellow brick road is told with breakdancing and hip-hop for all ages through a production that was recognized by Dance Magazine as "The Most Inventive New Work of 2017." It's an action-packed, lighthearted street tale of the lesser known laborers that toil within The Land of Oz with narration and original lyrics by Chicago rapper Al

Tamper. CDC's hip-hop fusion style, full of flips and spins, helps tell the story of the Wicked Witch of the East and her power-hungry plan to coax others into building her magical road, followed by the realization and uprising of an otherwise ignored group of people.

Dubuque-based dance group Dreaming Allegiance open. Members of CDC will deliver a free pre-show lecture from 6:30 to 7 p.m. offering insights on the company and their work as well as time for questions and answers.

Tickets are $25-$30 for adults, $20 for UD alumni and military, and $10 for children and students. All tickets increase by $5 for purchases on the day of the performance. Tickets can be purchased Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Heritage Center Farber Box Office; by phone at 563-585-SHOW; or online at DBQ.edu/heritagecenter. ■

MANHU FROM CHINA

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 5

7:30 PM @ UNIVERSITY OF DUBUQUE HERITAGE CENTER

JOHN AND ALICE BUTLER HALL (2255 BENNETT ST)

Part of Arts Midwest World Fest and hailing from the Stone Forest in China's Yunnan Province, Manhu brings to life the traditions of the Yi people, an ethnic minority group with a rich musical history to the University of Dubuque's Heritage Center on Friday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m. in John and Alice Butler Hall.

Manhu, which means fierce tigers, has a multi-layered sound that is uniquely bewitching. Playing the hulusheng, a mouth organ made from dried gourds, and even an ordinary leaf as a reed, Manhu shares instruments and songs that are well-known in their homeland but rarely seen on an international stage. The ensemble has performed throughout China in prestigious venues such as the National Centre for the Performing Arts in Beijing and Shanghai Music Hall; however, this is their first international tour.

Manhu presents a fascinating reinvention of Yi music, most specifically from the Sani region of the Stone Forest, an area geographically isolated from other Yi populations with its own musical and cultural identity. Although often viewed as newcomers, Manhu has been playing together since 2003. They are multi-instrumentalists, proficient in a range of Yi instruments. The musicians choose to present an upbeat imagining of how these often inaccessible traditions can be adapted into a modern band.

In collaboration with Dubuque Arts Council, UD is in the midst of a two-year partnership with Minneapolis-based Arts Midwest. During the partnership, four international ensembles representing Israel, Japan, China, and Norway each spend one week in the Dubuque area.

"We're so fortunate to have these groups coming to our community," said Thomas Robbins, executive director of Heritage Center. "The groups not only perform a public concert but most of the week they are in the schools sharing their culture through workshops. It's not often communities like ours have the chance to host international ensembles like Manhu at all—let alone for a full week. We're fortunate. It's a rare opportunity for us to enjoy an authentic slice of Chinese music and culture right here."

Prior to the performance, members of Manhu will deliver a free pre-show lecture from 6:30 to 7 p.m. in Babka Theatre, adjacent to Butler Hall, offering insights on the group and their music as well as time for questions and answers.

Tickets are $15-$20 for adults, $12 for UD alumni/military, and $10 for children and students. All tickets increase by $5 for purchases on the day of the performance. Tickets can be purchased Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Heritage Center Farber Box Office; by phone at 563-585-SHOW; or online at DBQ.edu/heritagecenter. ■

PRESEASON HOME GAME VS GREEN BAY : FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

HOME OPENER VS CEDAR RAPIDS: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6

7:05 PM @ MYSTIQUE COMMUNITY ICE CENTER (1800 ADMIRAL SHEEHY DR)

The 2018-2019 Dubuque Fighting Saints season is set to open with pizzazz! The Fighting Saints will celebrate Opening Night, presented by American Trust, at "Our House" on Saturday, Oct. 6 against the Cedar Rapids RoughRiders at 7:05 p.m. But you can also catch the final pre-season game on Friday, Sept. 21 vs. Green Bay at 7:05 p.m., too!

New for this season, Opening Night will be a celebration for families and hockey fans alike throughout the Tri-State area. For Opening Night only, kids' tickets (ages 4-12) start at just $5!

"We are ready for hockey to be back in Dubuque, and we have gone all out to make Opening Night an unforgettable experience to kick off the season," said Nick Shane, the President of Business Operations. "The addition of the Fighting Saints Fan Fest before the game, the added value for families with kids' tickets starting at just $5, and a great hockey game between two rivals will make this a night to remember!"

The Fighting Saints Fan Fest is set to create a family-friendly atmosphere before the game, and to get all of the fans revved up and ready to go upon entry to take in a matchup between two natural and geographical rivals that have been USHL powerhouses for years. The festivities begin at 4 p.m. and include appearances from the team, coaching staff, a beer garden, and interactive activities.

Last season, the Fighting Saints clinched a spot in the Clark Cup playoffs, and won a playoff round, for the eighth consecutive season. Under first-year head coach Oliver David, the team finished with a record of 26-21-13, and the fifth seed in the Eastern Conference.

Cedar Rapids made a furious push for a playoff spot at the end of the 2017-18 season, but finished a point just shy of the cutoff. Head coach Mark Carlson has made the Riders a force in the Eastern Conference in his 18 prior seasons behind the bench.

The next home game will be Friday, Oct. 19 vs. Youngstown. Season ticket memberships, mini plans, group tickets, and single tickets for the 2018-19 season are available right now! Get all of the benefits of being a season ticket member, including a chance to go behind the scenes with the MY Membership program, buddy passes, discounted tickets, admission to exclusive team events, and much, much more. Call the Fighting Saints at 563-583-6880, or go to DubuqueFightingSaints.com for more information. ■

VESPERMAN FARMS

CELEBRATING 15 YEARS

Vesperman Farms is busy getting ready for their fall season, opening on Saturday, Sept. 22 for its 15th year. Located at 8149 Stage Rd. just outside of Lancaster, WI, the fall season runs Sept. 22-Oct. 28. Weekday hours are noon-6 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m.-7 p.m., and Sunday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Adult admission is $8 per person and 4 and under are free. Season passes are available for $15.

