After 37 years, greyhound racing has come to and end in Iowa. It's almost a joke now when people grumble in an old man voice and say "gambling built this town!", but you'll be hard-pressed to say gambling didn't re-build this town. The impact of gaming on Dubuque has been profound as one of the forerunners to the industry in Iowa. And that all starter when parimutuel racing, in the form of greyhound racing, came to Dubuque.

I was a kid, but we were certainly among the thousands of families who made an event of going down to see the dogs run when it first opened. You wonder why the parking lot is so big at Q Casino? Well, try visiting in 1985, and you'll know. Well, I guess with the summer concerts, it gets pretty full these days too. It was like going to the ballpark. There were even ballpark-style vendors selling fries and pizza by the slice from booths as we filled the grandstands to watch the races. Those grandstands have since been filled in with a level floor as smaller in-person audiences were catered to.

Like so many others, I guess the newness of it wore off. And certainly with the arrival of slot gaming and the instant gratification of betting now and winning or losing now proved too enticing. With the dogs, you have to wait 15 minutes between races to know if your bet pays off or not while you can make literally scores of bets on a slot machine in the same time frame.

With just a couple of days left in the history of greyhound racing in Dubuque, I joined my wife and her co-workers at FEH Design for a company social outing to what is now called the Iowa Greyhound Park at Q Casino on the last Wednesday race ever for a little nostalgia and, for my wife, her first time ever betting on the dogs. I admit it had been a very long time for me too. Certainly the way you bet has changed. But the experience was much the same, and I have to say we had a lot of fun. As complete novices, we used a tiny bit of data from the race program and supplemented it with a who lot of voodoo, silliness, and picking dogs by their names to place our bets. And I was reminded of being a kid when the dogs manes were so important to the betting process and, of course, if the dog pooped while being led to the gate, you just knew that dog was going to be extra fast. Ah, the wisdom of youth!

Christy's first bet was a real risky one. A favorite to Show. That means a dog likely to win will come in at least third. So, you know... ease her way into it. The dog lost. Bad. Then we bet on a dog named Angie Harmon as a shoutout to my friend and 365ink occasional editor, Tim Brechlin, the world's biggest Law & Order fan. She too lost... Bad! And then we did a Place bet on a dog that looked good. That dog lost bad too. We were not on a roll.

So like any professional dog race betters, we clearly were now experienced veterans at this whole thing. 0 for 4 and not even a sniff at the money in any race. So naturally it was time to think that we could nail down a quinella bet in the next race. A quinella is a bet in which the first two place winners in a race must be predicted but not necessarily in the correct order. It's not important that you remember that because, well, the track is closed now, forever. But the point is, while we could not guess one dog to get in the top three, we now had the audacity to think that we could pick the No. 1 and 2 dogs in the next race exactly. It's just how we roll. What the hell, our $2 bet was funded by FEH who gave everyone a few bucks to put on the races.

And despite it being a 90+ degree day, we went outside for this one race because I wanted Christy to hear the real sounds of the race that you don't experience behind the glass. She was surprised to hear the screeching of the bone-shaped lure racing on the track and the tramping sound of dogs running on the dirt. I also happened to film this one race of all the races that day. Low and behold, we nailed it. No. 2 dog and No. 7 dog came across the line in that exact order we picked, and we totally cleaned up with a stunning $15.60 purse. But the excited and slightly stunned joy on her face was the real prize. I have it on video. It's great.

We then proceed to lose on a dog with "Unicorn" in its name, but I was not lured in to bet on "Raiders Scrimmage" who had come in last place in its previous seven races. Besides, never bet on the Raiders. They will always disappoint you. Indeed, it turned out not good. You can probably adopt him now.

What a fun way to spend a couple of hours on a Wednesday night. I half regret not doing it sooner. It was there this whole time, and it's like you grow up, get busy, and let it slip from your lexicon of "things to do." I should have included it in the last 365ink cover story which was titled Why Haven't You Done This Yet? Duh! It was an obvious choice even if it only had three more weeks of life.

Sadly, as greyhound racing across America goes away with a whimper, few will even notice as the day comes and goes. And to be sure, Q Casino is likely to do something exciting in place of the track. Maybe an awesome amphitheater or a relocation of that hotel that was planned before the pandemic hit. So we will all be thinking, wow, why didn't they do this sooner? But the fact is that none of it would be here today had the dogs not come to Dubuque in 1985.

So whether you are a gamer or not or have ever been to a race or not, I will on your behalf as well as mine, say thank you to everyone involved from the early '80s on, who brought this vision to life and began a journey that proved to be one of the biggest and most impactful economic development engines to bring Dubuque back with a vengeance and become the envy of Iowa. We're a travel destination, a wonderful hometown, and great base for industry, and so much of that has roots in the infrastructure reorganization that was made real by the existence of gaming in our community.

I'm glad I got to do it one more time. I hope what takes its place brings nearly as much lasting impact to the quality of life in Dubuque as those dogs did. Now get to work on it... it's POSTTIME! ■

Music on the Mountain

SATURDAY, MAY 28 @ NOON–7 PM
SUNDOWN MOUNTAIN RESORT
(16991 ASBURY RD)

Music on the Mountain is back on Saturday, May 28, from noon to 7 p.m. at Sundown Mountain Resort. This family-friendly outdoor event will have live music, beer, food trucks, craft vendors, chairlift rides up the hillside, and activities for the kids, including a petting zoo, inflatables, and more.

Guests are welcome to hike down the trails on the hillside and stop at Ben's Den for some s'more making and treats! The chairlifts will also be running to bring guests up the hillside.

As of this printing, the food trucks taking part will include Bob & Lou's, Birds, Fried Chicken, Howling BBQ, and Dinger's D'Lite's.

But like any great festival, music plays a key role in the perfect weekend in an idyllic outdoor party setting. Nate Jenkins kicks things off from 1 to 3 p.m., followed by Cody Earl from 3 to 5 p.m., and Laura McDonald (who just killed it at the Dubuque Symphony Rock Show) finishes from 5 to 7 p.m.

"We wanted to make it a very family-friendly event," Gordon told us. "You can come out and listen to music, walk down the hill, and we'll give you a ride back up on our chairlift, which is awesome. We even have a petting zoo, which was wildly popular last year. Plus inflatable rides. It's a holiday weekend, and if you haven't made any plans, bring the family out. We'll have our north bars open and a little party place halfway down the hill for the kids to play, have s'mores and hot chocolate, things like that. The kids will love it as much as you will."