Celebrating the fall in a big way is the corn maze, a 5-acre plot of twists and turns in the corn designed to commemorate 15 years of the fall season in Lancaster. The mini maze, located near the main maze, is an easier option for younger children. After navigating through the maze, guests can take wagon rides out to the pumpkin patch to pick the perfect pumpkin or stop by the retail area for pre-picked pumpkins and gourds as well as a variety of other items like t-shirts, mini pumpkins, and artwork by the Vesperman family.

In addition to pumpkins and the mazes, the farm has a whole host of activities for all ages including hay wagon and kiddie train rides; the tire mountain; duck races; the zip line; the trebuchet and air cannon pumpkin launch; and an animal farm that features goats, calves, baby chicks, and pigs. New activities this year include a swing set, a mini farm area, and a climbing wall.

Also expanding this year is the farm's concessions menu. In addition to the options like hamburgers, hot dogs, brats, and ribbon fries, there will also be fresh-squeezed lemonade, brisket sandwiches, chicken strips, and loaded baked potatoes. Harking back to their early years, the farm will open up the old snack shack in the original white barn, where in addition to the main concessions area, you can get fall staples like caramel apples, kettle corn, and apple cider donuts.

MOVIE BUZZ

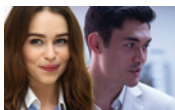

Henry Cavill is done as Superman according to The Hollywood Reporter. He and Warner Bros. Pictures are "parting ways" after three Superman appearances from the actor after the studio tried to get Cavill to make a cameo appearance as Superman in Shazam! Another factor is Warner's developing Supergirl movie, which would require an infant Superman to appear if it's made in accordance with that character's origin story, and Cavill might simply be too old to fit into whatever new continuity that requires.

Eddie Murphy is set to star in New Line's Grumpy Old Men remake, to be directed by Ride Along helmer Tim Story. The original Grumpy Old Men starred legendary acting duo Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau in a tale of two elderly neighbors locked in an ages-old feud. Deadline says Samuel L. Jackson has been proposed as Murphy's co-star, and indeed Jackson recently worked with Tim Story on the latest remake of Shaft.

Game of Thrones' Emilia Clarke and Crazy Rich Asians star Henry Golding are teaming up with director Paul Feig for the winter holiday-themed romantic comedy, Last Christmas. Oscar-winner Emma Thompson wrote the London-based script with Bryony Kimmings and will produce the movie alongside Feig.

After his hit-and-miss attempts with heroes in the X-Men movies, director Bryan Singer is in talks to direct an adaptation of Red Sonja. A spinoff character from Conan the Barbarian, this adaptation is expected to capitalize off the success of Warner Bros.' Wonder Woman. Singer faced a string of negative publicity in the past year, notably a number of sexual harassment accusations, which has struck a cord with some over Millennium's decision to hire him.

The Charlie's Angels movie reboot will feature multiple characters referred to as Bosley, with Patrick Stewart and director Elizabeth Banks among the actors playing them. As the film's costar Kristen Stewart explained recently, the reboot goes global by making the famous Townsend Agency a worldwide security and intelligence service that employs multiple teams of Angels.

ALL THE WAY HOME

The Tri-State Veterans Event

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13
9 AM-1 PM @ FIVE FLAGS ARENA (405 MAIN ST)

Military service is considered our nation's highest form of citizenship and has been freely accepted by millions of men and women throughout U.S. history. There are an estimated 23.5 million living American veterans, and 13 percent of Tri-State residents, as many as 12,000, are military service veterans.

Because of their selfless commitment to our country, U.S. veterans are eligible for a variety of services, both federal and state, to assist them and their families. Veterans administration benefits include: compensation/pension, healthcare, pharmacy, education, home loans, life insurance, vocational training and rehabilitation, burial and survivors' benefits. Such services can prove essential to helping vets recover from wartime injuries, readjust to civilian life, build a career and raise their families.

The bi-annual All the Way Home Tri-State Veterans Event was created in 2008 to provide a forum for veterans and their families to access services available in Dubuque and the surrounding areas and making these services available in one place. By doing so, the conference will empower veterans to seek and receive services intended for them and their families. The event also provides an appropriate forum for the Dubuque community to thank veterans for their service.

This year's event was also planned to coincide with the return of our National Guard Troops.

All The Way Home will again offer services and information in a family-friendly and fun atmosphere, reaching those veterans who normally would not seek services due to fear of stigma, as well as those who do not know where to turn. A special feature of the event, Remembering Our Fallen, is a photographic war memorial that honors Iowa's military Fallen from The War on Terror (9/11/2001-Present). Its legacy will be that these men and women will be remembered and their names will be spoken, while helping to lessen the grief of their families.

This year's featured speaker is Bryan Anderson. Bryan served two tours of duty in Iraq, serving as a Sergeant in the Military Police. In October 2005, Bryan was injured by an Improvised Explosive Device (IED) that resulted in the loss of both legs and his left hand. As a result of his injuries, he was awarded a Purple Heart. Bryan received rehabilitation for a period of 13 months at Walter Reed Army Hospital. He is one of the few triple amputees to have survived his injuries in Iraq. Bryan is the National Spokesman for Quantum Rehab, a division of Pride Mobility Corp., and travels the country making numerous personal appearances while delivering his message of perseverance and determination in major rehab facilities. In addition, he is an Ambassador for the Gary Sinise Foundation and is a spokesman for USA Cares, a national non-profit organization based in Radcliff, KY, that is focused on assisting post 911 veterans in times of need.

The last event, held May 7, 2016, drew more than 1,800 people visiting more than 90 veteran-related exhibits. This year's event theme is Saluting Korean Veterans of the Tri-States. This event is completely free, and everyone is encouraged to event, not just veterans.

For full details and more information, visit AllTheWayHomeEvent.org. ■

A PLACE FOR FRIENDSHIP: DUBUQUE'S MEMORY CAFÉ

SECOND THURSDAY OF EVERY MONTH
10 AM-NOON @ HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH (1755 DELHI ST)

BY BRYCE PARKS

Alzheimer's is a progressive, irreversible, and fatal disease of the brain that causes problems with memory, thinking, and even behavior. It's the sixth leading cause of death in the United States and affects 5.4 million Americans—most of them 65 or older. By 2050, that number is expected to triple to an astounding 13.8 million unless a cure or new treatment is discovered. Currently, the disease can't be prevented or cured.

MEMORY CAFÉ ORGANIZERS, JADE ANGELICA FROM HEALING MOMENTS FOR ALZHEIMER'S AND CHERYL ROSE FROM HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

Dubuque's Memory Café is where individuals with memory loss from Alzheimer's or dementia and their caregivers can get together in a safe, supportive, and engaging environment. It is a social time and a friendly place where people can interact, enjoy life, find support, share, and celebrate without feeling embarrassed or misunderstood. A Place for Friendship encourages acceptance and enhances relationships.

The Memory Café movement started in the Netherlands in 1997 and has been spreading throughout the United States since 2008. It is an important contribution to the well-being of both persons with dementia and their caregivers, especially since people with dementia most often mention feeling isolated and alone. The Memory Café is for them and about them. It's a place where they can feel welcomed and included and not have to worry about what anyone might be thinking. They can be themselves while meeting and making new friends who will be companions for them on this journey. Similarly, caregivers will find new connections and new friendships and new kinds of support.

PAT AND FRANK—IT'S A JOY TO GET TO KNOW YOU!

"One spouse of a person suffering from dementia said her favorite part about coming here is that you treat people with Alzheimer's like people. Of course we do. Because they are. It's not a stretch for us," shares the Rev. Dr. Jade Angelica from Healing Moments for Alzheimer's, one of the organizers of Dubuque's Memory Café. Along with partner organizers over the past two years including Lynae Duffy of Oak Park Place, Laura Nissen of Luther Manor, Cheryl Rose of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church and Bob Stricker of Home Instead Senior Care, the goal is to simply help people have a good day.

"It's a completely volunteer effort," continues Jade. "It's a gift that we want to give to the community. Holy Trinity Lutheran Christian Church donates their space and provides coffee. It's an amazing continuation of their Christian Outreach in the community. Our theme song is 'It's a Joy to Get to Know You,' and we sing that song every time."

"People with dementia often say that they feel isolated. They often feel unable to initiate things, but how will you spend it?

The community of friends at Oak Park Place comes with Independence When You Want It, Assistance When You Need It. So bumps in the road don't become road blocks.

Offering a continuum of care for seniors in Dubuque:

➤ Independent Living ➤ Assisted Living ➤ Memory Care

Call 563-585-4900 or email

just because they can't initiate doesn't mean that they don't want to do those things or can't do those things. So we provide an opportunity for people to come and just have a social experience where they're completely accepted. There's no judgement, there is no fear of people with dementia and their declining abilities. We just welcome them."

All the people who organize the Memory Café have been trained in memory care and know how to respond to the unique issues and situations that arise with people facing memory loss.

A Place for Friendship: Dubuque's Memory Café meets once a month on the second Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church located at 1755 Delhi St. in Dubuque. Upcoming dates are Oct. 11, Nov. 8 and Dec. 13. Coffee, tea, water, and seasonal snacks will be served. Games and newspapers will be available. There will also be activities and enjoyable presentations, including music, poetry, stories, singing, and art activities.

"It's a time for people to just share some friendship and camaraderie in a low stress atmosphere. People come at different stages of the disease. Some are quite high functioning and some are having trouble speaking. What's most fascinating to us is we try to have a structured time in our cafe for people to share with each other and it's amazing what they share. We don't rush them, we wait patiently for them to share something and they share these wonderful stories."

There is no fee to attend A Place for Friendship: Dubuque's Memory Café and pre-registration is not required. People of all denominations are welcome. Everyone is welcome.

It's not just residents from memory care facilities. Families caring for loved ones at home and those using home health care aid should be a part of the Memory Café. It's great to get them out of the house. It's wonderful for their cognitive abilities as well as their emotional state. If you are caring for a spouse or a parent, it's something that you can do together."

Dubuque's Memory Café project is co-sponsored by multiple community organizations, including Luther Manor, Oak Park Place, Healing Moments Alzheimer's Ministry, Holy Trinity Lutheran Church and the Telegraph Herald. Other organizations are invited to participate. For more information or to co-sponsor Dubuque's Memory Café, please contact Rev. Dr. Jade Angelica at jadeangelica@gmail.com or call 563-582-4724. ■

CONVIVIUUM URBAN FARMSTEAD A SHAREABLE FEAST

BY SUNIL MALAPATI

Con.viv.i.um/ noun/ a convivial gathering; banquet

Sometimes a name describes a place and evokes its spirit so perfectly that you cannot imagine it being called anything else. There is a generosity of spirit that you associate with the word “convivial” and its Latin root “convivium” and that spirit pervades everything at Convivium Urban Farmstead. This article is about more than just the wonderful food you can get at this place—I am hoping to convey a sense of the food philosophy that guides such a place and what makes it so unique.

The North End in Dubuque can quite accurately be described as a food desert. There are no grocery stores for fresh produce other than Eagle Country Market and that is not very accessible without a car. With the recent and currently ongoing Build a Better Block event, attention is being paid to this neighborhood. There are signs of renaissance with the Bee Branch project, opening of Copper Kettle and Pete’s Thai Kitchen and the establishment of Convivium. Convivium aims to build a community around food, and the restaurant portion of Convivium is only one component of its mission—a mission near and dear to Leslie Shalabi and Mike Muench, the founders and the visionaries behind this venture.