Rain date is Sunday, May 29. Tickets available at the gate. Adults are $15, ages 6–11 are $8, and children 5 and under are free.

For more information, call Sundown at 563-556-6676 or visit SundownMTN.com. ■

AUGUST 4 @ 5–9 PM
NATIONAL MISSISSIPPI RIVER MUSEUM
& AQUARIUM (350 E 3RD ST)

Taste of Summer received a new look at the National Mississippi River Museum & Aquarium last year. The annual event changed to a series instead of a stand-alone event. Due to a positive reception from attendees, the format is returning for 2022 with events scheduled on the first Thursday of the month—June 2, July 7, and Aug. 4. Food and beverages are available beginning at 5 p.m. with live music starting at 6 p.m. The event will run until 9 p.m.

Guests are invited to attend this after-hours event in outdoor spaces on the River Museum campus. Live music, food trucks, and a beer/seltzer/pop stand will have items for sale. Visitors are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets to use, and a limited number of picnic tables will be available.

Taste of Summer is open to all ages and is free to attend. Both beverage sales and freewill donations will support the River Museum's conservation efforts to save endangered species. Food vendors will compete for the prize of "Crowd Favorite" at each of the three events.

June 2 welcomes Caroline's Restaurant, Adobos Mexican Grill, Sugar Ray's BBQ, and Koppes Kreations with music by Adam Beck and Simple Company.

July 7 hosts Lawrence Brothers BBQ, Birds, Fried Chicken, Versus, Hot Diggity Dogz, and Elle & Becks with music by Eric Chesser.

Aug. 4 closes things out with The Crepe Iron (check out our dining column for more info on these folks!), Magoo's Pizza, Happi Hibachi, and Vesperman Farms Ice Cream Truck with music by Boys of Lloyd and Boogie Monster.

Ample free parking is available in the public lots outside the River Museum. For more information, visit the River Museum's Facebook page or RiverMuseum.com. ■

Relay For Life

FRIDAY, JUNE 3 @ 5-10 PM

KERPER BLVD AND HAWTHORNE ST

After an almost 3-year hiatus due to the global pandemic (no, not the global pandemic of cancer... that other one...) stopped us from Relaying as we all know it, they are BACK! Live, in-person, ready to pack the track... Relay is back!

On Friday, June 3, converge at the corner of Kerper Blvd. and Hawthorne St. (formerly Bowling and Beyond) from 5 to 10 p.m. The program begins with a group picture before the Purple Ribbon Cutting Ceremony at 5:45 p.m. followed by recognition laps in honor of local survivors and the years they have been surviving cancer. Fun laps rev up the competition along with prizes. Relay is also bringing back the doves release. A silent auction will look different this year, but be ready to bid on some great items. They will gladly accept any donated baskets to put on the auction table, too. Enjoy food, entertainment, stories, awards, and lots of love, laughter, and support to celebrate, remember, and fight back!

When you participate or just root on the participants, you'll see a return of Relay the way it used to be: a HUGE celebration of life and successes of those affected by cancer. Relay will pay honor and encouragement to those who are currently fighting and to those who have lost their battles with an emotional Luminaria Ceremony.

Co-chairs Tammy Welbes and Dawn Shepherd point out that Relay didn't completely go away. For two years it was all virtual or in vehicles. Last year they raised more than $90,000 for research, education, and support of those who are affected by cancer in the area WITHOUT an in-person event. Yes! All that money stays local.

To participate in Iowa's largest Relay For Life event, visit cancer.org and find the Relay for Life logo and link or do what we did: Google "Relay for Life Dubuque," and it'll be the first link that comes up. You can also find the local Relay at facebook.com/groups/rfidubuquecountyia. We all have some one to fight for, so put on your walking shoes and lets Relay For Life! ■

MOVIE NEWS

Coming Soon

TOP GUN MAVERICK (PG-13)

FRIDAY, MAY 27

After more than 30 years of service as one of the Navy's top aviators, Pete "Maverick" Mitchell (Tom Cruise) is where he belongs, pushing the envelope as a courageous test pilot and dodging the advancement in rank that would ground him. When he finds himself training a detachment of Top Gun graduates for a specialized mission the likes of which no living pilot has ever seen, Maverick encounters his former navigator, Goose's son. Facing an uncertain future and confronting the ghosts of his past, Maverick is drawn into a confrontation with his own deepest fears, culminating in a mission that demands the ultimate sacrifice from those who will be chosen to fly it. This film has been done and waiting to get released since before the pandemic. Let's do this already!

THE BOB'S BURGERS MOVIE (PG-13)

FRIDAY, MAY 27

An animated, big-screen, musical comedy-mystery-adventure based on the long-running Emmy®-winning series. A ruptured water main creates an enormous sinkhole ruining the Belchers' plans for a successful summer. While Bob and Linda struggle to keep the business afloat, the kids try to solve a mystery that could save their family's restaurant.

JURASSIC PARK DOMINION (PG-13)

FRIDAY, JUNE 10

The epic conclusion to the Jurassic era as two generations unite for the first time. Chris Pratt and Bryce Dallas Howard are joined by Oscar®-winner Laura Dern, Jeff Goldblum, and Sam Neill in Jurassic World Dominion, a bold, timely, and breathtaking new adventure that spans the globe. From Jurassic World architect and director Colin Trevorrow, Dominion takes place four years after Isla Nublar has been destroyed. Dinosaurs now live—and hunt—alongside humans all over the world. This fragile balance will reshape the future and determine, once and for all, whether human beings are to remain the apex predators on a planet they now share with history's most fearsome creatures.

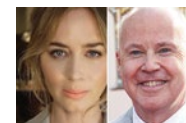

Movie Buzz

The action movie sequel Law Abiding Citizen 2 has been given the green light, nearly a decade after the original film was released. While the original was not all that well reviewed, it did get a 75 percent score from fans on Rotten Tomatoes and made a modest $127.9 million international gross off a budget of $50 million. Just four years later, Butler would strike gold with the action hit Olympus Has Fallen and its equals. Then, Law Abiding Citizen was added to Netflix and went to No. 3. Butler looks to be producing only this time with a new star to build the project around.

Netflix has struck a deal for David Yates' (Harry Potter) upcoming directorial feature Pain Hustlers starring Emily Blunt. Written by Wells Tower, Pain Hustlers has drawn comparisons to American Hustle and The Wolf of Wall Street and will follow Liza Drake, a high school dropout who quickly finds herself involved in a criminal conspiracy after landing a job with a pharmaceutical start-up in hopes of creating a better life for her and her daughter. Blunt will first be seen next in Christopher Nolan's Oppenheimer.