(Full disclosure: With my interests in food security and food justice issues, I have crossed paths with Leslie and Mike many times over the past years, and we have talked about potential collaborations in my other role as Clarke faculty.)

“Food is Culture.” As a trade journalist and marketing/PR person, Leslie does not come with chef credentials or with an established food background. But, with a Palestinian father, she grew up with a deep understanding of how food shapes culture and how sharing of food forges strong bonds between humans. Mike, with his business and insurance background, sees food as functional but does have an abiding interest in environmental and sustainability issues. Where these two meet is a shared understanding that the growing, harvesting, distributing and preparing food can act as a catalyst for community growth and provide a sense of community identity.

Leslie and Mike set about designing and building Convivium as a sustainable venture that could make a significant impact on the surrounding community. They found some old green houses and a space they could alter in an environmentally friendly way. A hundred solar panels capture light on the roof while geothermal energy heats the spaces. The community gardens have been reimagined. Traditional community gardens allocate space for each user who grows things they want—unfortunately, there is a drop off in enthusiasm and several spots become eyesores. Convivium has community gardens in yellow boxes where people are free to come pick vegetables and greens whenever they want. It is a measure of community pride that there have been no instances of vandalism. They have started to use backyards after running out of space in their greenhouses and people in the neighborhood are now coming to them offering up their own backyards!

SOUTHWEST PUMPKIN FRITTER

The lovely interior space at Convivium works as a restaurant from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. (except Monday) and then becomes an event space. Most of the events are related to food—a few months ago, I was here to learn about the proposed Food Policy Council for Dubuque County. This space is also earmarked for educational outreach programs. There is a composting class that starts next week and nutritional outreach to combat childhood obesity is a top priority for Leslie. With the hiring of a Programming and Education Director, Convivium aims to start afterschool programs, especially for the nearby Fulton School students.

When you eat a meal at Convivium or just pick up a muffin to go, you have the satisfaction of knowing that everything was done from scratch and some of the ingredients came from just a few feet away. Talk about hyperlocal sourcing! According to Leslie, the guiding food philosophy of the restaurant menu was to simply serve their clientele while gently nudging them to stretch their horizons a little.

Consider the Southwest pumpkin fritter on their lunch menu. The fritter (a slight misnomer) is not deep-fried but pan-fried and thus remains light and non-greasy. Packed full of flavor from the vegetables (pumpkin, corn, peppers, onion and cheddar) and spices, the flatness of the fritter allows for a crunchy texture with every bite. The fritter comes on a bed of greens lightly dressed with a lemon vinaigrette and accompanied by avocado crema. The whole dish makes for a light yet robust vegetarian lunch, and it is gluten free to boot!

The most popular item on the lunch menu is the diner burger with multiple options for toppings. The one I had was topped with fried onions and Sriracha mayo. The sweetness of the fried onions complemented the meaty beef and the sharpness of the mayo added a welcome contrast. I was partial to the falafel burger, which comes in a wrap. You can get it on bun, but trust me and go with the wrap. The falafel, made of ground chick peas and herbs and spices, has the crumbly inner structure I associate with good falafels. Since the falafel is pan-fried, it is missing that crunchy exterior I love but more than compensates with great flavor and texture. The wrap I had was accompanied by yellow tomato slices from the Convivium garden, cucumber, greens and tahini sauce.

FALAFEL BURGER

Roasted root vegetables are one feature I would heartily recommend. Roasting allows vegetables to develop flavor over an extended period without needing too much oil. The Za'tar roasted sweet potato served over greens with an orange vinaigrette and toasted pistachios is definitely a star. Za'tar is a Eastern Mediterranean spice mixture with thyme, sumac and sesame seeds that has a slight lemony aroma and is robust enough to stand up to roasted sweet potatoes. Rosemary garlic potatoes that are a featured side are simply heavenly. Potatoes are roasted with sprigs of fresh rosemary and whole garlic cloves still encased in their papery skins. Garlic develops most of its "bite" when you chop it up, and using whole cloves allows the dish to acquire a more delicate flavor that perfectly accentuates the rosemary without overtaking the dish. You can always eat the garlic roasted in its own skin for a more garlicky taste! These potatoes are so good they also appear on their breakfast menu.

Ah, breakfast! Most of us in our hurried lives do not have time for a leisurely breakfast and reserve such luxuries for the weekend brunch. Of course, the place is usually hopping on a Saturday morning. My mom, who is definitely a breakfast person, and I ventured into the North End on a Tuesday morning and were happily surprised to see a decent crowd early in the morning. Just as with lunch, you sit down at a table, check the boxes on a paper menu and hand it over to the person at the counter. I also got myself a cup of coffee and relaxed with my mom. I may have forgotten to mention it before, but part of the food philosophy at Convivium is to allow you to relax with the food. The service, partly by design and partly because of the kitchen facilities, is somewhat on the slower side. We did not mind waiting in that lovely space, with high ceilings and warm wooden benches, so spread out that the noise levels didn't disrupt conversations.

We ordered a pancake, sweet potato pancake and French toast along with a fruit cup (yes, you can order an individual pancake, something my mom appreciated). The pancake was fluffy and golden and we didn't need any syrup to wash it down. The sweet potato pancake is gluten-free and vegan and had a sweet and savory quality to it. The nutmeg was quite pronounced with a cinnamon-brown sugar background enhancing the sweet potato taste. The French toast with French bread from Millwork Bakery was perfectly done—the bread was soaked in the custard just right and the crust stayed wonderfully chewy. A fruit compote as an addition to this French toast might just send this dish soaring even further!

At other times, I have had the quiche and I can say they know how to do quiches right. One of the advantages quiches offer for a restaurant is that they are better when reheated in an oven than they are fresh out of the oven. The crust is a classic pate brisee, the buttery pie crust that serves as the base for tarts and pies. The crust is par-baked allowing to fully bake and stay crispy when reheated. The ingredients in the quiches change regularly and incorporate the fresh produce often. You can also get the quiche and muffins (and coffee and tea drinks) at the Convivium stand on Saturdays at the Farmers Market.

After our leisurely breakfast on that Tuesday morning, I dropped off my mom and went to work. Apparently, the relaxed breakfast had done its job and a student in the hallway commented "you look happy!" Once in a while, it pays to slow down, enjoy the breakfast and start the day right. Food informs so much of what we do and it is good to have a place for a convivial gathering once in while... I am jealous of those who live close by and can afford to go there regularly!

(Note on Small Plates: For a while, Convivium tried out having small plates on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. They are now moving these to monthly events. I have tasted many of the small plates and can attest to the care they are made with and the innovative flavor profiles you can enjoy. My favorites were the roasted Brussel sprouts with lemon aioli and the ginger-lime shrimp.) ■

UNINSTALL YOUR LIKE BUTTON

BY MATT BOOTH

Do you have a deep-seated, seemingly unshakable need to be liked? Are you incapable of saying “no” to others to feel liked? A consistent need to be liked by everyone is extremely exhausting but more importantly, messes up your commitment to like yourself. In my experiences, many people who are striving to be liked by others are struggling to like themselves. That is why they search out approval others. If you can't click your own like button, why should others?

It's perfectly okay to “want” to be liked by other people. I always “want” to be liked by others and I'm sure most people reading this “want” to be liked. The problem comes when you “need” to be liked by others to be happy. Once it becomes a “need,” you'll do all sorts of crazy things to fill that “need.” I remember a girl in college who never acknowledged my “hello” or “good morning” attempts. Instead of just not caring, I “needed” to get her to like me. This “need” lead to several ludicrous strategies to get her to like me, including flowers, candy, cards and letters. Each time that she ignored me, part of my soul died. I didn't realize how pathetic this looked until one of her friends told me.

I've spoken to thousands of groups in the past 30 years, and one measure of success is always, “did the group like me?” It used to freak me out when I gave a presentation to 200 people and received 2 bad reviews. I would obsess over the 2 people who didn't like it and forget about the 198 others. Apparently 99% approval rating wasn't good enough. If 100% of people in the program didn't like it, then it was a failure. It is easy to look back now and see how pathetic that was as well.

The troubling parts of “needing” to be liked are the countless sacrifices I made. Some awesome people in history like Martin Luther King, Jr., Gandhi, Mother Teresa and even Jesus never “needed” to be liked. I'm guessing most great people in history didn't really care about being liked. So what sense does it make for me to keep striving toward that goal? Instead of trying to get everyone to click my like button, I had to figure out what I needed to do with my life to be able to click my own like button.

This meant rejecting the urge to change who I was based on the company I was surrounded by. Someone clicking my like button is temporary anyway. Getting others to like me is not vital to my happiness. I have plenty of people who don't like me for whatever reason and so do you. The more I “need” to be liked, the more absent I become in my own life. It is a mistake to believe that you will be happy when everyone else likes you. Quite the contrary. Don't doubt your own worth based upon how worthy others find you. To like yourself, uninstall your like button. ■

KIDS IN THE KITCHEN

BY HY-VEE NUTRITIONISTS MEGAN HORSTMAN (ASBURY) AND AMY CORDINGLEY (LOCUST)

Children love to be involved in activities with adults, so why not let them join in preparing family meals? Learning to cook is a valuable experience that can introduce nutrition and healthy eating habits early on; not to mention helping to create memories with loved ones. Whether you're a parent, caregiver, child yourself or just a kid at heart, keep in mind these age-appropriate activities the next time you find yourself needing help preparing your next family meal.

SHOPPING

Did you know that kids influence up to 80 percent of family food spending? Even though parents do have control over what ultimately ends up in the grocery cart, allowing kids to have a say in what foods they eat may help them become healthy eaters as they grow.

Kids of any age can be involved in the shopping experience. According to the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, some examples of kid-friendly activities in the aisle include:

- Creating a grocery list together.
- Encourage children to pick fruits and vegetables they enjoy. Talk about colors, shapes and textures to enhance the learning experience.
- Read food labels together. This helps kids understand nutrition concepts while practicing reading skills.

AGE-APPROPRIATE ACTIVITIES

Around the age of 3 years old, children are ready to assist in the kitchen. It is important to keep children 2 and under a safe distance from food preparation with safety gates, high chairs or playpens. This will help avoid injuries, burns and other preventable accidents.

3-YEAR-OLDS

At this age, simple motions such as tearing lettuce or washing fruits and vegetables can help ease recipe preparation for the adult. Young ones at this age can also aid in stirring ingredients or pouring liquids.

4-YEAR-OLDS

Try hands-on activities like opening packages, greasing pans, peeling hard-boiled eggs, mashing potatoes with a fork, or snipping herbs with dull scissors.

5- AND 6-YEAR-OLDS

Learning to cut soft foods with a blunt knife can now be introduced. Setting the table and measuring ingredients are also helpful skills for this age.

7- AND 8-YEAR-OLDS

You child can help locate ingredients in the kitchen. If making cookies for the holidays, rolling and shaping dough or using a whisk is another task to assign.

9- THROUGH 12-YEAR-OLDS

More advanced kitchen tools can be used, including a vegetable peeler, sharp knife and oven (with adult supervision). Shredding cheese and vegetables can also be a fun trick to try at this age.

13- THROUGH 17-YEAR-OLDS

At the start of teenage years, children are now ready to independently prepare recipes with multiple ingredients.