While he wants both shows to succeed, George R.R. Martin wants House of the Dragon to outperform its rival show, Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power. Set 200 years before the events of Martin's A Song of Ice and Fire books, which became the Game of Thrones TV show, House of the Dragon tells the tale of the final days of the legendary dragon riding House Targaryen. It's also based on one of Martin's books, Fire and Blood. Starring Matt Smith, Paddy Considine, Emma D'Arcy, and Olivia Cooke, the show will lead up to the Dance of Dragons, the civil war that tore the Targaryen Dynasty apart, and is set to release on Aug. 21. Estimated to be the most expensive television show ever made, Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power is set thousands of years before the events of The Lord of the Rings and The Hobbit and concerns the events of Middle Earth's Second Age. How about we just watch both shows?

FIVE FLAGS CENTER BIJOU ROOM
(405 MAIN ST)

Fly-By-Night Productions performs Ten Chimneys by Jeffrey Hatcher on June 3, 4, 10, and 11 at 7:30 p.m. and June 5 at 2 p.m. and the Five Flags Center Bijou Room.

Ten Chimneys is a soap-opera comedy with a Noel Coward touch. Summer 1938, Broadway legends Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne retreat, as they did in real-life, to their summer Wisconsin estate, Ten Chimneys. With other actors, family, and hangers-on, they work on a Chekov play and the real and fictional worlds intrude on each other. Ten Chimneys is about theatre folk: funny, poignant, and revealing in its look at these private lives that never really leave the stage. The play is Hatcher's homage to this place of vibrant creativity and the historic big personalities who inhabited it.

Join FBNP for a talk-back with the cast and director following the June 4 and 10 performances.

Tickets are $20 and can be purchased at Ticketmaster.com, the Five Flags Center box office, and at the door one hour before showtime. For more information, call 563-599-9486 or visit FlyByNightDubuque.com. ■

Steve-O

THE BUCKET LIST TOUR
SATURDAY, JUNE 11 @ 7 PM
FIVE FLAGS THEATER

Steve-O, one of the original stars of the Jackass TV and movie franchise, comes to Dubuque for the very first time to perform an adults-only comedy show at the Five Flags Theater as part of his Bucket List Tour on Saturday, June 11 at 7 p.m.

Every idea on Steve-O's Bucket List was so ill-advised, he never expected to go through with any of them. Until it was time to prepare for this tour. Not only are the stunts more ridiculous than what you already know Steve-O for, he did them all, and made a highly XXX-rated, multimedia comedy show out of them. Not for kids, or for the faint of heart.

After failing miserably at the University of Miami, Steve-O (a.k.a. Stephen Glover) was a homeless couch-surfer for three years before he attended Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Clown College, to help further his goal of becoming a famous stuntman.

His relentless need to be in the spotlight ultimately led to working with Johnny Knoxville on a stunt-based reality show. MTV aired the first season of Jackass in 2000.

Since then, Steve-O has had continued success, as a New York Times best-selling author with the release of his memoir, Professional Idiot, and he has established himself as a force in the world of stand-up comedy.

Across his social media platforms, Steve-O has amassed well over 24 million followers and counting, providing an intimate window into his continued antics and colorful life with his fiancée, Lux. He's also got a weekly podcast called Steve-O's Wild Ride! with guests which have included Demi Lovato, Shaquille O'Neal, Ronda Rousey, David Dobrik, Tony Hawk, and more.

Note: This show will contain mature content. No one under 18 years old will be permitted into the theater.

Limited tickets remain!
Tickets are $35-$100. ■

New Season, New Blooms and New Leadership at the Dubuque Arboretum & Botanical Gardens

By Bryce Parks

As Music in the Gardens at the Dubuque Arboretum and Botanical Gardens reaches its 30 year milestone, the venue itself is entering new era of another kind, as they welcome a new director, Jenna Hirtz, to lead the way for the next part of its storied journey.

As a budget financial analyst for the City of Dubuque with degrees in accounting, business, and human resources and a recent masters in business, Jenna is coming at the new gig with a defiant mind for numbers, operations, and organization. Something that every business, whether it a for-profit or nonprofit can benefit from. But it's not just tweaking the bottom line that drove her to take this position.

"When I was in my undergrad program, I was trying to determine what I wanted to do with my schooling," begins Jenna, "and while I had the math and accounting experience, I also grew up in the country and had a long-standing connection to nature and conservation. So I was also thinking about an environmental degree and agriculture as well. So, although I stuck to accounting, it's nice to find a role where I can have my hobbies and passions for nature, and share with others that have similar interests while using my degree to run the operations."

Hirtz joined the team at the end of November, a good down time to get acclimated and work on the operation before having to work in it come spring.

"I was left with really good reigns when they handed it over to me, and now it's just a matter of taking the next step with everything. It's been very good so far. I'm trying to clean things up in the places my training is best suited for. With my background with the city, I've been able to bring in ideas and improvements. We are nonprofit, and there are some things we were kind of behind on."

"So we're now trying to make some things a little more automated, especially with our website. We just went through a website redesign. We got a major portion of it done to go live for the season, but then by October, we want to have a little more automation added. For example, when someone calls in to reserve a portion of our venue, like the Packard Pavilion, our volunteers have to flip through binders to find availability, and we've all made the mistake of double booking. So we're just trying to do a clean online process for that. People will be able to go online and see if the venue and the date they want are available. They can book it, pay for it, and get all the confirmation emails and a follow up email to get a review of their experience. It will make the whole process a lot better."

Weddings at the Arboretum are obviously a big deal. But the private events go far beyond that. Baby showers are actually very popular, as are birthday parties, reunions, graduation parties, and anniversaries. And the dates can fill up fast. There is no limit for booking into the future, but if you want to get something planned for this summer, you will have to fit it in among all of the activity already booked for the season. But Jenna notes that small, intimate weddings are popular because they can often fit those in without booking a year in advance.

As Jenna works to streamline the things that are already in place, it's never too early to start developing and working toward a vision of her own for what's next to make this place all it can be.

"I would really like to see things become more accessible for everyone out here. And that's been an established portion of our vision and goals as well. That's already been started. Last year, we installed an all accessible walkway that starts at the Japanese Garden parking lot and goes down to that garden, the pond, and loops back around. So everyone can now come out here, whether they are wheelchair bound or have strollers, and enjoy the grounds. Otherwise they might be on grass, wood chips, or crushed rock. So I hope to continue with that goal and access more areas of the grounds. We are nonprofit, so I'm the one who is applying for grants and looking for donations. So with those goals established, we know what direction to steer those grant opportunities."