It is important to know that kids are more likely to try new foods if they help prepare it. Assisting in the kitchen may help build their self-esteem, as well as giving them a sense of pride when they see others enjoying what they have helped create. Most importantly, it is an opportunity to spend quality time with family that is often rare in our fast-paced culture. ■

CADFAEL ORA PRO NOBIS

BY BOB GELMS

This is the second installment of a three-part series on the first successful appearance in print of some of the most famous detectives in fiction. In the last issue of 365ink I wrote a little bit about Sherlock Holmes and quite a bit about that dandified little Belgian detective with the weird little mustache, Hercule Poirot.

In this piece, I'm writing about a man who just might be the best detective of them all, Cadfael. He is endlessly fascinating. Here's why.

It would be impossible to miss the fact that Cadfael is a Benedictine monk, occasionally known as the Black Monks because of the color of their habits. In the monastery, every monk had a job, and Cadfael tended the vegetable garden. He was the monastery's herbalist, a profession he learned in the Holy Land while serving in the Crusades as a knight.

Cadfael had to be extremely careful when acting as an herbalist in the area of medicine. Herbalists were regularly treated to a full body hot foot if they were caught growing certain kinds of mushroom in the cellar or certain kinds of what came to be called the herb superb. He was aware of a compound he could make from the leaves of the willow tree. It was a medieval miracle drug which Cadfael could make it even though he didn't have a name for it. We do. It's called aspirin.

Oh, did I neglect to mention that Brother Cadfael lived in the 12th century? He was highly educated and didn't enter the monastic life until he was in his 40s. He was regularly called upon to act as a medical examiner, doctor, diplomat, and, of course, as a detective. Try solving murder mysteries with no DNA, no fingerprints, no lab techs, and no goofy side kick.

Twenty Cadfael historical murder mysteries were written between 1977 and 1994 by the linguist-scholar Edith Pargeter under the name "Ellis Peters." They were spectacularly successful all over the world but especially in the UK where they generated a popular TV show shown here in USA on public television. In the UK, it was adapted for radio and the stage. Today I'd like to write about the first one, A Morbid Taste for Bones.

Cadfael, who is Welsh, belongs to the Benedictine monastery in Shrewsbury in western England. The abbey is run by Brother Robert the Prior, a man who is scheming to get ahead in the world by making his abbey famous. He needs the relics of a popular saint to increase the revenue from pilgrims.

It seems that two of his monks visited the town of Gwytherin in Wales to visit the grave of Saint Winifred to pray for indulgences and a cure for various physical ailments. While there, one of the monks had a vision of Saint Winifred who told the monk that she was unhappy about the condition of her grave and that she wanted to lie somewhere else more accessible to pilgrims. Well, Prior Robert had just the place.

Prior Robert went through the proper channels and received all the proper consents to transfer the relics of Saint Winifred to Shrewsbury Abbey. A delegation from Shrewsbury was sent to Gwytherin to collect the bones. Cadfael was tapped to accompany the delegation because he spoke both English and Welsh. He would act as translator.

They arrived to find the local people were not exactly enthusiastic. The priest did not want the remains moved and he informed the monks that they needed the consent of all the freemen in town. Nobody seemed to know why.

The "big wheel" in town, Mr. Rhisiart, the area's most influential landowner, did not want the remains moved either. Being an arrogant prior, Robert thought he would be able to bribe Rhisiart. He couldn't have done anything worse. The little Welsh town was supercharged with anxiety and hatred.

It was all going very badly for everybody. Until it got far worse when Mr. Rhisiart's body was found in the woods with an arrow sticking out of his chest. This is a job for.....Brother Cadfael.

Prior Robert gave Brother Cadfael his marching orders: Solve the crime to the satisfaction of all the parties involved and see to it that the townsfolk are in agreement that Shrewsbury Abbey is the best place for Saint Winifred. In other words, to coin a phrase, Cadfael was to see to it that everybody lived happily ever after.

I'll bet you are wondering if our Super-Monk got the job done and, more importantly, how. Placing a detective in a medieval monastery was a stroke of genius. I was completely and thoroughly entertained by Ellis Peters' A Morbid Taste for Bones. I didn't figure it out, which I also find to be a lot of fun. I'll tell you how I really feel. I ordered books two and three and I'm going to shut my phone off. ■

AFTER SCHOOL SNACKS

BY DR. WILLIAM KUTTLE, D.D.S., KUTTLE DENTAL TEAM

Snacks. Everybody seems to like them—I know I do. Those little treats between meals that give us a burst of energy or help tide us over until the next meal time. The challenge is: What makes up a “good” snack? I suspect that each of us may define that word “good” differently...

Snack desires certainly vary by age as well as by individual. With younger children, parents are more often involved in determining what their kids will be snacking on whereas older kids are probably selecting the things they want to eat or drink. So in the first instance, it’s probably more important to be certain that the parents or other care givers understand what will be good for the children, but in the second, we need to help the teens make wise choices. (Perhaps in both instances, some of the issue is heavily impacted by the choices that whoever does the grocery shopping makes when they are at the store!)

Snacks can be subdivided into beverages and items that are eaten. Beverages are comparatively easy—water is good. Everything else is somewhat questionable. I know—that doesn’t really help, but it is true. I suspect almost everyone knows that pop isn’t good for your teeth, whether it is diet or regular. In fact there is fairly good research that shows that diet pop is worse for your teeth than pop with sugar in it—purely based on the amount of acidity. What is a surprise to many people is that sport drinks are also bad for teeth. They often have lots of sugar and almost always have, again, high acidity. Fruit juices also are usually high in acidity. Even milk, in spite of what we’ve been told, can be damaging to teeth, because it contains sugar and is retained longer in the mouth than some other beverages.

So, how can we make drinks available for children and not create dental problems? The answer is actually rather easy. After the beverage of choice is consumed, have your child rinse their mouth vigorously with water for at least a few seconds. That’s actually far better than brushing since the rinsing either flushes the acidity out of the mouth or at least dilutes it significantly. Brushing actually causes more breakdown by scrubbing the acid into the teeth.