"I've also been trying to cut back on our paper usage. When I started, seven people would get the same printout of something. Why? So we're trying to do more digital communication and scanning, trying to be more environmentally friendly, living our mission. Because we care about the trees, we don't want to be wasteful with the resources that we do have."

In an example of pulling things back and reconnecting with their mission, last week's Children's Spring Party didn't have a theme like "Pirates" or "Space," even though those have been very popular. Instead, they're trying to re-instill their mission of trying to educate about the environments around us in nature.

"We hope the kids want to keep coming back to the Arboretum or at least go outside and enjoy nature at a young age. So nature is our theme and will be for years to come."

This year, they partnered with the DNR to plant trees with the kids. Dubuque County Conservation was at the Children's Spring Party doing an interactive conversation with the kids, discussing pollinators, and doing fun activities to show the kids nature in action. They also had beans donated from Cornerstone Nursery and will use those beans for a germination process project. The kids take them home, watch them sprout and grow, and if they like, plant them in the ground.

"Our goal is just getting families aware of the grounds and all of the things that we have out here to offer. Because we're constantly adding things that are new. Though the Spring Party is for kids, it captures the attention of all of those parents who may not have previously even known that we're here. Getting them connected to know what we have to offer in the future is important. That's why we added our scavenger hunt this year, so they can see some of the key newly added features on the grounds, like the kaleidoscope we added out front."

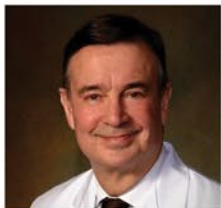

The Arboretum also just partnered with the Carnegie-Stout Public Library to install a Story Walk trail, where families can hike and learn about nature while enjoying pages from a big book at stops along the way. That book will transition out each month for five months of the year, so families can come back five times for five books and also see the park in different stages of growth and blooming through the season.

For Hirtz, it's events that are key for getting locals to come out and keep coming out to the gardens. Being active on social media is also a driver in letting fans and followers know what's happening now, what's happening next, and keep the conversations going. Older residents make up a big portion of those who come to simply enjoy the grounds, and they are also predominantly the people who are here for Music in the Gardens which has quietly (or not so quietly) become the ongoing biggest music festival in Dubuque.

“In a way, we do like keeping it kind of quiet, and the reason is, we’re only so big. I’m new, but from my understanding, the reason that we don’t promote it bigger than we do (sorry, you’re on the cover of 365ink) is because we’re limited on space. Some of those nights, especially the really popular ones like the Dubuque Symphony, can bring several thousand people in, and we have limited parking and they’re parking out into the neighborhood. You want everyone to be safe, but you also don’t want to overgrow the space and take away from the aesthetics of it all.”

With all that newly on her plate, at least Jenna doesn’t have to figure out what kind of music people want to hear.

“We have someone who we work with to book all of the talent, and she works with us on if we want some of the same people back or new faces, and can we still afford some of those who have been here. And I work on sponsors to help cover the costs to make those shows possible. And, of course, our partnership with the Dubuque Arts Council.”

Another popular event coming up is Sundaes in the Gardens on Sunday, June 19 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. It’s also Father’s Day. Come out for complimentary ice cream with all the fixings on McKay Plaza, then stick around, explore the park, and find your picnic spot to enjoy Music in the Gardens later that evening.

Any Sunday is actually a great time to come out early before the concert, save your spot, and then enjoy a stroll of the gardens. Hy-Vee is here for the shows with food available in case you came without having dinner first. They’ve got you covered. And the Lions Club sells ice cream at the concerts, too.

A lot of people also know the secret about getting their walks in at the Arboretum. The loop that goes around the park is exactly a half mile. So people, especially those who live around the Arboretum, come in and get their laps in daily. During the nice weather months, it could be a nice diversion for those mall walkers to get a new view on their walk. A pretty great resource to just always be there and always be free.

“A lot of comments we hear from visitors is the stunned realization that it’s totally free to come out and visit the Dubuque Arboretum & Botanical Gardens. They can’t believe it’s all volunteer run too. They’re so impressed and shocked by it. Most venues like ours charge admission to get in, so that makes us unique. Anyone can come, no matter their financial situation.”

Almost all events are free as well or very affordable. The Children’s Party, for example, is a whopping dollar to get in. Donations are, of course, vital to the ongoing health and growth of the venue. Individual gifts, endowments, and change dropped in donation buckets all matter. So if you do have the financial flexibility, make sure you show your appreciation for your visit with a donation to one of the collection boxes.

The gift shop features art and crafts from local artisans as well as unique and awesome gift ideas that the ladies who run the shop find when they scour buying conventions, to offer something for everyone. And if you find mom a gift here for her kitchen or her garden, the proceeds help support the initiatives of the Arboretum, so it’s a double win.

There is always a need for volunteers at the Arboretum, and you can join the team. People work in all different parts of the organization. Not just maintaining the gardens, but in the office and gift shop as well. So you don't have to be able to get down in the dirt on your hands and knees to make an impact. There are opportunities for all people at all ages and with all levels of ability. Currently more than 350 volunteers make up the Arboretum family that keeps it growing and thriving. Visit a lot, once a month, or once a year, whatever fits your schedule. Every hour is appreciated.

Donations can be made in person or online, and there are also memberships available. With a membership, you show your support of the activities at the Arboretum. You also get 10 percent off in the already tax-free gift shop, and you get the quarterly newsletter to keep up with what's happening with your investment at the Arboretum. You can also show your support in the form of memorial or honorarium trees as well as bricks and pavers. You can go through that process on the website. The investment is handled wisely, but there are some costs that even volunteers can't offset.

"Especially when you've got the pond running and the electricity and the water features and the pumps involved, that stuff is not cheap to maintain. And supply chain issues have not missed us."

And activities like replacing annuals, most of which are grown from plugs, have to be replaced from scratch every season. Thousands of annuals not only mean a lot of work for volunteers but a lot of cost too. But they're so worth it. And each year brings a theme to the Botanical Gardens' Annual Bed. This year's theme is "The Games We Play." So look for beds that highlight games like tic-tac-toe, duck duck goose, football, RAGBRAI, and more. They don't look like much now, Hirtz warned us, but as soon as they fill in, well, the game is afoot!