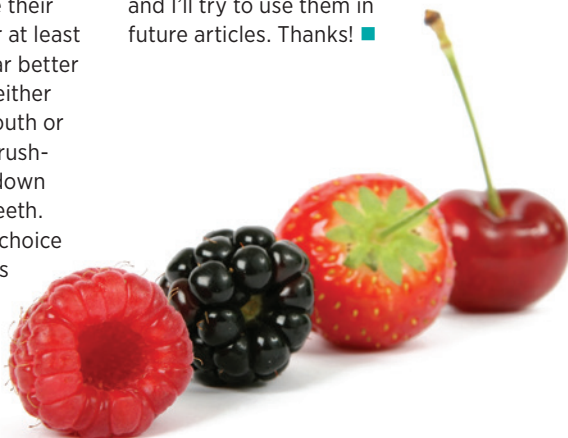

Once that is dealt with, your choice is much easier—which beverages are potentially helpful for your child’s growth and health? Not pop. Ever. Once in a while as a treat, if your kids like it, is probably not a problem. But if you can keep them from ever growing to like it, that’s ideal! Sports drinks are rarely indicated unless your child is actively involved in sports programs that are very vigorous and the level of exercise is high stress and lasts for more than an hour at a time. Even then, after consuming them, rinse! So milk and fruit juices (real juice, NOT juice drinks—read the label!) are probably best. And rinse after drinking them.

For edible snacks, fruits and high protein items are probably best. For fruits, again, rinsing after eating is a good idea. Fruits have the advantage of providing a quick energy boost, but they don’t provide sustained energy. Popcorn is another fun snack that’s fairly dentally healthy—as long as you avoid the un-popped kernels! Cheese and/or chunks of meat of some kind are great sources of protein, as are many nuts. Nuts have an additional advantage of not being chewy or sticky, so they are more easily cleaned or even rinsed away. Some protein bars are also good—again, read the labels! Protein provides a longer lasting or more sustained level of energy and a somewhat smoother increase of it as well.

Things to avoid? Avoid highly processed foods and items high in carbohydrates. Chips and similar types of foods are highly retentive (they stick around teeth and are hard to remove) and may provide quick energy, but no sustained benefit. Cookies and other dessert-like foods are almost always very high in sugar and very low in food value, so it’s best to avoid them. In general very sticky foods are difficult to clean and usually lead to problems.

I hope this helps provide a new perspective for you. If you have other suggestions for healthy snacks or questions about dental health, please send them to me at drkuttler@mydubuquedentist.com, and I’ll try to use them in future articles. Thanks! ■

McCoy's stood out from the crowd of jewelers with their unique approach to the jewelry industry. The McCoy Jewelers staff focuses on the ABC acronym- Always Be Changing, All Be Comfortable, Always Be Closing.

Always Be Changing focuses on their promise to always bring the most innovative technology and products into their shop to provide customers with the best option available. McCoy Jewelers continuously looks for new trends and watches what the community needs when deciding what to introduce into their small Main Street shop.

All Be Comfortable reflects to the unwavering stance that everyone is welcome at McCoy Jewelers. There will never be a surprise reaction to anyone, or any situation at McCoy Jewelers. The staff is never judgmental of anyone who walks in the door and will treat everyone with the same respect.

Lastly, Always Be Closing. The statement means that without a sale, McCoy Jewelers has no business. The staff focuses on educating the customer rather than selling. From repairs to a new custom piece, the staff at McCoy Jewelers will give customers the best advice and recommendations. The business prides itself on never pressuring a customer on a product or service.

The judges also loved how McCoy Jeweler's made their cozy shop flow. The small Main Street shop is built with tons of character. From the tin ceiling to the 10-foot traditional showcases, McCoy Jewelers pays tribute to the historic building it started in. Judge, Jimmy DeGroot said, "I particularly love how they took a bowling alley layout and just owned that layout and did an amazing job. This is definitely a place that I would want to walk into," about the shop.

Another judge, Sofia Kaman said, "A shining example of a two-generation family business that modernizes and adapts to the changing community" about the 45-year long jewelry shop.

IN-HOUSE REPAIRS

Sofia Kaman continued to say, "I love that every piece of jewelry can start and finish in the same place, and the store maintains a polished, unique retail atmosphere."

McCoy Jewelers is one of the few area jewelers who is able to complete all of the repair process in shop. The shop is equipped with the proper machinery to work with sterling silver, gold, and even platinum and palladium pieces! Jonathan and Robert are highly experienced and able to make an old and worn piece of jewelry look brand new.

Children's Life Skills Workshop: 1-2-3 Emotions and Me

6-7:30 PM @ UNIFIED THERAPY SERVICES

Oct. 8, 15, and 22. Harmony Factor is pleased to present an interactive 3-session workshop for children ages 6-10 and one adult. This workshop is designed to raise awareness of emotions in your child, increase empathy for others, and develop self-management skills. You and your child will learn fun heart-focused techniques to support and promote positive internal feelings.

Raising awareness of the feelings your child experiences allows him/her to recognize, acknowledge and deal with their own emotions. Children, who are equipped with tools at an early age, can better self-manage when their emotions overwhelm them. A child's Emotional Quotient (EQ) can be more important than their IQ in determining not only academic achievement but success in a job and life in general.

$79.95* per child/adult pair for all three sessions. Space is limited to 10 child/adult pairs ($25 will be donated to Unified Therapy Services 5K Make A Difference Walk/Run). 4121 Pennsylvania Ave. 815-541-3576. Lori@HarmonyFactor.com. Eventbrite.com/123Workshop.

Gwen Werner's Good Advice

DEAR GWEN,

I'm 31 and I don't know if I've ever felt love. In the movies, it seems like people would die for their loved ones, but I've never felt that way about anyone! I feel broken, like I'll never feel deeply enough for another human being. Every girlfriend I've ever had has told me I'm distant and ultimately they've all left me for that reason. I have had a few friendships that have been warm, but still, I don't think I'd throw myself in front of a bus for any of those people. Am I thinking too hard about this? Am I keeping myself from feeling love? What the hell even is love?