While things bloom at different times, peak seasons for visits include the when the roses bloom in July, and magnolias were already booming back on Mother's Day. But the point is, if you come more than once, the experience is going to be different each time if you pay attention to the details.

"This year has been weird with the weather. Everything's been a bit off. Some blooms off a week, some off by a month. So it's been tricky to get a feel for a normal year in my first year when it's been anything but a normal year."

Normal or not, summer is basically here, so for Jenna Hirtz and crew, it's grow time! ■

7 PM @ MONK'S KAFFEE PUB (373 BLUFF ST)
Kalamazoo, MI-based Fake Baseball head to Monk's to showcase their acclaimed debut album. Maggie Heeren, Adam Danis, Jarad Selner, and Grayson Nye have developed a fresh, heady pop sound that lies square in the middle on a spectrum between Björk and Dolly Parton. Fake Baseball bends pop music on its ear and wields it to build engaging soundscapes, with plenty of consideration toward making those booties drop.

Damien Jurado

WITH CHRIS PUREKA

FRIDAY, MAY 27 @ 8 PM

CODFISH HOLLOW BARNSTORMERS
(5013 288TH AVE, MAQUOKETA, IA)

Damien Jurado brings a very special, limited ticket, partially seated show to our favorite barn in Iowa: Codfish Hollow in Maquoketa. Join Jurado and Chris Pureka on Friday, May 27 at 8 p.m. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Dire circumstances have long been fixtures of Damien Jurado's songs, which are filled with ghosts, killers, cruel lovers, and the occasional UFO cult or false messiah. His compositions are uncluttered, but not slight, decorated by Beatles-esque bass-lines, drums, and strings.

"Play on, there's no such thing as better days," Jurado sings on "Roger," the sweeping wash of a song that opens Reggae Film Star, his 18th full length album and second release from his own MaraQopa Records label. But as he enters his 25th year as a recording artist, it's clear these are, at the least, very good days for Jurado on the creative front. In these 12 songs, which evoke half-remembered dreams and overheard conversations, the cosmic rushes headlong into the autobiographical and specific moments on the clock fade from past to future to scenes set only in the eternal now. Following threads established by 2021's The Monster Who Hated Pennsylvania, the RFS sees Jurado embracing his auteur era, penning vignettes that arrive with little fanfare and depart quicker than you might suspect, only to linger long after they wrap.

Food and beverages will be available for purchase. The Codfish Hollow Art Gallery features hand-crafted artwork by various local artists. Vendors from the Tri-State area will be on hand selling various arts, crafts, and jewelry. Free parking with bus rides to and from the barn as well as free camping in the cow pasture.

The show is ages 5+. Proof of full vaccination is required. Tickets are $35 in advance or $40 at the door. For tickets and more information, visit CodfishHollowBarnstormers.com. ■

Dubuque Farmers' Market Prepared Foods

By Bryce Parks

Summer is basically here, and that means Dubuque Farmers' Market time! There is no better place to access unique and creative prepared foods in town that you just won't find anywhere else in one place. So why not take a lap of the market with us and sample the cooked prepared foods available every Saturday May through October... assuming they don't sell out before you get there.

And we're not even getting into the baked goods and treats that are available, which you could just as easily graze on while you walk around. Millwork Bakery hand pies should be a food group unto themselves. But we're sticking to the "hot" stuff this time around.

While we miss The Food Store's long-time leadership in the world of Farmers' Market cooking, and we still have dreams about East Mill Bakery's homemade english muffin sandwiches (R.I.P.), thankfully there are a number of great new options to step in and fill the void... in your belly!

Note also that not all vendors are at market every week, so come down with more than one option in mind, as many things here will make your breakfast dreams come true.

Dubuque Farmers' Market is located in the Upper Main District around City Hall since 1858. Expanding over three city blocks on Iowa Street, it now extends down 11th, 12th, and 13th Streets.

Let's eat!

Adobos Mexican Grill adobosmexicangrill.com

You can tell by the size of the line that the breakfast burritos that Jaime Salazar cranks out of the Adobos food truck at market are anything but a secret. Filled with sautéed potatoes, eggs, a choice of meats including bacon, sausage or chorizo plus tomatoes, bell peppers, onions, queso, salsa or Adobos's El Diablo sauce, this is everything your body needs in a foil wrapper. Keep it mellow or make it spicy, as you desire. Worth the wait and the $10 price tag, the breakfast burrito is good for eating and walking around. You can also get a bowl version to make it gluten free. Adobos' food truck is all over town all week, but you'll only get a breakfast version on the truck at Dubuque Farmers' Market and on Saturday mornings in the restaurant November through April.

West Dubuque Tap Magic Mobile

facebook.com/burgerandfrieguys

When West Dubuque's Tap's famous Magic Muffin showed up at market in 2016, it was an instant crowd favorite. But there's no fancy wizardry behind the pile of love, except for the smile on your face. It's a simple pile of hash browns, fried eggs, sausage patties, and cheese all "technically" loaded onto an English muffin. But you ain't picking this thing up and eating it. You need a fork. So we suggest you pull up some curb, sit down, and dive in. You can't miss the tie-dyed Magic Mobile when you see it!

The Crepe Iron facebook.com/Crepelron

A crepe (or crêpe) is a French pancake made of a thin batter containing flour, eggs, melted butter, salt, milk, water, and, if the crepes are to be served with a sweet sauce or garnish, sugar. Crepes can be filled with a variety of sweet or savory mixtures. The Crepe Iron generally features four crepe recipes each day, with two being staples, the classic strawberry, banana, Nutella sweet crepe, and then for morning events they do the basic ham, egg and cheese, and maybe jazz it up with some appropriate veggies. And then they always do one more sweet and one more savory. Those will generally be featured for a full week. Gluten free available, and amazing coffee from Devour Cafe as well. Crepes are less than $10, and they're pretty easy to eat while walking around the market!

Sun Rice

Tinesh and Samantha Jahagee are new at market this year with Sun Rice. They feature warm fried rice and chilled rice bowls. We had the fried rice with carrots, onion, and scallions that's made with oyster sauce for the distinctive fried rice flavor. And, naturally, we added bacon because, duh. It's simple and tasty. Not spicy or complex. Call it a morning comfort food.

Shugga's Soul Cafe

Okay, so Shugga's is a real restaurant indoors along the street of the market, but you'd better not overlook the legit soul food that Snoflake Naylor and her crew are whipping up. From the best fried catfish we ever had to mac and cheese that will put you directly in nap mode, collard greens that are every bit the real deal, sweet potato pie that really is basically dessert, and more features that rotate, including awesome breakfast fare like pancakes, eggs, ham, and sausage. Want more? How about wings, shrimp and grits, or find out what a Jimmy Jordan Gym Shoe is and thank me later! This is a wonderful place to sit down for a few minutes, try food you can't get anywhere else in town, and build up your energy to finish your market shopping after. Just do it! Find them on Facebook.

Versus
facebook.com/VersusDBQ

Another newcomer for 2022 is Versus, an Asian-style cuisine food truck featuring flavors from the Philippines and Vietnam. Look for egg rolls, a Vietnamese banh mi sandwich, Tapsilog rice bowls, Chinese chive cakes, and Korean fried chicken (soy garlic or sweet and spicy). Do any of those things make you say, "huh?" Well, what better excuse to try them out for yourself and not wonder anymore.

Dinger's D'Lites

Sandwiches served with fresh ingredients and uniquely homemade sauces. The menu often features burgers such as the "Dinger" (smoked pork, bacon, Swiss, onion straws, and whiskey BBQ sauce), chicken street tacos (grilled chicken, pepper slaw, blackened corn, and sri-racha aioli), and other rotating fare like a margarita bowl or a Cuban sandwich. They're not at market every time, so you have to just be lucky enough to catch them when they are. Find them on Facebook.

Bode's Breakfast Barn and Bakery

Home of the Dubuque Farmers' Market donut sandwich! Find grilled cheese, perhaps with Stone Hollow mushrooms; a great BLT, perhaps with an egg; or a tasty breakfast burrito... perhaps in a bowl. The burrito or bowl has eggs, hash browns, sausage or bacon, cheese, salsa, sour cream, and jalapeños if you like. Breakfast sandwiches can also come on a biscuit, bread or, yes, French toast made with homemade sour-dough cinnamon bread and features egg, cheese, and bacon or sausage. The famous donut sandwich can come on an apple cider, sugar, or glazed donut. Plus fresh-made lemonade, cool mint iced tea, and fresh-brewed root beer. ■

The Overnight Guest

A novel by Iowa writer
Heather
Gudenkauf

By Dena Kurt

What do you do when you expect a typical, quick, goose-bump psychological thriller read and roller coaster your way through the pages as usual, only to reach the bumper at the end with the feeling that somewhere you must have taken a shortcut and missed out on the best part of the ride? What you do is start over. Read the story the way it was meant to be read. Really take your time. Let the heat of an August night soak your shirt. Concentrate on how it feels to be caught off guard by an unexpected early spring snow storm, power out and roads icy. Get to know the difference between a Sturgeon Moon and a Buck Moon.

Start with Chapter 1. Read it slowly. Move on to Chapter 2. Read that slowly too. Stop. Take a breath and get ready. These two chapters form the bookends for The Overnight Guest. One is the guest looked forward to with anticipation. The other is the guest unexpected in the worst possible way. Between these two bookends lie the pieces to an intricate puzzle.

Heather Gudenkauf, an Iowa native and long-time Dubuque resident (who recently moved to Cedar Rapids to be closer to her parents) is loved by her readers for her willingness to share her insights. Known for her psychological thrillers, all set in Iowa and often based on real-life situations and events, The Overnight Guest, released in January of this year, is her ninth novel.

Unlike Gudenkauf's previous novels, The Overnight Guest has three interconnecting storylines: the past, the present, and the story of a little girl and her mother. These three storylines and how they fit together become a compelling puzzle to solve.

Wylie Lane is a troubled true-crime writer who takes up temporary residence in an old isolated farmhouse somewhere north of Des Moines, IA to write about an unsolved crime that took place on the property in the year 2000. She has a dog to keep her company, a fire to keep her warm, and silence to help her focus on her writing. The question is, what is compelling her to stay in a place where two murders took place and a young girl disappeared decades earlier?

Tension mounts as an unexpected snow storm cuts off Wylie from the outside world and she discovers a young child in the snow when she goes out into the storm to get wood for the fireplace. What this child is doing in a remote farmyard in the middle of a snow storm is the mystery that Wylie must solve to find the answers she seeks, and to find healing and closure.

Heather's use of foreshadowing, her careful choice of thematic elements, like weather and a homey wood fire, her detailed descriptions and her well-developed characters make for a riveting read. The cast of characters is a large one, so be sure to take your time to get to know them. These are the folks who make small-town living in Heather's novels either a joy or a burden. It is entertaining to match up the quirks and mannerisms of these folks of fiction with real-life counterparts.

One character this reader would have liked to see take a more prominent spot at the end of the novel is a man named Jackson Henley. At one point during the book he states, "You won't believe me. No one ever believes me." This proves true to the very end of the book, when his is ignored and left out of the plot. Poor guy. He deserved better.

Gritty. Tough. Unflinching. Visceral. Loved. Unforgotten.

Heather reminds us that we must not forget the missing. They create empty holes in the lives and landscape of the living for decades to come. With persistence, some of those missing person cases can be resolved so that healing can begin.

To broaden your Iowa experience, be sure to read one of Heather's novels. She has earned the respect of authors and readers across the United States, and deservedly so.

A warning to readers: There are some gory murder scenes and very raw and difficult themes explored as the pieces of the story fit together. These may prove too uncomfortable for some readers. ■

Melon Mania

By Hy-Vee Nutritionists Megan Dalsing (Asbury) and Amy Cordingley (Locust and Dodge)

Melons are in peak season during May through September. While all melons have soft, juicy fruit with a sweet fragrant flavor, their appearance varies widely. Watermelons are part of the gourd family. Rinds range from bright to deep green and they have a crunchy, reddish-pink interior. Honeydew and cantaloupe are known as muskmelons. While honeydew has a smooth, pale green rind and honey-flavored fruit, a cantaloupe has a more fibrous rind with light orange fruit.

The secret to picking a perfect melon is in the weight and smell. A juicy, ripe melon will feel heavy and firm. Ripe melons should have an intense musky aroma near the stem.

Biting into a juicy melon can be a refreshing experience and packs a punch of nutrition. Melons are about 90 percent water, which makes them a summer staple to help prevent dehydration. Melons also contain vitamins A and C, which help support the immune system.

Melons are versatile and can be enjoyed in a variety of ways. Cut up melons and add to salsas or use to make infused water. Throw watermelon slices on the grill for a unique spin on this sweet fruit. And don't throw out the rind. Watermelon rinds make tasty pickles. Try the recipe below for a new take on a refreshing summer salad.