—Sincerely yours, Baffled on Bluff

DEAR BAFFLED ON BLUFF,

You know when you're at a restaurant and your server comes out from the kitchen with a huge tray full of entrées and you know she's headed straight for your table? Homie, that feeling is love. You know when you're driving on a residential road and you see a kid get off the bus and run into their yard and their dog is sitting there waiting to be petted and your heart swells a little bit because that kid has never experienced true loss and can't comprehend the nightmare of our current political climate? That feeling in your ribcage, that stomach flutter, is love.

Bruh, ultimately, nobody is gonna throw themselves in front of a bus for that guy they know who buys them shots of Rumble Minze at the bar. Nobody actually wants to die for the girlfriend who puts "Mine" post-its on her almond milk in the fridge. Maybe you're cold and distant, or maybe you aren't letting yourself notice the love all around you. The stakes don't have to be as high as life or death.

Love is a pizza. Love is a cigarette. Love is a book about murder. Love is the first season of Flavor Flav's Flavor of Love. Love is a day at your job when nobody talks to you. Love is when somebody hits your car and their insurance has to pay you money. Love is an open bar. Love is that meme with those guys from American Chopper yelling at each other.

If you need more help, get a dog, my dude. Actually, most of my advice questions could be answered with one sentence: Get a ding dang dog.

—xoxo Gwen

DEAR GWEN,

I'm tired of my life. I feel like I did everything right! I went to college, I got my dream job, I got married, I had kids. None of it has been fulfilling for me. Despite doing what everyone told me to do, I'm still unhappy. It feels unfair! I should've gotten in a van and traveled the country. I should've been in a band. Now I've got a mortgage and bills and kids to take to daycare. What can I do to feel like I haven't wasted my entire life?

—Best, Wasted Wife

DEAR WASTED WIFE,

Have you ever seen the hit CW teenage drama Gossip Girl? I watched it straight through two years ago. It's about filthy rich New York high school students being weird and bougie. Serena Van Der Woodsen has upwards of 10 meet-cutes involving her crashing into handsome men with her arms full of loose leaf sheets of paper. Chuck Bass has a dog named Monkey. Dan Humphrey gets a short story published in the New Yorker as a 17-year-old and reacts to the news nonchalantly. There's a Thanksgiving scene set to Jason Derulo's "Watcha Say" where maybe someone is pregnant and everyone's glaring daggers and one by one everyone drops a verbal bomb before storming out of the room. It's a lot to take in. But I will say that while I was watching it, I forgot that I was in debt and a burden to my family and friends.

Some other advice columnist might tell you to take a pottery class.

—xoxo Gwen

ARIES
(MAR 21-APR 19)
Daydreams and reveries could inspire new ideas for how to rent your skin out to people who might be going through a hard time or are cold or are just really into using an excess amount of someone else's skin for a bit before giving it back. Visions, stories, or melodies might flood your mind, but inspiration is kind of a pain to deal with, so just get rid of all that stuff and go back to shopping online and eating brats until you die.

TAURUS
(APR 20-MAY 20)
Affection blooms in close relation to how tall and handsome you can appear to be when driving in a car you've decorated with spray-painted cardboard to appear more "Lamborghini-like." Social events should prove especially enjoyable as you spiral further and further into a state of being absolutely convinced that you're tolerable.

GEMINI
(MAY 21-JUNE 20)
You should be in glowing good health once you get rid of things like calories and desire. If you're feeling especially fit, take a good look in someone else's mirror until you realize that you look exactly like the sort of person who would try to order a 32-ounce shaker of extra ramen noodle seasoning from a foreign website.

CANCER
(JUNE 21-JULY 22)
Love and flowers both blossom, but only one can make you suffocated with humanity.

LEO
(JULY 23-AUG 22)
Warm and companionable conversations involve sharing interesting information about people who aren't in earshot or people who are actually you and not your cousin four states over who "also" just so happens to have written a 400,000 word piece of Herman's Head fan-fiction.

VIRGO
(AUG 23-SEP 22)
A gathering in your neighborhood could prove unexpectedly pleasant and enjoyable for people outside of your neighborhood, outside your being, and outside the realm of lawfulness and common sense. You might meet new people, which is pretty much the worst thing that can happen aside from you being the new person someone else meets.

LIBRA
(SEP 23-OCT 22)
A pleasant surprise comes your way when you receive either a present or small sum of money or a string of severed, decaying ears from different points in time throughout the last decade, the oldest of which shriveled and black and then progressively getting lighter and resembling flesh in its more vibrant states. You'll probably just win on a scratch off, though, so don't worry about all that ear stuff. Just don't be surprised if it happens.

SCORPIO
(OCT 23-NOV 21)
Your lucky number is 31.

SAGITTARIUS
(NOV 22-DEC 21)
The Federation of Vaporous Government Entities are cancelling the Sagittarius sign, as well as the timeframe in which it takes place, from both the present and the past. Please adjust your knowledge of how life has been to this point to reflect this news.

CAPRICORN
(DEC 22-JAN 19)
Healthy activities sometimes involve gravy, but you'll still need to shower afterwards.

AQUARIUS
(JAN 20-FEB 18)
One of the Steely Dan documentaries I watched last week had one of their drummers saying that they had a two step process: to get to perfection and then to get beyond it. Bro, that is DEEP.

PISCES
(FEB 19-MAR 20)
Breathe positivity into a bottle and intend to send it to the bottom of the ocean, though, as you're walking home, you'll realize that the pressure in the water will either cause the bottle to only sink to a certain depth before aimlessly floating in the middle of what is essentially nothingness or will go down far enough to crumple in on itself and become the nothingness.