Source of Power

By Matt Booth

A source of power comes from believing in something bigger than ourselves. Whether we want to admit it or not, we all have a source of power, and I think identifying and understanding them is very important. Often when I'm at a speaking engagement, I'll ask the audience to write down their three primary sources of power. Many of them blink back at me and don't understand. I always pause for a moment and then say, "Let me rephrase it. Your source of power is your WHY. We should all know why we're doing what we're doing." Without fail, their faces brighten, and a look of understanding dawns. You see, our source of power is why we do what we do. It motivates us and supplies strength and courage in the face of hard times.

My top three sources of power are God, country, and family. These three things are my "why." They are why I get up and aim to be better than I was the day prior. If I didn't know my sources of power, I wouldn't be nearly as productive in my daily life. Effective change happens when we tie our "why," AKA our sources of power, to our direction and goals. The stronger our why, the more likely we will accomplish our goals.

How do we refine our why and deeply understand our sources of power? We ask ourselves the right questions. For example, my buddy "Jim" wants to get in better shape. At first, he thinks his motivation comes from wanting to be healthier, look better, feel better, or because his doctor told him he needs to do it. Ultimately, those things aren't motivating enough. After drilling down and asking the deep questions, he realizes his "why" is so he can live long enough to be around for his grandkids. Now that's a compelling source of power! The stronger our why, the better chance we have of connecting to our source of power and truth. At the core of the matter, a source of power means connecting to something bigger than ourselves that fuels us. It's our source of motivation.

So why do I call this "thing" a source of power? I gave it this title because a source of power provides inspiration, hope, steadfastness, and courage. It's genuinely like plugging into a bank of batteries and recharging ourselves after a long, hard day. Our source of power gives us guidelines and directly informs our "why." For my buddy Jim, his source of power was his family. The stronger our connection to our sources of power and our "why," the more likely we are to accomplish our goals. What are your sources of power, and are you plugged into them? ■

How to Grow Food in Containers and Small Spaces

Whether you live in an apartment or have a very small yard, you can still increase your food security and do a little homesteading of your own. A kitchen garden (growing the food you eat) is completely attainable in containers.

What Should I Grow?

Think about what you and your family regularly enjoy and choose those veggies and herbs that are prolific or more expensive at the grocery store. Some vegetables offer one harvest from one sowing, like beets, carrots, and corn, and others produce until the weather isn't favorable anymore, like peppers, cucumbers, and kale. Don't be afraid to mix in some flowers to attract pollinators, too! They will "bee" especially helpful if you grow fruiting crops like squash or tomatoes.

Tips to make the most of a small space

Grow up!

Growing vertical is an efficient use of space for vines like tomatoes, beans, squash, melons, cucumbers, and peas. Using trellises, cages, and fencing also saves your knees, puts harvest within arm's reach, and increases airflow to plants, which reduces the risk of fungal diseases. See our DIY Tomato Supports blog for a low-cost, easy, way to construct a sturdy trellis.

Smart spacing

Sow crops in successions. For crops that offer a one-time harvest, like carrots or radishes, thin seedlings to half the suggested spacing. Harvest every other plant when they are half grown for baby carrots and beets. In the spaces between, sow radishes or cilantro between the rows. Quick to sprout, radishes not only mark where you've planted and where you need to water but will also be harvested before the other crop is large enough to feel crowded. One more tip:

Planting in a staggered triangular pattern is more space efficient than rows or squares.

Start indoors

Many crops can be started by seed indoors and transplanted out shortly after. This can save time in the garden bed, leaving room for something else to grow.

Container growing

Sunlight

Full sun (over 6 hours a day) allows you to grow any vegetable your heart desires, as long as the container is big enough.

Partial shade (4 to 6 hours a day) to shade (no direct sun) will still work for leafy vegetables (e.g. kale, lettuce, Swiss chard, spinach) or any herbs. With less light, you can expect crops to take a little longer, and any vibrant reds may fade a bit as plants adapt their leaves to photosynthesize in lower light.

Planting Medium

A professionally-made planting mix or potting soil that holds both moisture and air space for healthy roots is preferred to outdoor soil that may contain pests and diseases. Read the bag instructions carefully; if there is a big price difference between brands, there is probably a reason. Some contain nutrients that will save you some time and money in fertilizer, and some may be certified organic, which may be important to you. If you know an experienced gardener, ask them what their favorite is and why. Gardeners love sharing tips!

Container Size and Material

In this case, the old adage, "bigger is better", is almost always correct. Similar to goldfish, plants can grow only as big as their container allows, and the bigger the plant, the more the potential harvest. Also, bigger containers require less frequent watering and insulate the roots against temperature fluctuations.

How big is big enough? Here are some general ideas on how big a container should be: Root crops need a minimum depth of 12" but at least 18" for long carrots; tomatoes need the space of about a 5-gallon bucket; peppers need 3 to 4 gallons; lettuce's roots are shallow and grow in just 4" of soil, but 6" is better; squash also need about 5 gallons of soil. We've seen a lot of items reused as planters—cowboy boots, rusty wheelbarrows, broken pots—gardeners are a thrifty and creative bunch.

Want to use a really big container but worry about being able to move it or about the cost of all the soil to fill it? You can place a turned over plastic pot or recycle some packing peanuts in the bottom to displace some of the soil. You'll save on potting soil and water, and your container will weigh less, too.

Clay pots tend to dry out faster and are heavier than resin or plastic pots, but that can be an advantage if you live in a wet climate, or have plants like rosemary that does best when it dries out between waterings. Dark colored pots will collect more heat which can cause the potting medium to dry more quickly but is also an advantage in a climate with cool nights—just something to keep in mind when choosing your color palette. One key element all containers should have though, is drainage.

Watering

Keep the soil in your containers consistently moist to the surface when plants are young, and let them dry to the depth of your first knuckle as plants get established (unless pots are small; keep them moist to the top). Apply water until you see excess water flushing out of the bottom of the container to make sure there are no dry spots. When plants get larger, if you notice your pots need water daily, they could be rootbound and need a larger container.

Containers that are really full, very small, or in sunny and windy places will need water more often, maybe twice a day! Watering in the morning or evening is ideal. Plants that have consistent moisture, instead of periods of drought, will stay pretty healthy, and productive longer.

Maintenance

Remember the potting medium you chose? Does it have fertilizer in it? If not, you should add some granular fertilizer or plan on feeding plants with a liquid fertilizer when they have a few sets of leaves. Even if it does have fertilizer, it is a good idea to start using a liquid fertilizer after a couple of months when nutrients have likely been used or washed out. Granular fertilizers generally last longer; however, liquid fertilizers have a more immediate impact and you can change them more easily throughout the season. For instance, a tomato plant at first needs a good amount of nitrogen to get big and strong but then we switch to a phosphorous-rich fertilizer to boost flower and fruit production. We've got a whole article on which fertilizer to choose that can help guide you.

Harvest frequently and scout for any damage or pests regularly. Also, remove yellow and dying leaves to expose plants to more sunshine in.

Great container varieties

Don't rule out crops you thought were too big for containers.

Summer squash, bush-type winter squashes (acorn types), "Spacemaster" or lemon cucumber, beets, carrots, kohlrabi. Add alyssum or borage, too, for color and fragrance while attracting beneficial insects and pollinators. Swiss chard, "Redbor kale," or "Red Giant" mustard will add beautiful, edible color and texture to make your container plantings decorative.

Gwen Danzig's Good Advice

DEAR GWEN,

JIF peanut butter got recalled. I bought a two-pack of peanut butter, both of which were recalled, but I already ate one entire jar and I'm fine. Should I go ahead and eat the other one?
—Sincerely, Just JIF

DEAR JUST JIF,

The real flex here is that you bought, not one, but two jars of name-brand peanut butter. Proud of you.
—xoxo Gwen

DEAR GWEN,

I lied on my resume. My friends (who work in the business) encouraged me to embellish my skills, as most jobs in this field have on-site training. I got through the whole interview process, they called my references, and somehow I got hired despite having no actual experience. There is no on-site training. I lied way too well, and now I have this huge project on my plate without any guidance. If I ask for guidance, I feel like my entire ruse will implode and I'll be without a job, without benefits, and back to square one. How do I figure this out without revealing they hired someone who is completely unfit? Should I just listen to others in the office and try to get a feel for what's going on?
—Please help, Fake on Fremont

DEAR FAKE ON FREMONT,

About a year ago I followed a Facebook fan page. I didn't know what it was, I don't even really know why I clicked "Follow," but very quickly, I joined a group of people who passionately knew everything about the page's content. They were posting pictures of a red-headed lady and some houses, and they were getting into long, convoluted arguments about decoupage. I could have unfollowed or even Googled it, but I chose to stay and blindly gather clues. Nancy Drew, again. Gwen Drew. Nancy Danzig.

Over the course of a year, I've come to understand this is the fan page for a TV show I've never seen. It is on public television somewhere on Earth. The people on the TV show almost got divorced once, which fans choose to ignore. It has quite the following, deeply impassioned 45-to-60-year-olds, and I believe the show has been canceled, which has made everyone extremely mad. For you, my dear friend, I will Google it. My year of intentional ignorance will be over.

Okay, you can't tell, but I took a break to Google it, and I just learned everything I needed to know. So I will encourage you, my friend, to Google it. I learned more in these 30 seconds on Google than I did in a full year of "listening in" on Facebook. Almost everything I know is from Googling things. I mean, how to do an oil change, bake bread, fill out the FAFSA, communicate effectively, clean the oven racks, how much money Shaq makes, and why the Clash broke up, etc. You can learn anything on Google, unless it's unknowable. Like why did Veronica Mars get canceled for no reason? Why don't phones work on airplanes? They're closer to space when they're in the sky! I mean, come on!
—xoxo Gwen

BECAUSE SPACE SAYS SO... COMPLETELY NOT FAKE Horoscopes
By Danny Fairchild, Friend to the Cosmos

ARIES
(APR 19–MAY 13)
Mars is balancing its checking account, so watch out for people you've just met. You've actually met them before in a previous life, and they were just as annoying now as they were then.

TAURUS
(MAY 14–JUNE 19)
Venus is giggling at a particular word it rhymes with, so you might want to reconsider purchasing real estate. Because no place will ever be safe for you.

GEMINI
(JUNE 20–JULY 20)
Seeking advice from an older generation could be a good source of wisdom. But judging by the state they've left the world in, probably not.

CANCER
(JULY 21–AUG 9)
Saturn thinks it's so friggin' great right now. So think your decisions through, but trust your instincts. You might ask, "What's the point of using my head if I'm just going to ignore it?" Good question. Your head is going to need the practice for when Saturn stops being such a d-bag.

LEO
(AUG 10–SEP 15)
The moon is so over you. I don't mean the moon no longer wants anything to do with you. I mean the moon is physically over you in the night sky. Since it's over all of us, you may be wondering how this makes you special. It doesn't. Because you're not.

VIRGO
(SEP 16–OCT 30)
Don't don't do anything you might regret for the rest of your life. Wait. Sorry. That wording was misleading. What I mean to say is: For the rest of your life, don't do anything you might regret.

LIBRA
(OCT 31–NOV 22)
Now is not a good time to make a rash decision. But really... getting a rash is NEVER a good decision.

SCORPIO
(NOV 23–NOV 29)
Jupiter just subscribed to Us Weekly which means people will start to see you in a new light. Ugh, seriously? Enough with the photo filters, already.

OPHIUCHUS
(NOV 30–DEC 17)
You're allowed to make a bad decision from time to time. After all, you are a person. A human being. This humanity will be called into question, however, with many, many tragically bad decisions you consistently make all the time.

SAGITTARIUS
(DEC 18–JAN 8)
Your next big step might be two steps back, and that's okay. If taking two steps back made it possible for the world to accept the interspecies relationship of Paula Abdul and MC Skat Kat, just imagine what it could do for you.

CAPRICORN
(JAN 9–FEB 15)
It might feel like people are talking about you this week. Rest assured that not one single person will say one single word about you. Not a peep. Trust me, your name won't even come up. Not even as "Wutstheirname." You'll be so far from anybody's mind anywhere that it'll be like you don't even exist. So no need to be paranoid.

AQUARIUS
(FEB 16–MAR 11)
Neptune is splitting its hostas this week, so why not help out a friend in need? This is the one week where they won't catch feelings if you throw a little nookie their way.

PISCES
(MAR 12–APR 18)
Uranus is doing its own research, so now is the time to be more compassionate to those less fortunate than you. Or at least it would be if there WERE people less fortunate than you. In practice, this week is going to be a bunch of people with the same zodiac sign just heaping compassion on you. How could that possibly work if this horoscope applies to them as well? I don't know. But it does.
